Dear Miss Ward,

Recently, in connection with some passages in my ^{& Miss James} recently published Life of Josephine Butler, I received a letter from Mrs Bramwell Booth, as she thought that I had not given her credit - her deserved like Salvator Army in the matter of the Mustang case in 1885. De redemptor and she then also very kindly sent me a book Echoes and memories of General Bramwell Booth which tells her story in detail. I thought she was ~~wrong~~ & have added a note in the new edition of the book in which I hope I have made my object. I think I may say that I was perfectly enchanted with the book "Echoes and memories". I was perfectly enchanted by it, not only by the history it gives of the trial of Stead & Booth, but in the accounts, notably in the great but unsuccessful effort - her S. A. made ^{at the time} to unite between the Christian Churches

If you know his book, will a short notice of me. I should like to send it to you for the Librarian in the Royal Opera when she comes home. You send me M. G. J. W. with
