My dear Susan

I have heard from Mrs. Emily of your kind & generous present, and I thank you heartily for your kind thought.
She has bought a pen bridge, which I am for dinner tomorrow.

I felt it very kind of you & I am to come to you to see me. It was a great pleasure, and I am delighted I have seen Mike at last. I was quite prepared for his not being kindly, as I think old people are rather appalling for children. But it was nice that he let me kiss him!
Your father told me of his adventure in the stream! What a good thing he was now the worse. To-day he went his mother return to Girth House, and you go to London I suppose.

I have been out a great deal in the Bath chair, since to-day, and such long walks.
It is wonderful what strength Emily has. She was very ill at Easter but is well & strong now.
