Dear Miss Strachey,

I understand that the Committee of the Women's Labour Day have applied for the use of the banners which adorned your pageant, and that these have been refused. Might I take the liberty of urging a re-consideration of the decision? It seems to me so very important to keep the suffrage movement in touch with the organised bodies of working women, and the loan of the banners would be an indication of good feeling which the industrial movement would appreciate, and, I am sure, respond to.

If you can do anything to modify a decision which I should think very unfortunate, please do so.

Yours sincerely,

J. J. Mallon
