Do you trust Lloyd George?

Pious answer. —

"Trust no party, sect or faction Trust no leader in the fight — Trust in God (also the rights) of was entertained in the Bull Inn, sacred to Dickens.

I don't know whether we can get Arthur to sing before hand that he will speak for us. If he is there, I always feel he will speak for he is always irritated by the & wants of logic in the opposition

He never was a keen sufferer fish, & now he does not care to spend and be spent in more ^{causes} than he can help.
He has assured us he will vote, and he asked for your literature. I noted to day the S. P. U. shop in our neighbourhood, wh. had been wrecked, has been refitted, & refurnished, and I saw your book displayed in the window. Christa bel below!

I really was looking forward with great apprehension to Friday, and I feel a relief the day is put off, but I don't know whether that sense of relief is justified I don't think the Government could help taking Friday. The time is very short already for the consideration of the principles involved in the Bill. Yours affly

I saw Asquith the last week but not you that. His abhor-rence of the Lawrence is pretty generally shared

I think - He considers them the real villains, as to finance (violent words -

Betty fears an outbreak if the sentences are severe - as quite said, they would depend on the judge -
