Pity that the
New Corbyn
no longer says
these things!

recently elected Leader of the Labour Party, had a consistent attitude to the EU.

‘An ominous veil of secrecy surrounds negotiations on the Transatlantic Trade and Investment Partnership... (there are) serious concerns on the power of corporate lobbyists to undermine parliamentary democracy because the deal will allow them to demand and exercise commercial “rights” that over-ride national sovereignty when it comes to public services. The EU has not sought to exclude health from the TTIP negotiations... environmental issues and public services are being sidelined in favour of greedy bankers and multinationals which see vast profits to be made.’

‘If the EU becomes a totally brutal organisation that treats every one of its member states in the way that the people of Greece have been treated at the moment, then I think it will lose a lot of support from a lot of people.’

Like the previous Corbyn, many progressives oppose the EU because it is beyond reform.
