October 21st, 1909.

Dear Miss Black,

I think your letter is most delightful and far too good to tame down and solemnly send from the Society. I do not know which papers should have it in so I am not sending it on myself but return some copies for you to do what you think best. I hope very much that we shall see it in The Times. It ought to be in the Morning Post, but that I fear would be more than ~~we~~ could expect.

I am sending also the draft report. It is roughly done and the figures need putting in. I ought to have put in something about the death of George Meredith but it is so late now that I send it off without waiting. The only other person whose death I have noted in Miss Charlotte Louisa Ellaby M.D., I know very little about her and am not sure whether or not we should speak of her.
