Dearest Pippa.

Could you make an engagement to lunch with me after the Literature Centre on Wednesday? I not only want to talk to you for all the usual reasons, but also for a special one.

I want to talk to you about that dogging Fluckie on Mrs. Fawcett's grave idea that you put forward one day! Roy said Mrs. F. would have hated it. Perhaps, but

I expect she would have accepted it like everything else, if it was for the Public good.

And after all she did lay flowers on John Street's ^{grave} ~~grave~~ herself, didn't she?

Do you know I persecuted her on the wireless the other day? Sacrilege was it it? But it was to save a worse one.
And apparently the school children liked the broadcast. Very favourable reports were sent in to the B.B.C.

I can't help feeling that the time had come when it would be good to
