

Dec. 7/15.

My dear Pippa. This is as you see a hasty business note. Our Mr. Robinson wd. be very glad to hear if you wd. be likely to be travelling to London via Poole on the 17th or 18th of Dec. because if so you might have the honour of travelling in company with your own priceless and unique pot. If not we must make some ^{other} arrangements.

Re the Swan. cette blanche agonie par l'espace infligée sur l'oiseau qui le vit.
a message to Pernel space is mass. after all. Bellows Dictinary was wrong. It is sometimes or was feminine. But what shocks me is that Pernel fluffed me into supposing that infligée indicated the gender of space whereas it agrees with agonie - what shocks me most is that I let myself be imposed on by her superior Knowledge [official position [didn't use of wits.

Now if only she could impress Mrs. Grey in the same way wh I see you are both covered.

Please tell me your movements, [when I shall see you. I've been slipping humbly into a shameful foam.

Your liking of prose poem so much came at a most important moment [I've started a fresh. I am glad you did happen to [now you can damn anything of mine you ^{do} blame without its hurt. I didn't see how to change that last sentence. ~~It~~ closer you have always to come back to the railway station [all the mood that implies. However I'll discuss it.

Adios yr. Roger.
