My dear Hilby,

A little while ago you asked me for some words for a Suffrage Song. I have written the enclosed, to the tune of "A Hundred Pipes"; if you think another verse is needed, I will try to write another one; (but I hope you won't!) If it is not good enough for the Suffrage Song, I hope, at anyrate, that it will do for a Suffrage Song.

If you want to pay a tribute to our fore-runners, I think the words that I wrote to "Auld Lang Syne", in the little book of Suffrage Songs, would be suitable!

Would it be possible for you or your sister, (or both,) to come one morning, & hear the words I have just written sung by my friend,

Miss Godwin-Roster? Any morning, after eleven, except a Saturday, would suit us.

Yours very affectionately,

Jane M. Brackley

aged 85.
