My dear Nelly

I am sorry you are vexed about Alice not appreciating the book you so kindly sent her.

I would return it, as it is decidedly a thing of value. Unfortunately she gave it as a present to that charming Irish girl Patricia O'Roche who so often keeps her company and amuses me by her lively and amiable conversation.

Patricia is delighted with the book, she told me she read in it in bed till 1 o'clock in the night.

She says it is Yorkshire dialect and Yorkshire people that make it difficult for Alice.

You see it was very pleasant for Ellen to have a nice present for this girl, who is going back to her mother after Easter and whom we shall miss ever so much.

Then there will be a French governess and it would be a wonderful chance, if she turned out as agreeable as this one, who is so attached to us.

So I hope you do not mind and forgive her
seeming ingratitude.

With love from both
my sisters yours
affectionately

Mae & Lotta.
