Interview with Miss Frost, Hon. Sec. of C.O.S.
for Clerkenwell, Holborn and St. Luke's.

Miss Frost has been Hon. Sec. of this committee for three years and did not previously know the District. Beyond the ordinary round of C.O.S. work and a fairly intimate acquaintance with the clergy and their doing she does not know much about it now, but she is a quiet sensible woman, and I should think her opinion as to the clergy and their work is generally reliable. The C.O.S. areas differ so widely from ours that many of them to whom she referred are in our District. I will take the clergy in order as she took them:-

St. Matthew, City Road, Mr Ford: a new man and know little of him, but seems sensible.

St. Barnabas, Mr Hespiger: lazy: old fashioned and sleepy: but does not give anything.

St. Clement, Dean St. Mr Longridge: a typically good High Churchman with a real influence over a small number, and then really poor: very meek and mild. His relief is poor and unpractical.

St. Luke, Old St. Mr Perry: a nice straight forward men: sensible.

St. Mark, Old St. Mr. Bayly White: know little about him: keeps to himself.

St. Paul: Southill Row, Mr. Smith: don't think much of him: apt to be rude and disagreeable.
Good curate.

St. Mary, Charterhouse, Mr. Patch: nice man:
exercises good influence: relief fair.

St. Thomas, Charterhouse, Mr. Swann: poor:
'laissez faire': leans things to the women.

St. Sepulchre, Mr. Gibson: - good man:
but lot of relief from old endowments: not properly administered.

St. Peter, Saffron Hill, Mr. Canney: the
'public man' type: "the sort that one instructing field ought not to be a parson" said Miss F. who took the view that they should confine themselves to spiritual work.

St. Alban's: Mr. Bucking: both clergy and laity an excellent people, and though the church is filled mainly by outsiders they do really get hold of a number of the bitter poor in the parish: get them to church to a considerable extent;

but nearly all women: (with reference to this church
Miss F. spoke on the dress question, and emphasized the fact that with the women especially it was quite impossible in a church to pick the class from the dress: she herself knows all the members of a guild of Communicants, all women when the family carries average from 25/ to 40/ and on Sunday it would be almost impossible to distinguish them from ladies). Mr.
St. Alban's Fathers Stanton and Russell are in a peculiar position: they can scarcely be compared to the ordinary curate, having, from the fact that they have been over 30 years and more than with Macanochie, much more than the usual influence and independence, but Father Buckley is undeniably the leading spirit. The relief is left mainly to the sisters and is of the usual unsatisfactory character when such is the case: though it is all done with the best of motives the people are "indirectly rewarded" who come to church: the feeling of the sisters is "these are our people, and we must help them".

Holy Trinity, Gray's Inn Road, Inn Thome:

another of the clergy who is more of the 'public man' than the parson: "the man of business".

St. John, Red Lion Sq; Mr Long: a good High Churchman: an excellent spiritual minded man. Much sounder than most on relief: his curate Mr Foster is Chairman of the C.O.S. Committee.

St. George the Martyr, Queen Sq, Mr Graves:
a gentleman and does his best, but not much good: touchy about parochial boundaries.

St. James, Abchurch Lane, Mr Rose (now dead):
this parish has been worked on the 'Lenny' lines, and Miss F. accordingly did not altogether approve it.

St. John, Abchurch Lane, Mr Wood: not much influence of any sort: commonplace.

Holy Redeemer, Exmouth St, Mr Eyre: an excellent man: is much liked by the poor, and has a real hold over them. Miss Bird the Sec. who was in the room had been several times to the church and found a good congregation of people most of whom she thought to be the poor from the locality. Here again the relief is in the hands of ladies, but less is done than at St. Alban's.

St. Peter, St. John St. Road, Mr. Griffith: work hard but ordinary sort of man: thinks a lot of himself. gives relief only to his own pet.

St. Mark, Myddleton Sq, Mr. Swicen: both Mr and Mrs J. on committee, temper rather delicate subject; but Mr J. "could not influence people" "will never let the names on fire" likes "his study and arithmetic" fairly sound on "relief" but tending to reward people for going to church.

St. Philip, Farnhill Sq, Mr Robinson: worked 1/2 lifetime: know little of it.

St. James, Pentonville, Mr. Stubbs: sleepy "old fossil": cant drag an argument out of him: leans it all to Scripture Reader.

St. Silas, Pentonville, Mr Leach: well worked: nice sensible man.

the Society Mission, Pentonville, Mr Pready: a remarkable man, very like Father Stanton: working strictly on C. O. S. lines.

Speaking of the clergy as a whole Miss F. thought they were rather a poor lot, and with little influence

Of the non-convicts the only one she knew was Mr Wakely; from the spiritual point of view his success is wonderful: there can be no question that he has got a real hold of a number of the poor.
As to relief Mr. W. proposes to work entirely on C.O.S. lines, but there is no real enquiry: he is however a sensible man: but ~~his~~ his sisters are foolish.

As to preventing the extension of workhouses outward from the city is making Mr Duke's and Curzon will ~~more~~ more would.

As to the C.O.S. the attitude of the clergy is much more friendly than it was: as is that of the guardians, but the latter go in for a policy of banish out relief.

14. Interview with Mr Fred^x W. Manning, 283 Gray's Inn Road, W.C. Hon. Sec. of the Kings Cross United Good Templar & Temperance Mission.

Mr Manning is a big, full bodied man of about 45. Jovial looking, ~~dark~~ hair, mutton chop whiskers; ready talker and probably an effective platform speaker, combining confidence with a good 'presence'. Has been engaged in temperance work 17 years. Is employed in the Post Office and is a member of the United Methodist Church in Charlotte Street. (Rev Turner).

The Mission has a ^{subscribing} membership of about 150 of whom about 100 would be actively engaged in temperance work in the neighbourhood. Counting the affiliated membership e.g. societies affiliated the total would be doubled.

The Society's work is mainly confined to an area extending a short distance each side of the Euston Road. Used to hold a meeting in Caledonian Road but gave that up when they came to Compton Street.

Hall in Compton Street, occupies the ground at the back of houses in Judd Street. Holds about 150. Was a Wesleyan Mission. Have only occupied the hall since ~~last~~ December. Previously were using a hall in Chalton St, Somers Town.

Plan affixed on next page, gives particulars of open air & other meetings held & the societies affiliated. Similar plans are issued monthly. The Annual Report (also affixed) gives additional details.

Notes on Meetings

At the meetings on Sunday at the Hall the attendance averages about 90, whilst on Saturday evening, a kind of free tea at which coffee & a bun are supplied for 1^d, the place is full. The people are "middle class working" people. They cannot get the labouring people into the Hall. A good many are total abstainers but they get others & take about 5 pledges a week.

The labouring people they get at the open air meetings has held the foremost place, having held 43 meetings on Sunday Mornings at Midland Arches, St. Pancras; 21 Sunday Morning meetings at Ossulston Street, Euston Road; 16 Sunday Morning meetings at Thornhill Bridge, Caledonian Road. On Sunday Evenings we have held 50 meetings at Ossulston Street, Euston Road, and 21 meetings at Argyle Street, Euston Road. On Wednesday Evenings we have held 24 meetings at Ossulston Street, and 27 meetings in the neighbourhood of Thornhill Bridge, Caledonian Road, on Saturday Evening; thus sustaining 7 Open Air Stations per week, in addition to which we have held several Sunday Afternoon meetings in Regents Park, and one all-day meeting there on Sunday, September 26th, commencing at 11 o'clock in the morning, and terminating at dusk. During last winter we obtained the use of the People's Hall, Chalton Street, for our Sunday Evening meetings and 17 meetings were held there, besides a Tea and Demonstration on Good Friday and other meetings.

Our Monthly Workers' discussions on Sunday Afternoon, proved very successful in educating the members upon various aspects of the Temperance Movement, and the Summer Season's Work was brought to a fitting close by our good friend, Rev. G. H. Turner, preaching a Temperance Sermon in the United Methodist Free Church, Charlotte Street, Caledonian Road, on Sunday October 10th, and a Tea and Demonstration in the same place on the following Saturday, in all upwards of 170 Meetings have been held and 235 pledges recorded.

At the close of the Summer Season we again made application for use of People's Hall, Chalton Street, but for certain reasons the friends there did not think it advisable to lend it again, and we were in a great dilemma, but after searching almost everywhere it came to our knowledge that the Wesleyans were giving up their Mission Hall in Compton Street, Judd Street, and we entered into negotiations with the owners of same, with the result that on December 29th, we took possession of the Hall for use, every night in the week, and we issued a Special Appeal for funds to furnish the same as the seats, etc., therein were required by the Wesleyans. Up to the present about £6 has been received out of about £15 to £20 being required, and it is intended during March to hold a SPECIAL TEN DAYS' MISSION in the Hall.

We have to again thank the innumerable friends who have assisted, either by speaking, singing, reciting, etc., at our meetings, but more are still needed. Any person who is a pledged abstainer and subscribes not less than 1/- a year may be enrolled a member.

We would most respectfully call attention to our Balance Sheet, which shows a slight balance in hands of our Treasurer, but we have been severely handicapped during the year for want of funds, having made strenuous efforts to keep our expenses within bounds, and we confidently appeal to all friends of the Temperance Cause for renewed support to enable us to continue in our noble work of endeavouring to bring joy and comfort into homes whence peace and love have flown, and to prevent others going the downward road which leads to destruction.

During the year, through the kindness of National Temperance League, London Auxilliary, U.K.A., Editor "Good Templar's Watchword," J. M. Skinner, etc., upwards of 30,000 Temperance Publications have been distributed.

Contributions will be thankfully received by any of the Officers, and a printed receipt will follow.

On behalf of the Committee,

Faithfully yours,

meetings, the attendance at the Midland Arches meetings averaging 200 and at Ossulston Street, 100. Nearly all are working men in their working clothes. The size of the meeting depends on the speaker and good speakers always get an audience. Mr M's 17 years experience convinces him that the only way to get the people is by open air meetings.

The Society is increasing in membership & so are the lodges meeting at the Hall. I think the prospects of temperance work are better than for 7 years past. The people are beginning to see the importance of it & the Christian churches are taking up the work more & regard it in a different light.

In their open air work they meet with little opposition except from a drunken man occasionally. The socialists sometimes oppose also.

The Drunk traffic has been entrenched itself in the homes of the people and Mr M. regards the grocers licences as a great difficulty. They facilitate drinking amongst middle class women.

Drink & Immorality

* Amongst young women & girls, he thinks an increase of drinking has taken place. See young girls (15 + 16) in the pubs. 84

Police

Thrift

27
Whilst there has been a great increase in the number of women drinking in publichouses, Mr M. is not sure whether that it represents an increase of drinking or only a change of habit or both.* In his district (Euston Road), vice is largely associated with drinking. The neighbourhood is dotted with immorality, not confined to particular streets but some in all. The publichouses are rendezvous for low women. Mentioned the scoble in Dorby Street (close by) as full of them in the evening.

The police, especially on the north of the Euston Road sympathize with them and many are total abstainers. Will take drunken people away if making a disturbance.

As to Thrift, Mr M. thinks temperance makes a man "a thundering sight meaner than he was." He looks at the 4/ before he spends it.

The Society is an aggressive organization - the President said "the most aggressive in London" and Mr M. probably concurs. They are always sending out handbills from to the houses - go from house to house.

29
During the year they take over 200 pledges and about 75% keep their pledge. They endeavour to keep in touch with these converts by visitation. Are going through old pledge books now & inviting the people to a tea.

GWA

17/5/98

Interview with Mr Williams of the Bessbrook Home, 39 Queen Square W.C.

Mr Williams is Secretary to Mr James Keates, the Supt of the Bessbrook Homes for Men. The appointment was made ^{with Mr Keates} to obtain information respecting a Mission Hall connected with the Homes. But I found Mr K. had gone for a sea voyage for health purposes. When making the Inquiry re the Paper trade, I met Mr Keates, who gave some interesting details respecting the Sandwich men, who form the bulk of the residents.
(Note Book p. 23)

Since that time the work appears to have grown rapidly as two additional Homes have been opened & the inmates classified:

The homes are as under.

1. 39 Queen Square. A receiving home, where are casual cases are received and tested.
2. 27 St. Holborn. To this home the men are passed when they have given evidence of a desire to try live a regular life.
3. 28 Arde Hall Street. This house is reserved for men who have made a position for themselves and are in permanent situations. There is nothing in the exterior to differentiate it from the adjacent private houses.

In these homes accommodation is provided for 230 men.

There is also a Mission Hall at 167 High Holborn which seats 250 people, and at the back of the Arde Hall Street premises another hall. This however has an entrance from Lamb's Conduit Street. It is worked by Mr Blackman L.C.M. & is quite distinct from the Homes.

The principles and work of the Homes was fully described in the earlier interview. They seek the homeless street men & especially the board carrier, and for these employment is found as board carrier, bill distributors, addressers etc.

The Mission Hall at Holborn is mainly attended by the residents in the Homes and those who have been in the homes but are now in permanent situations. Nearly all are men, the women being wives of some of the men.

The services held are

- Sunday 10 am. Prayer meeting. Almost entirely men.
- " afternoon Evangelistic Meeting - singing, ^{About 130.} testimony &c
- " evening. Gospel Service. At this & the afternoon meeting the attendance is about 200+.

Gospel Meetings are also held on Monday, Wednesday & Friday & at these a large proportion of the men attend. No pressure is used to induce attendance: it is quite voluntary. Also invite steady men to these services. To such they will say: "We will give you a bed to night & work tomorrow," but the man is expected to pay for his bed from the morrow's work.

One way in which they test these men is by giving them books to sell. A firm of publishers supplies them with a large number of penny books at $\frac{1}{4}$ each. These man is given a dozen of these & told he is to bring 3^d back for them, making the 9^d when he sells. The imposters will not come back: those who wish to make a fresh start do & another dozen is given them for the 3^d paid over, whilst with the 9^d they can get food & pay their lodgings. No.

Most of these men helped in this way come back. They have got to know these people and only help likely cases in this way. No charitable relief is given and by this means they try to keep clear of cadgers. "Our feeling is that men who won't work will go away and seek an easier easier living by cadging. Have frequent applications. This morning (it was 11.30) he had had 4 promising cases. Whilst I was there a man came in, who had tried to get into St Pancras Infirmary for some abdominal complaint. The R.O. had sent him to Mitcham W.H. instead & he had taken his discharge & tramped back.

Asked as to results, he said they had 45 men in permanent employ who had stood the test for more than 2 years; over 100 in touch with us, who have been in the homes & have stood 18 months.

Drink is the cause of the condition of 90% of these applicants. A large proportion have a "wet" reference i.e. that is a good character spoiled at the end by discharge for drinking. These cases they get firms to give a chance & they form the more promising cases. Practically they find that the men that stand are those who make a profession of Christ. Until they do this Mr W. does not regard them as safe from the power of the temptation. I forgot to say that the chief rule of the Homes is that the men shall be total abstainers whilst in residence.

Mr Keates is an ex. Salvation officer & Mr Williams a man of a similar stamp.

Interview with Mr. J. Morant, Saffron Hill
Board School.

Mr. Morant was one of the Schoolmasters recommended by Mr. Sautrey. Though an able and a pleasant man he was in common with so many of the schoolmasters, rather unproductive, as like most of them he knows little of the locality, going and coming from the school daily like a city clerk.

Not that Mr. M. takes no interest in his children, but his interest is confined chiefly to the educational side, and other questions are viewed almost entirely in the light of their influence on the school.

Mr. M. has been here for 9 years and during that time has seen a great material change in the district: all the small cottage properties which used to be in Saffron Hill has been swept away and the place taken by warehouses: the result has been that many of the respects of the people have gone and on the whole the neighbourhood is morally better than it was. It still however remains a exceedingly poor and rough, and this school is regarded as one of the most difficult in London: there are several church schools in the district and the Board School perhaps tends to get the less reputable children.

The parents of the children at the school is proud of their appearance. Mr M. took me into three classes of boys: with few exceptions they were collarless and tending to rasp, but the point which Mr M. specially emphasized, and I think with justice was the prevailing condition of anaemia, a very large proportion of the boys being obviously suffering therefrom, and Mr M. thinks that fully 50 p.c. of them suffer from the lack of nourishment: in the winter this is supplied to some extent by their weekly dinner at the school and Mr M. thinks that in a school such as this they should be continued throughout the year.

The children almost without exception leave school a few weeks before they are legally entitled to, and practically none go into any trade at all outside from school. Mr M. complained bitterly too of the number who work while still at school: he had in the boys of the 4th standard, and it was found that about half of them are working out of school hours, beginning about 6 in the morning and going on till about 10 at night, with a long day on Saturday, and in many cases work on Sunday; the wages seemed to range from 2/ to 4/ a week. The natural result is that the children come to school listless. In many cases the practice is due simply to "the greed of the parents" but whether hard on the parents or not. Mr M. wishes it made illegal to employ children still at school.

There are a considerable number of R.C. Italian children in the school; their parents are nominally at all times R.C.'s, but they have a hatred of priestly domination.

Mr M. is a Churchman and was for many years a teacher in a Church school, but he evidently dislikes and ~~dislikes~~ distrusts the clergy in the neighborhood all of whom are on his board of managers; his objection is based on the fact that they do all they can to hamper the work of his school and damage it at the expense of the Church schools. In so literal a man as Mr Carney, he says it really is friend to the school and as for Mr. Allen, they hate it. The local influence of Mr. Allen's he thinks is largely due to relief: "they laid it out and then get the people to come to confession" etc.

Intention with a sister of Bethany Lloyd's
by. Clerkwell.

The Mother Superior of the Sisters of Bethany had arranged to see me: she however was busy and sent down another a sister, a good, level-headed, sensible old lady, who brought a message that the Mother and Sister took the greatest interest in our work and wished it all success.

There is little to be added to the various reports of the Sisters' work: as stated in the Clergy book of District 4 they are largely responsible for the working of the parishes of St. Philip and Holy Redeemer, and I have placed the Reports of their Mission House with the intentions with Mr Green and Mr Syre. Reports of the House of Retreat and the Cooche I place here.

The Sister whom I saw told me that four Sisters ~~were~~ were constantly at work in St. Philip's and two in Holy Redeemer. I gathered however that the work in the latter parish is more satisfactory and efficient, partly no doubt from the superiority of Mr Syre to the invalid Mr Robinson and his rather inefficient curate (whom however the sister spoke of as "a good man") but partly too from the character of sister Pinnick who is responsible for Holy Redeemer, and who is said to be a lady of great vigour and common sense. The sister whom I met has never worked in either of these parishes (indeed I think she does not go out.) but she has lived in the House of Retreat for 30 years and knows the district well: though during that time there has been much social decay, but of late people have got no power, but there has been the introduction of a rougher element, whom the sister said came mostly from the district around St. Alban's Holborn, driven out of warehouses. From these people spring the Unkewick Gangs which have been so notorious of late.

Though the work of the sisters consists mainly in visiting and the administration of charity they also conduct many classes for confirmation candidates, and Sunday Schools.

Besides their work in the parishes the sisters used at one time to give bread to all beggars who came to the door: they found however that through their own observation and the information of the police that it was nearly all thrown away and the practice has been stopped.

HOUSE OF RETREAT.

LLOYD SQUARE,

PENTONVILLE, W.C.

The House of Retreat, the Mother House of the Sisters of Bethany, in Lloyd Square, Pentonville, is intended primarily to afford to persons living in the world opportunities of temporary retirement in Retreat, or for other purposes of devotion, and as a refuge for a longer or shorter time from the hurry and distractions of ordinary life.

Retreats conducted by experienced Priests are frequently held in the Sisters' Chapel, and ladies are received at all times as Visitors in the House, sometimes it may be only for a day or a few hours, in order to bring the spiritual help afforded within reach of those who lead the busiest lives.

The Sisters also receive here, free of charge, a limited number of respectable girls, who are trained for domestic service for two years, and are then provided with places.

The other works of the Sisters are:—

(1.) An Orphanage and industrial School, Springbourne, Bournemouth, where over 100 children are received. This work depends, in part, on alms and subscriptions. At the present time the Sisters are in great need of funds to build a chapel, which is now a necessity for the continued well-being of the Orphanage. The School is under Government Inspection. A portion of the House is set apart for Visitors, as at the House of Retreat. The Sisters also work in the Parish under the Vicar of St. Clements.

(2.) The Mission Houses of S. Philip's and of the Holy Redeemer, Clerkenwell;—Both these Districts as well as their Sunday Schools are under the entire charge of the Sisters. Help is constantly needed to carry on the various works connected with these extremely poor districts, and ladies are invited to assist by giving one or more days in the week to visit amongst the poor, or by doing Needlework, either at one of the Mission Houses, or in their own homes. Hampers of provisions, fruit, flowers, toys, &c., and clothing for the Christmas gifts, will be most acceptable. The Sisters also undertake the cooking of the diets given by the Order of St. John of Jerusalem to convalescents from the Royal Free Hospital and the Finsbury Dispensary. These are sent out from the S. Philip's Mission House.

(3.) St. Agnes' Crèche where the children of poor working women are received when their mothers are out at work, 21, Wilmington Square E.C.

(4.) S. Barnabas Hospital, in S. Philip's District for Parish cases not considered suitable for a Public Hospital.

The two last named Charities have both been started and hitherto supported by two ladies—and as the support of the Benefactress of the Crèche must cease at her death, subscribers are urgently needed for a work which is being largely blessed.

(5.) Mission Houses at S. Agnes, Kennington, S.E.

(6.) S. Giles, Reading.

(7.) The Districts of the Annunciation, and of S. Bartholomew, Brighton. The Sisters have Mission Houses in both these Districts, where every description of work is carried on under the direction of the respective Vicars.

(8.) The Sisters also work in the Assyrian Mission under the Archbishop of Canterbury at Urmi, Persia. This work comprises a large Boarding School, a day Infant School, a Dispensary managed by the Sisters for the use of the Mission and native Christians. They also visit the Schools in the villages of the plain and give instruction to the native women residing in the villages.

(9.) A School of Embroidery, at 6, Lloyd Street, where the Sisters execute orders for all kinds of Church work, and also give lessons.

10. Mission Work at Burton on Trent.

REPORT OF

ST. AGNES' INFANT NURSERY.

45, WILMINGTON SQUARE, CLERKENWELL.

February, 1893.

HOSE who take a kind interest in St. Agnes' Crèche will be glad to learn that its benefits are more and more warmly appreciated by the mothers residing in the neighbourhood. They realise that a Crèche is not merely a place where the baby is kept out of harm's way during its mother's enforced absence, but where it is really cared for, kept thoroughly clean, judiciously fed, and last but not least, tenderly loved. St. Agnes' Crèche has come to be regarded, therefore, by many mothers as an unspeakable boon, and their delight when they see their children improving in health and appearance is often very cheering; 120 children were admitted altogether during the year 1893, which was a considerable increase on the previous year. At present we have 36 names on the books.

Mention was made in last years Report, of two babies brought to us by the Inspector of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children, to be kept during the imprisonment of their wretched mother for the ill-usage of them. The younger of the two has since died, but the eldest child "Dolly," whom we received altogether into the Crèche, is steadily improving, and we hope will soon get over the bad effects of early ill-treatment. Her poor little legs, however, are not yet strong enough for walking purposes, though she is nearly four years old; and we should be very grateful to any one who would send us an old perambulator, as she is getting quite too heavy to be carried for her daily "outing."

We have to thank many friends for useful parcels of clothes, toys and picture-books. These are always most acceptable and are our continued "wants." Our great anxiety, however, is to get, if possible, more Subscribers, so that St. Agnes' Crèche should be more self-supporting, and not mainly dependent on the bounty of one kind friend, Mrs. Cubitt. New subscriptions therefore will be most gratefully received.

In conclusion, we would gladly welcome any friends who would come and see for themselves what a blessing this "Nursery" is to all the tiny inmates, but especially to the weak and ailing ones, who receive here an attention and a care which would be quite impossible in their own poor homes. Who will help us? Surely, there is no work more important than caring for the lambs the Good Shepherd loves? "If ye love me, feed my lambs."

Miss Jay is a pleasant sensible middle aged lady, well educated and capable, and with a woman's quick perceptions, she has acquired an intimate acquaintance with the dwellers in Pentonville & spoke very readily about them. She lives with her brother (a stockbroker) in a flat (11 Clowelly Mansions, Edgway Inn Road) and it was there that the interview took place.

The Institute was started in 1890 for lads & was the outcome of some meeting held at York Road during the 2 previous years. It occupies a house at the corner of Cumming & Collier Streets, formerly the abode of the North London Radical Club. Parenthetically Miss J. remarked that the Club was a very bad influence & the people of the district were glad when the police "shut it up". It has now gone to Rodney Street.

Have a gymnasium, ^{on ground floor} one large & two small rooms

The Report (annexed) gives the substance of much of the interview so I give it:-

Report for Year ending March 31st, 1897.

THE Committee, in presenting this, their Seventh Annual Report, are glad to be able to record that the numbers attending the Institute have been larger than before, although the members have been of a somewhat different class from those of previous years. From the very commencement of the Winter Season the Club was crowded with the very roughest lads of the neighbourhood, a class of which hitherto we have had very few. Costermongers, street roughs, and even professional thieves were among the number, and it may be imagined that they were not very easily managed or controlled, and that it has indeed been hard work for those who have been in charge of the Institute. Naturally the presence of these very rough fellows tended to keep away the better class, and we had many discussions as to whether we should allow them to remain; but we soon came to the conclusion that it was our duty to try and link them to a higher life, for thousands of such lads are growing up in this neighbourhood hardly any place is open for them to go to where they can learn anything of good, and practically nothing is being done to reach them. We are very pleased to be able to state that, rough as most of the lads are, we have never had any real difficulty with them, that in a very short time all disorder and bad language ceased, and that a very real improvement has taken place in their behaviour. Every night the Institute is closed with prayer and a hymn, if possible, and these few minutes are often taken advantage of to speak straight to the fellows, and put before them the ideals of a purer and a nobler life. We have also an occasional ten minutes address in the middle of the evening, generally on a Saturday, when the Institute is at its fullest; our special thanks are due to Colonel MacGregor for his stirring address early in the season, which the fellows have often referred to since.

A Bible Class was started on Sunday afternoons, simply to get hold of the very rough fellows. The numbers gradually increased and the Class has lately been very successful. Both the Cricket and Swimming Clubs had a very good season, and the Gymnasium has been carried on as before and good work done, but owing to the costermonger element we have been prevented from going in for any inter-club competitions. During the summer a party of the elder lads had a holiday with us on the Thames, at Henley. The weather was most delightful, and the lads thoroughly enjoyed the boating, bathing, and long picnics that we went in for. The work on behalf of others, besides the actual members of the Institute, continues to grow and extend, and in this direction the Mothers' Bible Class, now held on Friday afternoons, occupies a prominent place, much good having resulted from it. Connected with the class there are Coal and Clothing Clubs, and Rummage Sales of useful articles and old clothes, all of young people. Had lectures by L.C.C. lady lecturer on health. Women much interested.

Miss Jays.

which are much appreciated. We hope to celebrate this Jubilee year by giving a number of the poor hard-working mothers attending this Class a week's holiday at the Seaside. The proposal has aroused the greatest enthusiasm amongst the women, few of whom ever get a day's real rest, much less a week's. We shall thankfully receive help for this purpose. The Girl's Class on Wednesday evenings is most successful, both as regards attendance and conduct, and is making steady progress. Just before Easter the members gave a capital Musical Entertainment, at which they had a large and appreciative audience. A Class for elder girls is held on Fridays, including Musical Drill, of which the girls are very fond; and a Bible Class for girls is also held on Sunday evenings, on which evident blessing has rested. For the younger boys from 10 to 14 we have a Class on Wednesday evenings, which has been very well attended, and two on Sunday evenings, one for seniors and one for juniors. Nearly all the younger boys join the Institute as soon as they are 14 years old (under which age they cannot be members), and we are thus training a number of those who we trust will be a help and source of strength to the work as they grow up. During the past season we have had constant and ready help from several of our Senior Christian lads, which has greatly contributed to the success of the various classes. We were again able this year to send most of the boys and girls regularly attending these Classes for a fortnight's holiday, either through the kindness of the Ragged School Union, to their Homes in the country, or to our own Holiday Home. The delight of the children in these holidays is beyond words to express, and, strange as it may seem

60 to 70

in these days, some of the girls thus sent away had never been in a train before, although old enough to be working in a factory. We do indeed consider every penny well spent that we are able to devote to this purpose, for these poor London children, living in crowded rooms with very indifferent food, look totally changed after two weeks of good and plentiful meals in the sweet, pure, country air. They seem the better for the change during all the rest of the year. In addition to those enjoying this summer holiday, a considerable number have stayed at our Holiday Home who have been ill or out of work, and who have been much refreshed and cheered by a few days' change, while a large number of the boys have been there from Saturday to Monday. In August, about 50 of our Mothers, with a goodly number of little ones, spent a day at the Home. They drove there and back in covered brakes, and, although the weather was not all that could be desired, had a very happy and enjoyable time. At the end of the year we had a most elaborate Christmas Tree and Sale of fancy and useful articles, which served the double purpose of giving a delightful Christmas Treat to the children, and bringing a welcome addition to our funds, without which we should have come very badly off. Our grateful thanks are due to all those who helped in this work. We hope this year to have a Bazaar, as well as a large Christmas Tree, if our kind friends will again help us. We shall be most grateful to them for any contributions, for indeed it takes many months of work to do all this. Articles for the Bazaar, such as women's big aprons, underclothing, men's and children's garments, as well as dolls, books, toys, &c., will be most welcome. We must not omit to mention that the Penny Bank has continued to make steady progress, and it may give some idea of the amount of work that even this one department involves to state that over £250 has been deposited and drawn out in the year, entailing 3239 entries. We cannot review the work of the year without recalling the great loss we have sustained by the death of General Sir Robert Phayre, who so generously assisted us, and whose genial presence will be so greatly missed at our Annual Meeting, at which he had so often presided. As will be seen by our Balance Sheet our funds are very low, and the accumulated deficit is an increasing menace to the continuance of the work. In view of this we confidently ask our friends for increased support. We earnestly wish to make the Institute a centre of happiness and blessing to those whose lives are so dark and sad in this crowded neighbourhood, and we rejoice that in some considerable measure it has fulfilled this purpose, and that many can say as one of our old members recently did, "I thank God constantly that ever I went to the 'Red, White and Blue.'"

E. P. COLEMAN, 416, Harrow Road, W.

The Report (annexed) gives the substance of much of the interview so I give it:—

Membership

The members pay 6^d entrance and 2^d a week. There are about 200 names on the books, the attendance being about 70 to 80 an evening during the winter, dropping off during the summer, when the place is only open two nights a week - Closed for a month.

The lads are mainly horse boys, van boys and similar occupations. Nearly all live in Pentonville. Take them from 14 to 18 years of age.

The girls are of a similar class; some are sisters of the lads. They are more easily managed but individually there is more to be done for the boys. Very difficult to get the girls to rise to anything beyond dress. On the other hand the boys are willing to learn altho' they cannot carry on educational classes successfully. The reason for this being that the lads work so late & are so exhausted that they have no energy for study after work is done. Boy have said to her "I have been working like a nigger. I don't understand it & I can't take it in". They cannot sit still & do mental work. Had a few coming to their home to have lessons. One is learning french, music & singing.

Home Influence

Most of the lads are contented as they are. They know they have to do the work & they just get through it.

The homes have a great influence upon them. While you may find a bad boy come from a good home; yet wherever you find a superior kind of boy, you know he has a good home.

As a rule the boys are better educated than the girls. The mothers keep the girls at home as much as they can & they can manage 2 or 3 days a fortnight as a rule. The boys however are packed off to school to get them out of the way. This process tells as they grow up.

As the lads grow older a good many pass into the Army. Miss Jay thinks it is a good thing for them. They get set up & are taken away from the drink. It makes men of them. They seldom go willingly however but are forced to it. The custom of paying parents for their food leads to it. The lad gets out of work & then cannot pay. "Father looks at every mouthful I eat" said one, and the question with the parents is "How much can I get out of
of

Charitable Relief

of them. Attributes it to the fearful selfishness of the men: the mothers have to concur in it & get hardened to it. The working men are very hard & keep as much for themselves as they can.

Many marry very early. Think it very good if they wait until 23 years of age. Many marry at 18 & 20. Fight against it but it is partly due to the payment for home system & as soon as they can pay for a room they start. Have no ambition to have a house of their own.

Very few go to any church or chapel; either the young people or their parents. Those who do not come to the Institute on Sunday, "go walking out" with each other".

In cases of illness they visit the homes & also visit absentees.

Some relief is given in connection with the women's meeting but this is done privately. The chief expenditure under this head is for Country Holidays which figures for £35 in the accounts. Send children for a fortnight in the country & last year sent 30 women. At first, used to send free but

Last year charged 2/6 for each one. This year the women will have to pay 8/- each. Sends them to Mrs Cholley's Home at Lancing. The lads & lassies are sent to the R.S.V. Homes. Miss Jay thinks the expenditure is amply justified and 'nothing pays like it' e.g. in the improved condition & vigour of the people. However they are obliged to make increased charges, partly thro' the state of their finances.

Of the Religious agencies mentioned were:
Vernon Baptist. Mr Moore is doing well.
St James, Pentonville. Mr Stubbs is a very good man, but no body will go to his church.
Mr Wardrop (All Saints ^{Caledonian Road}) is best known in the district. He certainly does work. Miss Jay told an amusing story about a visit she paid to his church one Christmas morning when one of the girls in her class was to be married. There were 30 or more couples to be united. The marriage service was said 3 times, on each occasion with as many couples crowded in front of the communion rail as possible. Mr Wardrop stood at one end

Religious Agencies

Pentonville Manages

and the curate at the other & both read the marriage service quickly together - "gabbled" Miss Jay said, and "if it had been in Arabic they could have understood it as well." In one case the bridegroom being a little nervous, the best man was pushed in front & nearly married, despite his protestations "No, no." These at length attracted the clergyman's attention & after a question the real bridegroom was pulled forward & the ceremony proceeded. Miss Jay thought it was a free marriage but was told afterward that the "clerk looked sharp after the fees".

As to the work. Miss J. says that both boys & girls are improving. At first in the girls class, "you could not hear yourself speak." Today the public opinion is orderly. The lads are also better & altho' she knows that many of them use bad language outside, she has never heard a foul word in the building & they show every respect to the other ladies & herself. Some are converted & join neighbouring churches & if they get on they leave the rougher element at the Institute & go to one of the polytechnics. Miss Jay mentioned the Northampton Institute but did not know where it was.

Interview with Mr J. Dell, Princeton Co.
Board School.

Mr Dell has been Headmaster of the Princeton Co School for 16 years. During that time he says the neighbourhood has become distinctly poorer and especially so during the last two or three years; this he thinks is proved by the increasing difficulty in keeping up the average of attendance at the school, by the constantly growing necessity for free dinners, and by the deterioration in the clothing of the children. When he came the average attendance was about 80; now it has fallen to 70: this he attributes however partly to the effect of free education: in the older days parents were keen to get their money's worth: but it is also partly due to the character of the parents who here are increasing costers, street sellers, theatre goers, and casuals. The two great causes of poverty are drink and overcrowding: as to the drink Mr D. is struck by the large proportion of mothers who smell of beer when they come to see him: as to the overcrowding it has been greatly increased by demolition in the neighbourhood.

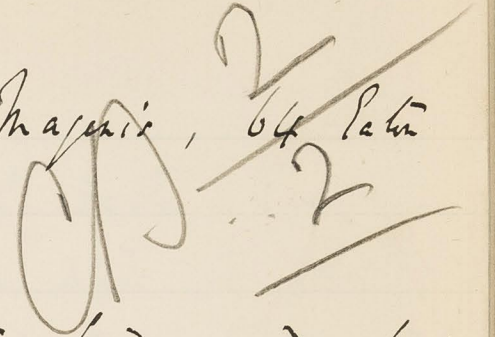

75
them displaced for the most-part. many wandering in among their neighbours.

Of the churches in the neighbourhood Mr D. spoke in high terms of St. John, Red Lion Sq (St. John Convent). here the poor are thoroughly well looked after.
From St. Alban's he gets no children, but here too he believes that the activity of the clergy and workers is endless.

Here as at other similar schools, the children all learn at the earliest possible age, and according to Mr D. the chief occupation of the boys is that of selling newspapers in the street: the rate too with which a few pence can be picked up there is a great cause of truancy while at school.

Interview with Lady Louisa Murray, ² of Peter Sq.

Lady Louisa Murray is the founder and chief responsible manager of the Rehearsal Club, the nature of which will be gathered from the Report which I append.

The Club has been going for 5 years and has just moved into good premises next the Alhambra: it began in Miss Mordaunt's Club in Soho but that was found too far from Theatre Lane and it moved to inadequate premises in St. Martin's Court.

The object of the Club is not so much to raise, as to prevent, from falling: the first members therefore were chosen with great care and members are now only admitted on introduction from others: in spite of these precautions there was a tendency at first to singing, dancing, and roudism, and even now it is sometimes necessary to expel a member for drink or foul language, but the general feeling of the Club supports order and morality in the Club, though as long as girls behave themselves in the Club no enquiry is made as to their morals.

The influence exercised is moral rather than spiritual: no attempt has ever been made to hold services, and it is found best not even to mention religion in the club: the members were very indignant. Even that a text was put up on the walls.

The girls are very reticent and talk seldom for their addresses, but with a few it is possible to be more confidential and to follow up their lives. A majority ~~now~~ day L.M. think do not live with parents or relations.

The Club attracts a better class than ~~anywhere~~ Home, the Theatrical Mission when the morals and manners are at a low level.

~~Like a~~ Like most efforts to introduce anything in the nature of mission work into "the profession" the Club was at first tabooed by the actors: but now Mrs Fox, Mrs Kendall and Miss Wainwright ~~are~~ being on the Committee and most of the leaders of the profession among the subscribers.

("Daily Mail" Special.)

An "At Home" has just been held at the newly-taken and newly-furnished rooms of the Rehearsal Club, 29, Leicester-square—an institution doing an excellent work for the young women of the stage who rank as minor actresses.

Smart carriages drove up to the door of the building (which is next to the Alhambra) by the dozen, and grooms and footmen formed a line through which exquisitely-dressed women passed to rustle their dainty gowns up two flights of stairs. There were duchesses and marchionesses, and the wives of London managers, and some of the prettiest and cleverest actresses on the stage, all come to be welcomed by Lady Louisa Magenis and Mrs. Mayne, and to drink tea and wish well to the club, of which the lamented Duchess of Teck was lately president.

In the two pretty rooms were pictures given by Sir Henry Irving and Mr. George Alexander, books by Miss Braddon, and charming things by many other well-known people—and intended to make cheerful the hours spent at the club by the members, for whom the resting-place has proved such a boon.

The Rehearsal Club is always "at home" to its members, and when a lady representative of the "Daily Mail" called there yesterday she found many young girls eating simple, wholesome luncheons, reading, writing, and even playing games, all happy and well provided for, according to the aim of the club.

As to that aim, it is easily explained. The comforts of the club are available for the actresses playing small parts and getting small salaries, the higher grade in the chorus and ballet at the theatres and music-halls which surround Leicester-square—in fact, all those girls to whom omnibus fares are an object, who live far from the theatres at which they rehearse in the daytime and act in the evening, and who, until the Rehearsal Club was started, had no resource in wet weather or fine but to wander about the street after rehearsal until it was time for the evening performance.

At the club they can have food at nominal prices, and opportunity for rest and reading. The subscription is small, so that the club must be actually supported from outside. Mrs. Mayne, 101, Queen's-gate, is the treasurer.

This Club continues to justify its existence by the increasing use made of it. There is none other in London

The comforts of the club are available to actresses playing small parts and salaries, the higher grade in the ballet at the theatres and music-halls round Leicester-square—in fact, a place to whom omnibus fares are an object, far from the theatres at which they perform the daytime and act in the evening until the Rehearsal Club was started. available for the special class of professionals who frequent it, viz., minor actresses and the higher grade of employées in the Chorus and Ballet at the surrounding Theatres and Music Halls; these are chiefly situated within five minutes' walk of the Club which thus meets a want long felt by those coming from a distance.

Many formerly complained that living at the far end of the town or in the suburbs they could not return home in the middle of the day, that there was no quiet place close at hand to which they could go after the fatigue of morning Rehearsals for rest and refreshments; and that, however tired and exhausted, they had no resource, fine or wet, but to stroll about the streets for long weary hours until the time came for the evening Performance. This Club has proved a great boon to them, for their lives are more laborious than is generally considered by the public; besides which, the overcrowding of the theatrical profession makes the lives of many of those engaged in it very precarious for months together.

The Club is open to its Members from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m., at a Subscription of 1s. 6d. per quarter, and it has been used by 108 of them during the past year, notwithstanding that the premises till now have been very small, for want of adequate funds. Tea, Coffee, Cocoa, Bread and Butter, are supplied at low charges, and any food brought in by Members can be cooked on payment of a small fee. Books, Magazines, Games and Writing Materials are provided.

The Committee desire to express their sense of great obligation to Mr. George Alexander for his valuable assistance last March in getting up a Drawing Room Meeting, which was honoured by the presence of Her late Royal Highness, The Princess Mary, and at which he took the chair. This Meeting was held (by kind permission of the Marchioness of Londonderry) at Londonderry House. Mrs. Beerbohm Tree largely contributed to its success by her sympathetic speech,

Mr C. J. Engvall, Missionary in charge of the Scandinavian West End Mission, 17 Percy St, Tottenham Court Road.

Mr E. is a Swede, speaking English fluently but with a slight accent. He has been in England 18 months having been a missionary on the Congo ^{and in Russia} previously.
He is supported by a Swedish Missionary Society.
About 36 years of age, Mr E. appears to be a quiet & unassuming yet capable man.

The Mission is hardly established as yet on a sound financial basis. The house was formerly a club. The ground floor rooms have been fitted as a hall (seating 100) with a reading room behind. There are two well furnished drawing rooms on the first floor.
(Used by the D. M. C. A.)
The missionary lives on the second floor & the third floor is let to young Scandinavians. A cafe & smoking room is fitted up in the basement.

The meetings and other agencies are described in the report attached to next page.....

Mr E. says there are many Scandinavians mostly tailors, in the neighbourhood, mostly in Soho

Knows at least 30 young men who have come over this year.

83
They live in Carnaby, Poland + Pulteney Streets. Also live in the Cleveland Street district but not in such numbers.
Beside tailors, there are some cabinetmakers, and watchmakers and a number of Swedish waiters, the latter being the poorest class. Swedish servant girls are living in the district to the west of St Portland Street + these also attend the meetings

The A considerable number are constantly coming over + Mr E. thinks the influx now is greater than ever. ^{known} Mostly young men but families also come over. He used to visit the vessels and now they have cards placed in the boats so that the immigrants know where to come.

He visits the workhouses and homes and also in the neighbourhood. Showed me a book with the names + addresses of his people in sheet order.

As a rule, the people do not need relief as they have work. A few go wandering about the world and they come here seeking help. They are referred to the Scandinavian Benevolent Society, which helps all deserving cases.

~~So far~~, They ^{have} got a good number of visitors during the evening at the beginning of the year.
Numbers have now fallen off as men work until 10 pm

8

Mentioned demoralising effect of London life upon the some of the young men. He knew some, who were total abstainers & belonged to the Band of Hope in Sweden, who when they came here went to the clubs & took to drink. He attributes it to the fact that they get away from their friends and their influence, whilst the 'publichouses everywhere' are a constant temptation.

Thinks the reading room is successful but the Y.M.C.A. is not. The latter was an attempt to reach the Swedish clerks. These however live in the suburbs and go home when business is over.

The Scandinavians in the East end are looked after by two City Missionaries and other agencies so that he confines himself to the West.

Before they came to Percy Street, they had a meeting at the L.C.M. Hall in Trith Street, Soho. Mr Pinn's.

REPORT FOR 1897.

IN sending out this, our First Annual Report, we desire to humbly express our deep gratitude to Almighty God for the manifold blessing He has bestowed upon our feeble efforts to extend His Kingdom among the vast number of Scandinavians in the West-end of London during the past year.

We wish also to recall with gratitude the tokens of sympathy towards our work manifested by Their Majesties the King and Queen of Sweden and Norway through their donations, and also by H.R.H. Prince Eugen of Sweden and Norway, who, besides his donation, honoured us with a visit on the 24th of June.

Our gratitude is not less sincere to all those of our friends who have so generously assisted us financially and otherwise, and it is with a sense of duty as well as of privilege that we now present to you this short account of the work of the Scandinavian West-End Mission during the first year of its existence.

The experience during this year has confirmed our belief in the deep need of a work of this character, and we feel thus encouraged to still increase our efforts and extend the field.

The work is threefold—Spiritual, Intellectual and Temporal. |

Believing as we do in the supremacy of the Soul to the body, we naturally seek in the first place to provide for that which appertains to the Spiritual need of man, foremost of which is Religion.

Thus we have arranged

GOSPEL MEETINGS

every Sunday and Wednesday, which have been well attended, especially the former, the attendances having varied from about 20 to 70, with an average number of 40. At these meetings, short and practical addresses have been given by various friends, among whom have been a number of Scandinavian missionaries, who have visited London on their way to the mission-field. The constant and regular attendance has been a cause of joy to us, as it shows not only a general appreciation of these meetings, but, above all, a desire to know God, whom to know is Eternal Life.

Every month there has been

which has proved to be a great success, both as regards the average attendance, and the nature of the programme, the latter including refreshments, music and a short lecture on various interesting subjects. These entertainments have been the means of intercourse between countrymen away from home, old memories have been revived and everybody has thus felt refreshed.

Before leaving the intellectual part of our work we wish to draw your attention to the comfortable sitting-room, where, owing to the kind liberality of some of our friends, there is a number of Swedish, Norwegian, Danish, Finnish and also English newspapers and magazines, as well as a library, which is, however, far from perfect. We would therefore appeal to those of our friends whose collection of books begins to be a cause of anxiety to them owing to its considerable dimensions. They might easily be relieved of their trouble by sending a number of their volumes to the library of the Scandinavian West-End Mission, where they will be read and appreciated by our young men during many a lonely hour.

We pass now on to the temporal part of our work, foremost of which is

THE HOME DEPARTMENT.

Recognizing the value of being able to offer our young men a Christian home upon their arrival in London, most of whom have just started on their way through life and consequently have no experience of the dangers and temptations of a large city, we decided to use the upper floor for this purpose. We have thus accommodation for 10 boarders and we are pleased to say that during the greater part of the year all the beds have been occupied. The number of young men who have thus stayed with us have been 30, some of whom have been here only a short time and others since the commencement. Although the charge for lodging has been only four shillings per week the net income to the mission from this department has been £52 12s. 3d., which is very gratifying.

THE TEMPERANCE CAFÉ AND SMOKING ROOM

is much appreciated and has been the means of keeping our young men at home, often when they might otherwise have visited some of the numerous gambling and drinking "dens" of the neighbourhood.

Last Spring some of our friends formed which has already 30 members. There can be no doubt as to the importance of such a movement in a neighbourhood where drink, with all its curse, is so general. We hope that this small Association may grow in numbers and influence through the vitality of its members.

We are glad to report that through the initiative of some of our lady-friends, a Dorcas Association was started for the benefit of the Mission, which enabled us to have a Sale last autumn, with the gratifying result of about £12. Besides the financial assistance thereby given, it proves an interest in the Mission, which cannot but encourage us.

During the year we have also had some

some of which we wish to briefly record.

On June 24th, we had the honour of receiving H.R.H. Prince Eugen of Sweden and Norway during his visit to London, in connection with the Celebrations of the Diamond Jubilee of Her Majesty Queen Victoria. Needless to say, this was a memorable occasion, and the deep and practical interest which H.R.H. took in the work, as well as the gracious way in which he made himself acquainted with the conditions of his countrymen in the neighbourhood, could not but leave a most favorable impression.

On the 20th of September we had, in co-operation with Rev. J. Palmér, Chaplain to the Swedish and Norwegian legation, a Festival in connection with the Jubilee of His Majesty The King of Sweden and Norway. Our hall was crowded with Swedes and Norwegians, and during the evening speeches were made by Rev. J. Palmér, Rev. G. Barman and Mr. C. J. Engvall. It was a most enjoyable occasion and the enthusiasm of those present proved that their loyal and patriotic feelings had not diminished during their residence abroad. A telegram of congratulation was also dispatched to His Majesty.

Christmas being the season when absence from home and relatives is most keenly felt, we were anxious to celebrate it in a way which would remind our friends of the home of their childhood. Owing to the limited space of our own rooms, the entertainment took place at St. Anne's School-room, Soho, kindly placed at our disposal by the Rector, The Rev. J. H. Cardwell, who has on many other occasions shown great consideration towards the Scandinavian population of the neighbourhood.

The arrangements were made in co-operation with Rev. J. PALMÉR, who has always, during the previous years, had similar gatherings there, and the number who responded to the invitation was about 200.

The proceedings of the evening, which included tea and various other refreshments, short addresses, music, &c., were apparently much enjoyed, and a general satisfaction was expressed.

Before concluding this Report, we have to draw your special attention to our

FINANCIAL STATEMENT.

Owing to the utter impossibility of finding a suitable house of moderate rent and in a central position, which was most essential to our work, we were compelled to take the present one in its former condition, which was far from what it is now. It had been used originally as a pianoforte factory, and you will therefore readily understand that some thorough alterations and repairs had to be done before it could be used for our purpose. This the landlord would not do on any considerations if he should let the house at the very moderate rent which we are now paying, and as the house was very suitable, both in regard to design and position, we decided to secure it.

Thus we had to spend the sum of £277 18s. 4d. for repairs, besides £195 17s. 11d. for furniture, &c., making a total of £473 16s. 3d. The house is taken on a lease for three years, with our option to renew it for another seven or fourteen years. It has proved in every respect most satisfactory, and we are fully convinced that the amount spent on repairs will gradually be recovered in the low rent.

Besides this heavy item of expenditure, there are also one or two smaller sums which will not occur again, wherefore we do not expect that we shall be compelled in the future to appeal to our friends for more than about £150 per annum. Out of this sum about £70 has already been secured by annual subscriptions, wherefore the actual sum still to be collected yearly is only about £80.

You will, however, notice that there is still a balance due to the Treasurer of over £200 for last year's expenses. We venture, therefore, to appeal to your kindness and generosity to relieve us of this heavy burden. Taking into consideration the great need of a home of this character, we venture to express the hope that our appeal will not be in vain, but that we shall receive a sufficient support to enable us to continue our efforts in improving the spiritual and social conditions of the vast Scandinavian population in the West-end of London.

DANISH MEETINGS.

Rev. A. V. STORM, Chaplain to the Danish Legation writes as follows:—"During the winters 1897 and 1898 we have had meetings on the first Thursday of every month in the comfortable rooms of The Scandinavian West-End Mission, 17, Percy Street. I have in this way been able to meet many whom it otherwise would have been impossible for me to see regularly. This place has, therefore, been a great help for our Church work and also the means of a closer friendship between our members.

Through the kind assistance of friends these evenings have been very enjoyable. We feel at home there, as the Trustees of the Mission have shown great liberality and consideration towards us, not only in granting us the free use of the rooms, but also by being willing always to meet our wishes.

These Danish meetings, to which every Scandinavian is of course welcome, are only a small part of the work done at No. 17, Percy Street, and, therefore, I do not hesitate in saying that the gentlemen who have started the Mission should be helped to carry on the work for the benefit of the many Scandinavians in London."

Mrs Wm Wheatley. Sec. & Supt of the St Giles' Christian Mission. Centrl Office, 1 Brooke St, Holborn. E

Mrs Wheatley has been connected with the Mission for over 30 years. Originally an assistant to Mrs George Hatton, the founder, he succeeded to the charge when illness compelled Mrs Hatton to retire. A grey headed active man of about 60, with small pointed beard; keen eyes, sharp, decided features but kindly expression. He appears to have centralised the whole work of the mission, both the Press and ordinary agencies in himself and when I hinted that to save his time it might well to see some local workers at the Missions, he said that he knew all, & everything was done from the office.

I found him a difficult subject as altho' he talked rapidly when started, he needed to be questioned on each point, whilst with the varied work, it was difficult to decide the essential points as one went on, the difficulty being increased by the fact that he has given me a Report (for 1896) and would occasionally reply "You will find that in the Report." (100 pages)

 Report. As I find equal difficulty in reporting the interview & solve it by placing all that refers to the work amongst the prisoners here & that relating to the ordinary mission work in the Book (LXIII. p. 97) for District 2. in which area ^(three) most of the Missions are situate. . . Mr. He has a curious habit of ending nearly every sentence with "D'ye see" or "D'ye understand".

The Mission has ¹⁶ 15 buildings, photographs of which ¹⁵ are given on the cover of the Report: of these 13 are in London. These are:

See case mentioned on page 101.

In 1896, 18300 accepted this invitation and 5905 signed the pledge & 5795 were assisted in other ways.

Mr Wheatly is also allowed to see the prisoners in the gaol; any prisoner expressing a desire to see him being allowed to do so. ~~He~~ is now so well known to the criminal class that most of them ask to see him before coming out. This morning he saw 30 to 35. They make all sorts of requests. Have no shoes, or no trousers or don't know what to do for a lodging.

If he finds their stories are right, he will assist them but never gives them money. ^{When} if they come out they are told to come to the Mission office & if they have not the clothes &c in stock orders are given on tradesmen.

Some account of this work however is given in the report & I do not need to repeat it here. The thing that surprised me about the Mission was the way in which the work is centralised and worked in conjunction with the police and prison authorities

It is practically on the footing of a department of the administration. Mr Wheatly receives the official papers with description of the prisoners ~~to~~ with photos, the lists of prisoners discharged &c. These are all filled and he is able to trace the career of any applicant. "I can easily find them out if they tell me a lie" said Mr Wheatly, "they know it." Hence he does not think they deceive him much.

The police also bring boys to the Mission & charged under the first offenders act and women who are found in the streets. The following is a copy of order issued by Mr Munro when Commissioner of Police. It is still in force

NEW POLICE ORDER.

So many poor women and young girls have recently been found by the police, wandering about the streets and at railway stations, friendless and without even the means of obtaining a shelter, some of them having travelled long distances from their homes, that Mr. Monro, the Chief Commissioner of Police, has issued an order that all such are to be at once taken to the nearest police-station, in order that the Inspector on duty may communicate with the Secretary of the St. Giles's Christian Mission, who will receive them into one of the Mission Homes until permanently relieved and cared for, the Mission defraying all the expenses.

At the women's prison (Holloway) they have a female worker. She interviews the women and provides them with special tram tickets so that they can go to the women's home.

The boys when taken into the homes are clothed but not in a distinctive dress and situations are obtained for them. They live at one of the homes & a collector draws their wages; out of which the lads are allowed 4/- a week pocket money, a portion is kept for to pay for their keep & the balance banked for them. After the interview I went over two of the homes. They are plainly furnished & with the exception of the ^{offices and} the ~~living~~ a sitting room, ^(all the rooms) are used for sleeping purposes. The lads sleep in hammocks, which are folded up every morning and placed on supports during the day, the idea being that no place should be available to hide stolen property.

The Staff of the Mission numbers 63 paid workers and they have about 100 voluntary workers. Most of these are drawn from the Mission Church.

As to the objects of the work, Mrs W. was emphatic. The spiritual part is the first thing. We take and help them to reformation and to employment but cannot be successful without a change in the people. The help given is but a means to ~~the~~ this; they have nothing else in view.

I was not satisfied with the interview & still less so when I came to read the report, which is very general and rarely gives any figures as to attendances etc. Talking about the Mission subsequently with Mr John Kirk, he confirmed my ideas about Mrs Whistley's management. As the strongest man at Mr Hatton's retirement, he had succeeded and had drawn all the threads into his own hands. He had quarrelled with his committee & was now working without one. The Mission work had been ~~also~~ largely sacrificed for the work amongst the prisoners.

Interview with Mr F. H. Jackson, P.O.S.,
St. James, Soho, and West-Strand Committee.

Mr Jackson, who is a ^{young} barrister, has been Hon. Sec. of this committee for rather more than a year: but seems to have a good knowledge of the district and the workers in it.

Sherrill is a member of the Committee and though he is rather tinged with Socialism, Mr J. thinks that his look is on the whole exceedingly ~~was~~ accurate in its facts. There is no doubt that the poorer parts of the district owing to demolitions tend to become constantly more crowded: the rents, naturally high owing to position and demand, are also forced up by the outrageous sums which people are prepared to give for houses for disorderly purposes: this week Mr J. has heard of a house in Soho of which the ordinary rent is about £60 ^{per year} for which the landlord was offered £10 a week if he would make no conditions as to use.

As to the work of the Churches :-

St. James' Westminster (Bishop Dary) work left largely to Scripture Reader and Mission Women. a great deal of money worked in bad relief.

St. Thomas Regent St. (Mr. Dainbridge). Very emotional: hostile to C. O. S.

St. Peter St. Bride's (Mr. Farmiloe): Very High Church: small funds: don't know much of their work.

St. Luke, Berwick St. (Mr. Oxford): Mr. O. black and idle: abrupt, rough and rude in manner: Socialistic in ideas. Parish run by Miss Holman, a wealthy lady.

St. Anne Soho (Mr. Cardwell): Mr. C. head and shoulders above other clergy in district: sensible, courteous, kind: has been ill lately and the relief of the parish has suffered.

St. Martin (Mr. Little): good man and does good careful work.

St. Mary - le Strand (Mr. Hillendon): Mr. H. a rich man: also large parish funds. Comes to C. O. S. meetings but finds no care for parish.

11
he is impulsive: abrupt and off-hand in manner.

Of the non-Cons no one is of any importance except the West-Enda Mission: Sister Katherine ~~of~~ is an excellent and most sensible woman, but many of the other Sisters are most foolish and unwise.

The R.C.'s in the district work hard but a large proportion of the R.C. element especially the foreigners, are very slack in their duties.

This was one of the districts chosen for the operations of the Friendly Workers: but the committee has collapsed, and while in operation ran on most of its cases to the C.O.S.

July 15th

Interview with Mr W. H. Coste, National Vigilance Assocⁿ, 267 Strand.

3/24

Mr Coste has been Sec. of the Nat. Vig.
Assocⁿ since its formation 13 years ago. The work of the Assocⁿ is non-Instructional. I told Mr C. that I wished as far as possible to confine our conversation to London, but he had a difficulty in keeping within bounds.

Mr C. gave me a good deal of literature which I have placed with the other Reports.

The Association as a corporate body makes no attempt at rescue work on the streets: its object is now to educate public opinion, to stir up the authorities, and to keep them up to their work.
In this policy Mr C. claims that the Assocⁿ has met with great success, the increased activity of the ^{in proximity of} streets due to the stir which the Assocⁿ has made. Asked whether as the result of the increased activity there were fewer women on the streets Mr C. said "I can't answer that question" and he was not prepared to admit, or even stoutly denied that the policy had led to the introduction and growth of Massage Establishments and the increased use of Restaurants. As to the Massage he admitted that all the places were booked, but he believes that they would have come into existence in any case; they cater for a different class of men than those who take women off the streets. As to present the Assocⁿ can see no way of touching them.

As to restaurants - they have always been largely used, and Mr C. has no reason to suppose that they are now so numerous as at any previous time.

With regard to the prosecution of brothels, the policy of the Assocⁿ is to induce the vestries and the police to take the matter up; they find that the police are much more ready to work with the vestries than with them. The object of prosecution should be to go on forcing till the business no longer pays, and dozens of brothel keepers have been forced out of existence since the Assocⁿ started.

As to the women in the streets, the aim of the Assocⁿ is to have solicitation made an offer on the part of the male as well as the female. But on the whole question of solicitation Mr C. admitted that there was a difficulty owing to the ~~un~~ unsympathetic attitude of the police.

Mr C. himself spoke very sensibly on the subject.
"Many of our people" he said "are dead against the police; but they forget that the policeman is a mechanic, not a missionary; he is usually a young man from the country, often ~~with~~ ~~the~~ unmarried and it is not reasonable to expect him to be keen about the question." As to actual ~~now~~ payment to the police of the women Mr C. thought there was very little and such as there was mostly in kind rather than in money. Another difficulty in the way is the lack of sympathy among magistrates, especially when the Assocⁿ has anything to do with the case.

As to rescue work Mr C. confirmed the opinion obtained elsewhere that it can only be done among the English girls; the foreigners

119 are 'professionals' in a way which is rare among the English: they come over, save money, and return to their native land: but the English girl drifts on to the streets, and even more than ~~her~~ ^{her} ~~returning~~ ^{returning} ~~it~~ ^{it} is the object of the Assoc.
to prevent: "to let girls have a chance to show them the precipice which is before them".

Against reputation of any kind the Assoc. is of course dead set. Looking upon it as both immoral, and useless for reducing the extent of the evil.

No one who goes about with his eyes open can believe that the work of the Assoc. has had much if any ^{as far as reducing prostitution goes} good effect: the streets are as full of women as ever and ~~not~~ unless the number of women is reduced to close this or that brothel is obviously futile: indecent looks abound as much as ever in Holywell St. and in the last year or two the increase in shops of the Holywell St. type has been patent around Charing Cross: the chief publisher of indecent books has boldly come out into the Strand: and yet in spite of these facts

181
Mr Cook talked in the most optimistic tone of the enormous masses of poverty; of the awakening of public feeling, etc. His attitude indeed was that of so many of the religious bodies "We are doing a good work and God cannot fail to make it prosper": they just work on in faith:
"It may seem that there is an almost insuperable mountain which we can't break down." said
Mr C. "but we shall get through it somehow:
I don't know how."

Report of an interview with the Hon. Maude Stanley, at her residence in Smith Square, Westminster. (E.A.)

Miss Stanley began with a criticism on the method of the inquiry, urging that it was impossible for anyone to master the subject of the recreation of working-girls by interviews and visits to clubs, and repeating an offer that I understood had been already made to Mr. Booth, to write a chapter on this subject. I suggested that, instead of having a conversation with me, she should write a memorandum on the subject, but this she was unwilling to do. She would write a chapter, but not a memorandum for use. Her object is that a subject, the importance of which grows upon her every year, should be adequately treated. "It is of immense importance", and feeling that she does understand it she is anxious to have it dealt with, with full and intimate knowledge.

When we began to talk about Soho, she at once referred to Sherwell's book, saying how very untruthful and one-sided she felt it to be, and her last injunction to me, after more than an hour's conversation, was not to forget her opinion on this book. It appears that she has seen ~~xxx~~ Sherwell and told him her opinion on his work, and in the second edition he has put in some qualifying paragraph in consequence of what she said. But this is not enough: it amounts to little and does not condone the greater offence of the book itself. On the other hand she gave great praise to Mrs. Bosanquet's "Rich and Poor".

P.S. On page 4 of the Report of the Soho Club, there is a criticism of Sherwell in para. 3, and another opinion on the district itself in para. 4 on the same page that goes a long way towards an endorsement of the book. The real complaint against Sherwell is that he has given a one-sided picture.

On pages 1 and 8 of the Magazine a list is given of the London, and a very few other, clubs affiliated to the Girls' Club Union, and through this list Miss Stanley ran, commenting on each. Many were described as being very small, but most as being in a satisfactory condition. Among those praised were the S. Pancras Club (Miss Paget), and the West Central Jewish Club in Dean St. The latter has 206 members, and illustrates as well as any thing the tremendous influx of Jews into Soho. This Miss Stanley regrets, because of its absorption of housing accommodation, and because it makes it harder for the Christian girls to get a living. Nearly all the Jewesses are engaged in the tailoring trade and this is the predominating employment of the members of Miss Stanley's own club.

The various clubs in the Union have different characteristics, determined by the localities, and the special aims of their various leaders. But there is a family resemblance traceable in all, and doubtless the influence of Miss Stanley herself makes itself widely felt. She considers that no club can be really of great use without classes, and at Greek St. these are quite looked upon as part of the regular club life. They would be greatly missed if discontinued. The only distinctive features of the Greek St. Club are found in the great variety of ages of the members; in the great mixture of classes that it presents; and in the inclusion among the members of a certain number of Roman Catholics.

There is never any trouble from cliques. All mix well together, and this has been the club tradition from the beginning. She traces the absence of difficulty of this kind largely to her own work in the district before the Club was started, when she had rambling parties made up of all sorts of people from the district and out of it, and in connexion with which the absence of all cliquiness from the beginning was insisted upon. It was at that time that Miss Stanley was working as a district visitor in Soho. She has known the district for more than 20 years, and her own club dates from 1880.

Although Miss Stanley attaches so much importance to classes in clubs, education is by no means their raison d'etre from her point of view, and she told with great satisfaction a story of long-ago days when she had a party of mothers in the district: Well, Miss, they said on one occasion "You have taught us one thing at any rate; you have shown us how to have a holiday". This Miss Stanley regarded as a great tribute, and it has been one of her great objects throughout to teach people how to get their pleasures in a rational way. On the use of the club as a source of recreation she said a good deal, and considers that she has solved the problem that both the working girl and the clubs presented. The secret of her success, she said, had been the co-operation of ladies. This had done it. It has been the free and friendly intercourse that their help has made possible that has made the club so excellent a centre and made the individual influence it has exercised so strong. She illustrated this in a good many ways, both by references to particular members of the club, and by general statements. The girls have come to regard it as a matter of course that things connected with the club will be well managed and they respond as individuals. They behave well, and in general demeanour the same effect is shown: they are not shy, and they are not forward; they speak when they are spoken to".

There is no qualification for membership, except that of being a worker. Some come from a distance, sometimes ~~th~~ through removal, sometimes through having work near, and sm sometimes through having friends in the club.

Most members were connected at least nominally she t thought with some church or chapel. She could only remem - ber about 6 cases of those who were definitely adverse to such a connexion on agnostic grounds.

The report gives many particulars of the work of the Club. On p. 14 some particulars are given of the occupation of the members. A good many of the tailoresses work at home, others for "small sweaters", and a few in large workshops like Nicholl's.

The Club is open every night except Saturday. There ar 140 members. It wi l be seen from the Report that there are lodgers ⁽³⁰⁾ as well as ordinary members, but I refrained from asking detailed questions lest I should remind Miss Stanley of her belief expressed at the beginning of the talk in the uselessness of giving information! But many pleasant side-lights were thrown on the inner life of the club, such as the annua election of the member who is considered by the Club to have most deserved their confidence to the awar and wearing of the "Silver brooch", and the fact that Miss

Stanley is off to Belgium for a fortnight at the end of this month with a party of club girls. ~~XXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXXX~~
 The cost of the expedition will be £3-10s. and the rule will be that they pay for themselves, although some will be helped privately.

When members marry they are eligible as Hon. members, and pay a smaller subscription.

Miss Stanley spoke well of Mr. Cardwell, and mentioned Sister Catherine at Lincoln House, from where however she thought too much was given, and Mr. Harrison, the Baptist. In earlier days she had a dispute with Father Vere, who threatened to excommunicate R.C. girls who went to the club. On this Miss S. saw the Cardinal, and a kind of armed neutrality seems to have prevailed ever since. A Catholic Social Union Club has been started in Dufours Place, Golden Sq and this is affiliated. The affiliated clubs are entirely self-governing. They pay a small fee to the Union, and have certain rights of entering for competitions etc. and the Council affords useful opportunities of taking common counsel on club matters.

In the page of the Report to which reference has been made undue importance seems to be given to the Girls' Club as a redeeming influence in Soho, but it is this very quality of exaggeration that is really distasteful to Miss Stanley. It is this that has made her angry at Sherwell's "one-sided picture", and it is this that has made her speak reproachfully to Canon Gore and Canon Eyton, both of whom seem to have preached on and practically to have endorsed the biased conclusions to which Mr. Sherwell has come. Miss S. has written recently on the recreation of working-girls in the American "Outlook", and spoke very approvingly of a recent article in the Nineteenth Century by Lady A. Harben on some cognate subject. Miss Stanley has her own book on Girl Clubs, and when I left, she lent me her ~~book~~ work published anonymously in '78, with a preface from Carlyle, inserted as a sort of guarantee of good faith, on "Work about the Five Dials", which would be found, she said, to give a very different picture to that presented by Mr. Sherwell.

Seventeenth Annual Report, 1897

THIS year has been one of some anxiety and of much work for the Council of the Soho Club and Home, as we have a new Club Superintendent, and a new Matron of the Home, and to find and to establish good heads is always a matter of anxious care.

We are glad to be able to tell our friends that with both ladies we are more than content, and think they will each contribute much to the prosperity of our Institution.

Miss Garbutt left us in August 1896 to return to her family in Wisconsin. She was much regretted by the Club members, to whom she greatly endeared herself by her never failing sympathy and kindness.

Mrs. Brown, a lady who works at Shadwell kindly took charge of the Club in August, but found the distance too great in the winter, and since Christmas Miss Mundy has had charge of the Club, and we only hope nothing will take her from us, as she is so kind and judicious in her management of the Club, that she has never to find fault, and speaks in great praise of the conduct of the girls and their attention to her wishes.

Miss Stather has by her sympathetic nature and excellent management doubled the number of lodgers; we have now thirty in the Home, and are very glad if our readers will speak of our lodgings to young women in business, who can board and lodge there for 10/6 a week. We have three private rooms at 7/6 a week rent, which have been generally occupied by ladies, teachers and others wanting a place of rest for a few weeks.

We are still making use of our Home for training girls for service, and since its establishment have placed out many who are doing very well in the kitchen and in the house.

We regret that Mrs. Sidney Buxton, who has been a member of our Council for three years, has been obliged to leave, as her interest and care of the Club has been very valuable. Her place has been taken by Miss Margaret Stanley, who has also for the last three years done much for our Club and is well known and cared for by all the members.

Our Council is a working one—they know the girls, their characters, and their work, and they are, therefore, each able at the monthly meetings to take part in the management of the Club.

A book on Soho has lately been written by Mr. Sherwell, and it gives a very sad and terrible account of the poverty, overcrowding and bad health of that neighbourhood; it is a one sided picture and should be read in conjunction with our report, which shows what has been done and is doing for these dwellers in Soho.

The overcrowding is true, the ill-health resulting from that overcrowding is true! the fact that there is a larger per centage of phthisis in Soho to any other part of London is true! that there is more vice, and drinking, and gambling in Soho than in any other area is true! and yet when such institutions as our Club are well carried on even in such an area, we can see the beautiful lives of these working girls carried on fearlessly in the midst of so much evil. They are as the tall ears of wheat in the field of tares, and the prosperity of the Club shown in these members, who are good and virtuous and God-fearing, safe from the temptations that surround them, owing to their love of their club and their happiness when there, must be a blessed return for any labours given by the Council or their many kind friends who have during these past years befriended our Soho Club.

Our most grateful thanks are given to those who have given country holidays, who have given musical evenings, concerts and dramatic performances, tea parties on Saturdays to our girls, to the teachers of our classes and those who have sent to us presents of different kinds, Fruit, flowers, vegetables, books, concert and Zoological tickets, details of all which are given further on. These kind friends have, in conjunction with the Council, sown and watered the good seed which is bringing forth fruit abundantly.

We grieve to say we have lost three members by death, the members joining with sympathetic sorrow in the grief of the relatives.

Marriages we have had, and very happy ones, of members old in the annals of the Club though young in years. We have now 19 married members whose names are written in the bower of roses in our Club-room.

We have 21 members who have been from 10 to 17 years in the Club, and many who are not serving on the committee are always ready to help in the Club when called upon. The married members and those over ten years membership pay 2/6 a year, the others 2/- a quarter. Committee members and servants pay 1/- a quarter.

The Home.

We have in the year had 91 lodgers in the home 67 came for a few days or weeks in search of employment, others have been permanent lodgers, their occupations are to be seen on page 14.

Many of our lodgers spend the Sundays with their families in the neighbourhood of London, at a distance that would not allow of their coming in daily to work. We have had several ladies in the Home during the year; they generally pay 15/- a week for board and lodging, but may pay for board separately if preferred, a private room costing 7/6 a week. We have beds at 3/- a week, others at 4/- and 5/- The price of the food is very moderate. Nurses and ladies' maids are taken in when there are vacant beds, they pay 11/6 week for board and lodging. The accounts are kept by Miss Stanley, but all the ladies make acquaintance with the lodgers, many of whom belong to the Club and share in the classes and pleasures of the girls.

That our present Matron, Miss Stather, is most admirable in her work can be seen by the fact that the average number of lodgers, for some months before she came, was 10 and that we have now 30 lodgers, and have to refuse many applicants.

We have made use of the Home also as a training place for servants, and we have now in good situations and doing very well, four girls who were trained in the Home and who are members of our Club.

The Council of the Soho Club.

This consist of ladies and gentlemen ; on them devolves the duty of taking charge of the club for a month at a time, when they should visit the homes of the new members, and go over weekly the books of the Superintendent and of the Girls' Committee. They have also during the month, to provide for the Wednesday Musical Evenings, and are present at any entertainments, or if unable to do so, arrange with other members of the Council, who will take their place. They become acquainted with every lodger in the Home. The Council meets once a month and receives the report of the Girls' Committee, and also the reports of the lady in charge of the Club, the Secretary, Treasurer, Matron, and Superintendent

The Club Committee.

These are elected each December by the ballot votes of the Club members. They all meet once a month to choose a new chairwoman and to arrange the duties of each member of the Committee, and in the intervening weeks the chairwoman and only two of the Committee meet. Their duties are attendance at the Refreshment Bar, preparation of the rooms for classes, reception of new members, and attendance in the Club, and at Concerts and Soirées. The Committee can in their monthly report make suggestions or requests to the Council. They are helped by other Club members as coadjutors. The Superintendent, keeps the books of attendance and payment at the Club and classes ; she has the general control and management of the Club.

These were elected last December.

- 1894 - Amy Fletcher, 16, Duke's Court, Bow Street, W.C.

Attendance at the Club.

We have admitted in the Club during the year 158 girls ; we have 161 now on our books, with married members. Some of them remained but a short time, finding the distance too great from their homes, and others did not get interested in the Club life. The average attendance in the Club each night has been 47, and 95 girls have attended classes. We have, as will be seen on page 15, 21 members who have been over ten years in the Club, with 19 enrolled married members.

The Guild.

This consists of 52 members, who formed a Religious Guild in 1888 with the Rev. R. Taylor as their Warden ; they undertake to do some work for others and to assemble four times a year at the Club. It was started by the desire of some who had been prepared for confirmation, and those who know the members well have seen the value of this religious bond in the elevation and earnestness of their lives.

Musical Evenings.

These are on Wednesday, when ladies and gentlemen kindly come to the Club to sing and play for an hour and a half to the members ; there have been 39 such entertainments ; occasionally the members have arranged the musical evenings themselves. We are much obliged for any offers of help and for all the kind assistance given to our Club by so many friends, who have, by their musical talent, given great pleasure to many hard worked London girls.

Dispensary.

There is not much to say that is new about the Dispensary during the past year. There have been thirteen new patients, but as many of the girls who had been patients in previous years came again, the number of visits paid amounts to 150.

One or two of the girls after having been seen at the Club were admitted as in-patients at the New Hospital for Women in order that the treatment required might be carried out thoroughly, and the results have been very satisfactory.

It seems as if the Dispensary really is to help in keeping the girls in good health and enabling them to work more steadily, and quite fulfils the expectations of those who started it.

Miss Macdonald M.B., gives her valuable and generous help to the Members on Saturdays at six o'clock; one shilling is paid on the first visit and 6d. for the following visit, and medicine is given gratis.

Finance.

We are very glad to show this year a small margin on the right side on both accounts, and to have invested in the purchase of £100 consols the donations to the building fund of our Club and Home. There are no expenses connected with the management of the Institution except in the actual work of the Superintendent, Matron, and Servants, as Miss Stanley is Treasurer, Secretary and Accountant, and Mr. Ponsonby audits the accounts, and has given his legal service in other ways to the Club and Home.

Viscountess Morpeth has been added to the former Trustees, with Miss Stanley and Mr. Ponsonby. A vacancy had been caused by the death of Mr. Henry West, one of the earliest friends of the Soho Club.

The Soho Club Magazine.

This small monthly periodical tells of the progress and life of our own and many other clubs. Accounts of the pleasures and parties of the girls, their country visits, and their excursions are given by themselves, and many kindnesses have we received from the readers of our Magazine. We wish its circulation were larger, as it would not then be a source of expense. We have 73 yearly subscribers, several of these most kindly help our Magazine by sending 5s. and 10s. towards its expenses; but we want double that number to pay for printing, and we take this opportunity of asking our friends to help us still further in that direction, and particularly to let their Club Members know about the Magazine. By taking several numbers together they can be had for 1s. a year extra each.

The London Club Union.

This Union has for its object the advancement of Girls' Clubs by the interchange of ideas, experience, and hospitality; 32 Clubs are affiliated, and have a yearly Competition in Singing and Musical Drill. The Soho Magazine is their organ, and the Managers of the Clubs meet to arrange about the Competitions. We are glad to add more Clubs to our Union, but cannot enrol any Club which is not open at least three or four times in the week.

Musical Drill and Singing Competition

Twelve Clubs competed in 1896 for the Challenge Shield in the Inner Temple Hall, which was most kindly lent by the Benchers. All Hallows was first and Soho fourth.

Seven Clubs competed in Singing. Poplar was first for the third time, and carried off the challenge picture.

Home Art Exhibition at the Royal Albert hall, in June, 1896.

The Soho Club Art Needlework Class exhibited their work and got several stars for execution. We hope our friends will always visit their stall at the Albert Hall. Many girls were enabled to have country holidays from the sale of their work.

Some orders were given and executed for Church work and bed-quilts, and we are very glad to receive any orders for work.

Country Holidays.

Lady Morpeth invited four girls to Muncaster.

Mrs. Darjevil, with whom the girls had lodged at Muncaster in 1895, invited one as a visitor.

Miss Stanley invited four girls to stay with her at Dalegarth, Cumberland.

Mrs. Stucley invited two girls to stay with her in Devonshire.

Miss Mansfield and Miss Giffard invited two girls to Herefordshire.

Mrs. Pember invited a girl to the Cottage Home at Lymington.

Misses Frances and Iris Mitford invited a girl to Gloucestershire.

The Hon. Maud Russell sent a girl to Eastbourne.

Mrs. Ford invited two girls to her house at Brighton.

Lady Fitzgerald sent a girl to Birchington-on-Sea.

Holidays were arranged for 16 girls to go to Brighton, and for 11 to go to Cobham.

Mrs. Maxwell and Miss Marjory Hood gave money to help the poorest to have a holiday.

The country holidays are arranged early in the summer by Miss Stanley, who makes a list of all the members and asks each one if she is going with friends, if not, how much she will have saved by July for the expenses of a holiday. The invitations are then given, the girls paying different sums from 5s. to £2 10s., for journeys or board. It is a very great help if the invitations are given early in the summer to Miss Stanley.

Report of an interview with Miss Pitts, the Head-mistress of the Ann St. Board School (girls). (E.A.) July 15.9

Miss Pitts is a lady of perhaps 45, who has lived for some years in the neighbourhood -- in Granville Sq. -- and is far above the average of her class in thoughtfulness and sympathy. She has been at the school for many years, and many of her old pupils are now mothers living in the distri-Miss Pitts does not take a rosy view of things, although she sees signs of improvement and thinks that things are on the up- grade. The chief improvement is in the standard of material comfort. She remembers when in the early seventies when some 30/- out of £3 would have to be remitted of the fees. There would she is sure be nothing like that now, had they fees to collect. As regards the nearness of want, in its crude material form therefore improvement is undoubted.
But when you ask if something more has taken place, the answer is much more doubtful. The homes are such standing difficulties -- the high rents and the one room. What can you do or expect? "I blame, but often ask myself what I should do if I were situated as they are. Should I do any better? should I do as well?"

She gave me a concrete case of a girl who had been at the school, and afterwards acted as a sort of help to Miss

Pitts at her rooms. She got into trouble when she was 19, and a forced marriage followed. The husband is earning 20/- a week, and they have one room and one child. In the room, there is no oven and no direct water supply. But so far, things have gone better than one could have ventured to hope. Here, the use of the school and the early training come in, as from the lessons in cooking and management acquired then the girl has, Miss Pitts is sure, been able to do much to keep her husband steady and at home that would otherwise have been impossible. Marked deterioration is noticeable, but there is no disaster. They have to pay 5/- a week rent.

The general attitude towards education shows a real change for the better. In the old days visitors used to be afraid to go alone to serve their notices; the violent parents who used to come to the school to complain of one thing or another are of very rare occurrence; and there is now a very pleasant relationship between the teacher and the old scholars who are living near. Not only is the attitude of the neighbourhood towards the school being altered for the better, but this is reacting beneficially inside the school itself. Education goes more easily. The children are beginning to be more responsive, and it makes a great difference that the children now at school ~~are~~ belong to parents who have themselves been. The home influence, far from being perfect though it be, is very different from one that knows nothing of the schools and of education: "you don't rest no w on an uneducated base".

Miss Pitts hopes therefore for a still stronger reaction upon the homes. Her hope is in the women. Their improvement will react in so many ways, especially in the direction of more provident marriages. If the women improve too, there is more likelihood of their making the husband think more of his home, and staying more in it. That will tell in the direction of improving the home standard, and demanding it may be better accommodation -- e.g. two rooms instead of one. As one aid to escape from the present misery and discomfort of homes, to which in her happiest forecasts she always returned, Miss Pitts wants the women to --- knit! There is much virtue, she holds, in a set of knitting needles; they would help much to quiet and domesticate our women.

The age at which girls leave school has improved, but the attendance clauses work very badly. To help in the matter the enclosed letter is sent out to recalcitrant parents (v. p 153.) and the three head teachers, who have no jurisdiction, but the limits of whose powers the parents are quite unaware of, see and talk to those parents, a fair pro portion of these to whom the notices go, who present themselves. A great deal depends on the magistrate, and the Clewell stipendiary at the present time, Mr. Bros, is not helpful. He limits the attendance cases to 30 in the year and even these have to give way if anything of importance comes on. A recent no. of the Schoolmaster gives examples of the laxity of the court in dealing with these cases.

Practically none of the girls who leave school go to domestic service, and although Miss Pitts regretted this, she was obliged to admit that they would not make good servants. Nearly all work at some trade or another, and it is a frequent argument of mothers that it is a good thing for them to have something to turn their hands to, so that if they marry and lose their husbands, they are independent. There is a terrible temptation to widows to live an immoral life, more or less publicly, and there is a good deal of common-sense in this maternal argument.

Miss Pitts thought that the Sisters of Bethany were the most important religious workers in the district, and said that they were most delightful people. They do a certain amount of nursing, prepare food for invalids etc. and Miss Pitts defended their charity. The Sisters are not rich, and what they give is personal service rather than anything else.

She knew Mr. Rose, and described him as a man of good common-sense. Mr. Eyre she does not know personally, but has reason to think that she would hold him in immense respect if she did. Mr. Groome, of the Chapel in Clerkenwell Close, was spoken of as a very nice man, "unspoilt by phil-philanthropic effort"

Report of interview with Miss Gray, Superintendent
the Met. Nursing Association, 23 Bloomsbury Sq. (E.A.)

The Association, the praises of which we have been hearing from many, covers a boundary running from Regent's Park, Regent St. and Charing Cross on the West, to the City Road and Old St. on the East. On the S. the River gives the boundary line, which on the N. is less well-defined, but is roughly indicated by the Pentonville Rd, and takes in a bit of Somers Town.

The Association is in connection with the Queen's Jubilee Institute for Nurses, ~~met~~ and is thus, like all the other affiliated centres, under the central executive at S. Katherine's Hospital, Regent's Park. (On this Miss Gray has sent us a pamphlet by the Master of S. Katherine's).

The other affiliated London centres are these in Haggerston, Bermondsey, S'wark and Walworth, Clerkenwell, Battersea, W'ster, Chelsea, H'smith and Fulham, K'ton, Paddington, H'stead, and Camden Town. There are many others out of London. The East London Nurses Association is not affiliated, and its nurses are of a somewhat different class from those of the Queen's, and less highly trained.

In addition to being an ordinary nursing centre, the B'bury Assoc. is the Central Training Home for the Institute and and lectures are given there, not only for their own nurses but for those from all the other centres.

Their own staff consists of Miss Gray, the Superintendent, 3 staff nurses, and 10 who are being trained. The last come for six months, and must previously have had at least two years in Hospital. They come for training in district nursing. A nurse who is received and trained is obliged to serve the Institute for a minimum of two years. At the end of that time they may if they like leave it, and become ordinary private or hospital nurses. But they then cease to be "Queen's Nurses", who are always engaged in district work, and the badge and brassard ^(i.e. armband) have to be returned. The demand for Queen's Nurses, whose status as such comes to have a guarantee and who are under inspection from the Central executive, is greater than the ~~xxxxxxx~~ supply. The minimum gross salary is equivalent to £80 or £100 a year, and is made up of £30 and board, lodging, uniform and laundry.

The general effect of the Institute has been to spread district nursing in the country, and in some respects the effects have been more marked perhaps in the provinces than in London. But in London the number of nurses has been increased; the training has improved, and the standing of the nurse has gone up.

They are entirely non-sectarian, except that the Institute will not take R.Cs. because of the difficulty in placing them afterwards (an exception that Miss Gray regretted) and their work is done on strictly non-parochial lines. They only nurse cases in which a doctor has been called in, and cannot undertake night work. But in cases of need they would see that some one was provided.

Most of their cases come to them from the doctors, and particulars of these are given on p.30 of the Report. The School cases are exceptional and are generally less serious. Mrs. Arthur Leen started this work, and an attempt is now being made to extend it. (See leaflet, "London School Nurses' Society".) page 169

They give no relief, but make it their business to get what is necessary and never have difficulty in doing so. In the absence of any other appropriate person, their practice is to write to the clergyman of the parish, and they are always very good, albeit at times a bit fussy.

Asked if the nurses were ever charged with being somewhat exacting, (a complaint that has sometimes reached us) Miss Gray said that this only meant that they had to be strict as to cleanliness etc. But in her experience practically everybody, both the families and their friends were extremely friendly towards the nurses. There were no signs of irritation of any kind.

The work was often difficult, especially from the poor equipment of the homes in which the nursing had to be done, and from the crowded conditions under which the people were living. But still it is "wonderful what a lot can be done with a little, and a nurse has to be taught how to make brick without straw".

The very poor are as much nursed as any class (for classification of patients see Report p. 31), but there is sometimes a difficulty in dealing with those who could afford to pay a little. Occasionally they have refused to nurse cases sent them, especially when the demands on the part of a poor class have been numerous. They cannot take paying patients, although in some centres arrangements are being made to some extent to facilitate this.

Miss Gray considers that as a whole the district covered by her centre is adequately nursed. They do not touch maternity cases.

Other nursing centres were mentioned, including the Wesleyans in Cleveland St. Miss Gray did not think that their training was very good, and that they pottered about a good deal. They gave a good deal of relief too, but still they "did a lot".

They are fortunate in having a good set of doctors to deal with, and those at all the dispensaries are good -- Fore St. S. Pancras, Gerard St. Bloomsbury St. and Farringden, & the doctor at the Medical Mission (?in Short's Garden's is also. Of other districts in London she could not speak with certainty as regards the ~~xxxx~~ character of the local doctors, except as regards Haggerston, where it is good, and in Southwark and Walworth, where it is just the reverse. She has it on the authority of an old pupil, now matron there, what a miserable and low-class set of men they are, adding that "terrible things happen".

The efficiency of the local parish work varies a good deal, and Miss Gray considers that S. George's Bloomsbury stands out as the best. But several others are good, and those mentioned were the following: S. Paul's, Bunhill Row; S. Mary's, Charterhouse; S. Luke's, Old St.; S. Mary's, Somer's Town; S. Pancras; S. Anne's, Soho; S. Giles; Holy Trinity; and S. Bartholomew the Great.

We discussed the question as to where the poor person in difficulties naturally turned, and on this point Miss Gray had decided and interesting opinions. Was it the Poor Law? Not by any means; rather they turned away from it. When they are helpless, they do not appear to have the least idea where they can turn, and how they have been living they can't tell you. This remains, indeed, a mystery, save for the great kindness of the poor to each other, even to those who are strangers. "This is the great explanation. It has impressed me enormously, immensely". "It is nearly always "the neighbours"". "If people are church or chapel, then it is church or chapel, but for the vast majority it is either nothing or the neighbours".

As stated, Miss Gray wd write to the clergy as a rule, when anything is wanted, or to the chapel in the rarer cases in which the patient has this connexion. But it is to the church that application is made as for a parishioner, and not for a person who is a churchgoer. The clergy are very good, and for whoever it may be, R.C. or infidel, things are generally forthcoming. The R.Cs. are generally poor, and unable to do much for their own people. To the C.O.S. they apply oftenest for Convalescent Letters, etc. or for some expensive appliance, like a truss.

The Association is, she thinks, disliked by no one, and cases are sent them from everywhere and every agency in their district.

Moving about among the people reveals the great need of "health missionaries", and the ignorance that prevails on all branches of domestic management.

management is often profound. Especially does there seem to be need of teaching in the bringing up and feeding of children; in cooking; and in personal and domestic cleanliness.

Miss Gray has been at the Assoc. in Bloomsbury Sq. for about 8 years, and thinks that the district in which they work is about the same as when she first knew it, except in the neighbourhoods of Seven Dials and Drury Lane, in both of which there has been a good deal of rebuilding, either for business or for dwelling purposes.

She is inclined to doubt whether over-crowding is so great an evil as in some provincial and rural parts, and cited ~~XXXXXXXXXX~~ a village in Derbyshire (Ripley) where a case had come under her knowledge of a house in which 8 people were sleeping in one bed!

At the head-quarters of the Institute, S. Katharine's, Miss Gray advised us to see Miss Peter, the Head Inspector.

Miss Gray is a lady of perhaps 36 or so, and is a most admirable person -- business-like, capable, bright, attractive, and sympathetic. She was most kind, and will be of any further assistance if we need her help.

THE London School Nurses' Society has been formed with the object of supplying Visiting Nurses to Elementary Schools in poor districts. Already one Queen's Nurse visits half-a-dozen of the poorest schools in the neighbourhood of Clare Market, and attends to the small ills of the scholars—such as sore heels and inflamed eyes.

Excellent results have followed her ministrations: she is able to visit three schools in one morning and see about sixty children, who are sent to her, one by one, by the teachers. It is hoped that the work of the London School Nurses' Society may be done wherever possible by a Queen's Nurse, and so avoid the multiplying of agencies. The Jubilee Institute has been asked to favour this proposition and has approved of School Nurses in principle.

Probably it will be difficult to impress on the public the importance of the work to be done, or the necessity for these nurses: but it must be remembered that the sore heel soon becomes poisoned if left to London dirt, and that the inflamed eyes often lose all power of seeing simply through neglect. There is no more sure way of securing the health of the people than to catch small ills at the beginning: a nurse can see at a glance whether a child should be sent to a doctor; she can impress cleanliness; she can follow up bad cases to their homes; she can recognize the early symptoms of fevers and do much to stop the spread of those infectious diseases which so often devastate our schools.

It is believed that the cost of each School Nurse will not exceed £50 a year, as her full time will not be needed.

The Committee therefore appeal for subscriptions or donations, amounting at least to £150, in order to enable them to commence the work in Hoxton, Tower Hamlets and Southwark at once.

All subscriptions should be sent to the Hon. Treasurer at 89, Harley Street, London, W.

❧ REPORT. ❧

THE Executive Committee of the Metropolitan Nursing Association have much pleasure in presenting their Twenty-second Annual Report.

The work of training District Nurses has been carried on as in former years, and the nursing of the sick poor in their own homes has been a very great boon to hundreds of poor sufferers.

The Staff consists of a Superintendent, with a Senior Nurse and two Staff Nurses who assist the Superintendent in the District Training of Nurses, who, after two years in a General Hospital, receive in this Home their six months' additional training and practical experience in District Nursing.

On the 1st January, 1897, there were Nurse Probationers in training	...	10

Of these—
Completed District Training	...	16

		—29

The whole of those who completed their training were trained for the Queen Victoria's Jubilee Institute, with which the Association is affiliated.

Lectures, provided at the expense of the Queen Victoria's Jubilee Institute, have been given at the Central Home on "Diseases of Women," by Mrs. Scharlieb, M.D., Physician to the New Hospital for Women, and on "Hygiene," by Mrs. Goslett, Member of the Sanitary Institute.

The Nurses in training have also attended two courses of practical Lessons on the Preparation of Food for the Sick and Invalids, given at the National School of Cookery by Miss Earle, Staff Teacher of Cookery, at the expense of the Queen Victoria Jubilee Institute. These lessons have been admirably adapted to their purpose, and have been much appreciated.

The number of cases nursed during the year was 1,204. Of these the books show:—

Recovered or Convalescent	807
Transferred to Hospital or Infirmary ...	128
Died	164
Removed from books	16
Still on books	89
	1,204

Besides these regular cases of Home Nursing there were 1,023 Board School children whose ailments, such as sore eyes, burns, scalds, chilblains, &c., were attended to at the schools in the neighbourhood. These minor ailments, if not taken in time, cause the children much suffering, and are liable to develop into more serious, and sometimes permanent, maladies.

The visitors and teachers testify to the value of the Nurses' visits, and the improved health of the children. There is less ophthalmia, &c., and parents take more pride in keeping their children clean.

A Nurse attends for one hour daily at the Bloomsbury Dispensary, and is able to help the Surgeons and Physicians in many ways, doing dressings, &c.

The general health of the Nurses has been very good ; the average number throughout the year has been ten, in addition to the Superintendent.

The Committee desire to express to Miss Gray and the Nurses who have been working under her how fully they appreciate the devotion and energy with which they have performed their duties—duties often trying and arduous, and carried out under difficult circumstances. Numerous letters of thanks from grateful patients and their friends have borne ample testimony to the good work which has been done.

The sincere thanks of the Committee are due—

To the members of St. George the Martyr Dorcas Society, for another kind gift of sheets, bed-gowns, night-shirts, flannel wrappers, &c., made by the members.

To the London Needlework Guild for a large bale of most useful underclothing.

To the Hon. Mrs. F. Sandilands, Mrs. Gardner, Miss Robinson, Miss Maclachlan, Mrs. B. G. Gray, Miss D'Oyley, and others, for clothing, old linen, night gowns, &c.

To Mrs. Taylor, of the Euston Hotel, for a constant supply of old linen.

To the North London Collegiate School for a box of dolls, toys, &c., for sick children.

To the Duke of Westminster, Mrs. B. G. Gray, Mr. Henry Bonham Carter, Miss Child, Dr. Hawkes, Mrs. Minet, Mr. Humphrey Ward, Miss Watson Taylor, Miss Bridges, Miss McLeay, for presents of game, fruit, flowers, kitchen utensils, &c.

To Mr. B. G. Gray, Miss Bullock, the Hon. Mrs. Sandilands, Miss Barchard, and Mrs. Wm. Rathbone for letters for hospitals and convalescent homes.

To the Convalescent Dinners Society for dinners for convalescent patients.

To the North London Tramways Company for two free passes for Nurses.

Letters for Convalescent Homes will always be most gratefully received by the Superintendent.

The plan of work is as follows:-- The Superintendent personally, or through the Hon. Secretary, puts herself²⁷ into communication with the parish doctors and other medical men practising among the poor, and residing within a reasonable distance, the Poor Law Authorities, the Clergy, District Visitors, Sisterhoods, Bible Readers, and Mission Women, as well as the Charity Organisation Society, the Society for the Relief of Distress, and other persons or Societies working amongst the poor. Applications for nursing service, when received at the Home, are at once entered in a Register, and, if possible, the case is visited that day by the Superintendent with one of her Nurses. If the Superintendent decides that it is a proper "nursing case," she assists the Nurse to put the patient (and, if necessary, also the room) in "nursing order."

Where the case has been sent by a medical man, his orders are at once taken, and when not, the Nurse communicates with him and obtains his instructions in writing.

No case is retained on the books which is not under a qualified medical practitioner.

Every Nurse visits each of her patients once daily, acute cases twice, or even much oftener if necessary—Sundays and week-days alike—and at the same hours, making a regular round of visits, and keeping a record of each case for the Superintendent.

Once a fortnight, or oftener if necessary, the Superintendent goes round with each Nurse to visit every patient on her list, starting with her at the usual hour, and devoting the whole time of "being on duty" (see Rules I. and II.) to the Nurse whose work she is superintending.

The time the Nurse stays, and the attention she gives to each patient, depends on the nature of the particular case.

In some cases the relatives of the patients can be taught how to keep the room in "nursing order," how to ensure good ventilation, &c.

In others, no person may be at hand, and the Nurse will then have at each visit to do all the work herself. (See Rule VIII.)

No Nurse may cease to visit a patient assigned to her until the Superintendent takes it off the books.

④ Report of interview with Mr. Elston, Headmaster of the Hugh Myddelton (Boys) School. (E.A.)

This school, opened some five or six years ago, is regarded as the "model" school under the London Board. It is one of the best appointed, and best arranged, and also contains specimens of every branch of work undertaken by the Board, with the exception of special classes for the Blind. I did not go over the other departments, but it is thus possible to see, in addition to the three ordinary departments of Boys, Girls, and Infants, a Cookery Centre, a Laundry Centre, Manual Training for the Boys, and the classes for the Feeble-minded, which the late General Moberly took so much interest in, and did so much to get started. The school is surrounded by a large playground, and the building itself is an imposing structure. Close by is the Bowling Green Lane school, one of the first erected by the London Board, and a comparison of the two is instructive. Both are practically full.

It is often stated by outsiders that the Hugh Myddelton is a favoured school, and that its scholars are picked and not genuinely representative of the neighbourhood. There appears however to be little truth in this charge. Mr. Elston has been there since the opening of the school, and told me that so far from being favoured, he started with a total of 90 boys, of whom no fewer than 50 or 60 were truants. He had therefore an especially hard task to make the school a success, and its standard a high one. This, he says, is the work of the teacher, and it has to be done quite gradually. If, however, he can once ^{get} attendances fairly good, the boys clean, and the outside reputation of the school good, the standard tends to be kept up automatically, as the boys who come are such as fit in with a school that is so run, and the more thoughtful parents choose it for their children. At first great untidiness and bare feet were common, but the latter is now never seen. Occasionally he finds some boy who is very badly shod, and in such a case always manages to get him a pair of boots, but without any fuss or boot fund or special appeal. He claimed that a large proportion of the boys were genuinely representative of the immediate neighbourhood, and, in spite of the general impression of tidiness that they gave, I think that he is probably quite correct. About one half of the admissions in any year come from the Infants, and this he says is a normal proportion. The rest come from "everywhere". and we looked through two or three pages of the register. A considerable number came from other schools in the neighbourhood, but not an unreasonable proportion. Many came, it was clear, owing to removals from quite distant parts of London into the neighbourhood of the school.

The fact that the school is not in any sense a middle-class affair, as some suppose, is conclusively proved by the size of the upper standards. I had expected to find that as the character of the school was so high, that these standards wd be getting much larger, and this raised the whole question of the special difficulty that Mr. Elston suffers from in this respect, owing to the character of the neighbourhood and the class of boys who ~~xxxxxx~~ come to him. He cannot keep them do what he will, and compared his own position sadly as compared with the head-masters of such schools as Fleet Road and Beethoven St.

Not only is there the general trial arising from the tendencies for a very large proportion of the boys to drift away as soon as they legally can, but ~~xxxx~~ from time to time he has a special worry arising from the withdrawal of boys of special promise, whose parents have undertaken to leave them at school for a reasonable time, and whom he has on that understanding placed in the class that he, in common with many other large schools that make this arrangement possible, formed for "scholarship" boys, that is, for boys who are to be sent up for the L.C.C. scholarships. At the present time Mr. Elston had 30 boys in this class. No extra staffing is allowed for this class, and it can be formed only by careful organization and in the larger schools. One consequence of this is that practically all the scholarships are won by the scholars from such schools.

The Hugh Myddelton is one of the schools at which the examinations for the Labour certificated are held. These were granted after the abolition of the old system of examination some five or six years ago, and were intended to meet a few individual cases in which withdrawal from the school ~~xxx~~ might be necessary before the opportunity came in the ordinary way. In the early days parents did not as a rule know of this expedient, but now, the exceptional method of withdrawal has grown into a regular system. At the Hugh Myddelton examination, where only 20 presented themselves now ~~there~~^{there} are 400. The examinations are held monthly. Mr. E. considers that a regulation is being seriously abused and that the present state of affairs is most serious, since it is going from bad to worse. Not only can the boys get exemption by the labour certificate, but if they fail there, they can claim what the schoolmasters have come to call the "dunces' certificate". Practically every boy of the necessary age can get this, as all that has to be proved is 250 attendances (out of about 400 that ought to be made) annually for five years.

Mr. Elston was suspicious of the school board visitors as agents through whom the expedients of the labour and "dunce's" certificates came to be so widely known, but he had no evidence to prove his case. He argued however, that the visitors were human, and that since it would be just those scholars who were entitled to these certificates who wd be likely to give the most trouble in the matter of attendances and thus of visiting, that the temptation to the visitor to say that these certificates could be obtained would be very strong. He wd at one and the same time give the parents a piece of information that they wd be glad to have, since they are a priori, anxious to get their children away from school to work, and wd relieve himself of the trouble of constantly hunting up an absentee scholar. But, as atated, Mr. E. admitted that his suspicions were based on quite general reasoning, and knew that knowledge of this kind spread in a natural way with great rapidity.

The City takes a very large proportion his boys, and offers the most attractive field for employment. Many employers write for boys, and Mr. E showed me a sheaf of letters that he had of current requests.

Mr. Elston is ~~about~~ perhaps 50, and is an excellent specimen of a Board School teacher -- determined, capable, quiet, with the manner and speech of an educated man.

Report of an interview with Mr. E. C. Grey, at 8 Bedford rt Mansions. (E.A.) July 26.98.

Mr. Grey is well known as the local C.O.S. Hon. Sec. ^{ly} and as the leading spiritxx of a Boys' Club, of unusual long life and success. He is not an easy man to interview in a systematic way. He is devoted to the boys of his club, and his interests are very largely personal; his conversation is thus filled with incidents, particulars; it is discursive and does not easily give decided general impressions and conclusions. A man like Mackay gives you the diagnosis of a district. Grey gives you many side-lights. But they are full of colour, and he personally is charming.

The most decided impressien given by the conversation was as ^{to} the improvement that has taken place in S. Giles during the last 20 or 25 years. It is no longer the same place

Their difficulty is still pauperization, and the Rector of S. Clement Danes is still the chief offender. Things are not so bad as they were however, and even Mr. Pennington seems to have improved somewhat. Among other salutary influences that have been brought to bear on him, Mr. Grey mentioned an onslaught made by Mrs. Leon, his late Co-Sec. She took Mr. Pennington out one day, brooking no refusal, and showed him the clothes he had been recklessly distributing, at their destination in the pawn-shop. Since then he has been more careful, and Mr. Grey supposed that the labelling of the clothes of which I told him was his sign of grace. But he seems to be still far from salvation. His habit of sending the children of his parish away to the country, quite regardlessly of their school attendances seems still to be a great cause of offence to many people, including Mr. Richards, the Rector of S. Giles.

The district is still rather by way of being a battleground of the sects, although not so markedly so as in the past. Mr. Grey spoke well of Prebendary Richards, of Boyd Carpenter, and of Evans. Of all of these his opinion was high, as also of the newly started Inns of Court Mission. Glendinning Nash was described as a "tiresome" person; he does not co-operate with the C.O.S. Griffiths, of Christ Church. is "rather hopeless"; a hard worker though, and a good chaplain of the Workhouse. But he has too much an eye always to the main chance. Holthouse, I ought to have included among those well spoken of; he is not very well supported financially, and thus has little money to spend.

Wheatley was described, as Mr. Evans had done, as doing his prison work well, but his methods of appeal etc. are "sensational and untrue". He continues to describe the S. Giles of 25 years ago. The Medical Mission in Shorts' Gardens was described as "fair".

One great reason for the improvement of the district is found in the removal of many of the worst Irish, partly through clearances and partly through general causes.

There are signs of more widely spread habits of thrift; of this he finds evidence in his Boys' Club, and in the success of a Provident Club started by Mr. Evans in his parish.

The C.O.S. however is getting less and less to do -- so much so that a proposal is being considered, and is favoured by Mr. Grey himself, for the formation of a single "Central London" Committee, by which some in the immediate n'hood, I am not certain which, would be amalgamated. At present the various committees "have not enough to do". His own is however getting another class of case -- that of the broken-down occupant of the Bloomsbury Boarding-Houses.

As to the Poor Law, Mr. G. said that, until about 8 or 9 years ago a great deal of out-door relief was given, but latterly there has been "some improvement".

General conditions as regards Housing, Sanitation and Health he described as fair, and ~~xxxxxx~~ habit of contracting early and improvident marriages was not so common.

The Church generally has done good work (and in this connexion he especially mentioned that of Boyd Carpenter among young men) but the effect has been mainly indirect. It has tended to improve the moral tone, but has effected little in the way of making people go to church. He spoke without disapproval of the work done by the Bloomsbury Chapel. The good work of the Schools is handicapped by their defective methods, above all by the system of large classes.

Of drinking there is a lot, and he quoted a comparison that had been once made between S. Giles and S. Anne's: in the former you had much drinking and little atheism; in the latter little drinking and much atheism. He was not prepared to say which was the more desirable position of the two.

Mr. Grey's heart is, I think, in his club. It started many years ago, with a very rough contingent, but the members can no longer be so described. The characteristic of the club is the personal element, described by Mr. Grey in the statement that they "worked" the members a good deal. What this means is that a direct personal interest is taken in all who join, and in this Mr. Grey is the undoubted leader. It was on account of the Club itself, and the C.O.S. that he took up his present quarters. The lads are told that he is ready to see them at any time, and they come to him, it is clear, as to a trusted friend of long-standing. The club is divided into two branches -- those above and those below 18. All the latter are obliged to attend some class at the Club, which is thus both educational and social. But after they have reached the class-free age, they are able to continue their membership, and at the present moment ages range from 13 to 40. The number of those below 18 is limited to 40, and the popularity of the club is illustrated by the fact that there is a waiting list of 75, and that it is a common thing for children to be put down when they are only four or five years old. For the elder members there is no limit, and of these there are at present 110.

The rent of the club premises is paid, but otherwise, so far as necessary outgoings are concerned, the institution is self-supporting. I had few particulars given me as to what was actually done at the club, and there is no reason to suppose that these differ in name from those of any other similar club; the differences that there are would be found in the long traditions that the club has established, and, above all, in the strength of the personal element. Mr. Grey was cordial in his invitation to pay it a visit, and mentioned that he was there every evening, "except Wednesdays, -- and very often then"!

of the (Boys) Board School in Great Wild St.
(E.A.) July 8.98

For the neighbourhood this is a good school. It started as a threepenny one, and thus got a good nucleus. (The Vere St. school is much poorer.) 127 out of the total of 316 on the register come from the Peabody Bldgs. close by. These are the best families of the district; they have to live under discipline, and that is a sign of grace. But the school is getting a name, and both parents and children come to exercise a selective influence. The best children are those of policemen, postmen etc. and they drop down to porters and casual labourers.

They lose their very best children, through movement further out of London. The familiar criticism on the effects of rehousing schemes, and reminder of the necessity of watching to see where the displaced really go.

Great complaints of "one parish" soon disclosed as that of S. Clement Danes. The free garments; free holidays to all the children of the parish; apparently any amount of money, and their charity indiscriminate and pauperizing.

Mr. Cox himself works with the C.H.F., sending about 90 children away, who pay on an average from 2/6 to 6/-. Weekly payments are taken, starting from January. Only two or three C.O.S. cases. The work made much more difficult by Mr. Pennington's action. His children are sent free to Sevenoaks, and Mr. Cox has a very poor opinion, not only of the bad effects of the free holiday, but also of the way in which the thing is organized. He cannot prove the following statements, having them only on the authority of his boys, but has no reason to think that they are untrue: In one room, 5 big boys and 3 little ones were put, while three girls slept in another reached only by passing through that of the boys. He has altogether a very poor opinion of Mr. Pennington's wisdom and care.

Mr. Cox showed me a copy of the return for his school (now being prepared for all for the Education Dept.) on the employment of children during school age. It showed that 23 out of the total on the register were being employed for wages. He thinks that none need so work.

He discourages half-timers, and has none. There is, he thinks, no need for them.

Dinners are arranged for the needy at the school, and about £17 is spent a year. He makes the recipients be regular in attendance. Struck, as so many others have been, by the amount the children get to spend on sweets: "much more than his own." Among the lower labouring class there is no idea as to what thrift is, and no practice of it.

Many of his children go to Sunday Schools and Band of Hopes. They are advised to join a B. of H. Finds often that the S.S. and the B. of H. joined are connected with different centres; two treats are thus secured.

Referred to the Evening Classes; approves of the new order coming into force in Sept. by which the attendance of children still at school will be forbidden. Disapproves of the freeing these classes, and holds the opinion that they are more appreciated when paid for.

Employments:-- Some of his boys go to trades and some to the telegraph service; very few to clerical work; and $\frac{1}{2}$, perhaps two-thirds at the start, go as errand boys. He calculates that eventually about one-third become either porters or casual labourers.

The children are healthy: he has one case of ophthalmia on at present, but does not expect to have more than one a year.

He is sanguine that the schools are telling favourably on the homes, and has reason from what he hears to think that things are not so bad there as they used to be.

There is however, a lot of drinking and betting in the n'hood; a bookmaker in the street near the school every day at one o'clock, and 2 or 3 others not far off. A difficult problem; thinks there is something in the opinion of an inspector who said that, of the class of men who betted, their shillings wd either find their way into the book-mak-

BOARD SCHOOL,
Great Wild Street.

~~September 13th, 1897.~~

Dear Sir,

I have pleasure in sending you the Annual Report of Her Majesty's Inspector on our School which, as you will see, maintains its good reputation.

The Report is—

“A capital spirit pervades the School. Good work is done. Supervision is thorough and systematic.”

Drawing and Manual Training are again assessed Excellent.

The following is the Report of the Scripture Examiner—

“The work throughout shows that great interest is taken in the Scripture Instruction and the results are highly satisfactory.”

I am glad so many parents take keen interest in their children's progress and I trust that during the ensuing school year the PUNCTUALITY and

In spite of all difficulties there is a satisfactory and improving relation between the school and the parents. People are very "respectful" and the schools are being more and more appreciated. But still the parents are uncommonly anxious to get their children away at the earliest possible legal moment. He condemned the action of the labour certificate. Parents are getting to know of this, but not very many so far. It will not be through Mr. Cox that the knowledge will spread, as he does all he can to conceal the working of the certificate and to put difficulties in the way of its use.

Mr. Cox is a very fair specimen of a Board School teacher -- intelligent, a little conceited, but with a very genuine interest in the welfare of his school and of his boys. He is a man of perhaps 35. Has been at the school for five years.

REGULARITY of our few laggards may be still further improved by increased home effort.

Our Entertainment and Prize Distribution is fixed for November 2nd. The names of the children who have been specially successful during the past year will be printed on the programmes as usual, and we hope that all the parents of our scholars will endeavour to be with us on that occasion.

I am, Dear Sir,

Yours faithfully,

THOS. JNO. COX.

This circular is issued by Mr. Cox in this or a similar form each year on his own responsibility, and, indeed, against the rules of the Board, according to which everything sent out must have official sanction. But he pays for the circular, and it gives him an opportunity of reminding parents of some point that the experience of the year suggests. XX

① Note on the Jews of the Maiden Lane Synagogue. ²/₅

On calling on Mr. Phillips, the Minister of Maiden Lane he appeared somewhat disinclined to give information himself although he was very friendly. He is getting on in years and perhaps felt that he could not give a very good account of his own centre, which is a somewhat failing one. "Unfortunately for me" as he put it, the numbers are now some 70 men and the same number of women. He strongly advised me to call on Mr. Friedlander, the minister of the S. Alban's Place Synagogue, ^(rank?) whose information would he said practically cover his own: the people at the two places were of the same class.

When I saw Mr. Friedlander a few days later, he did not bear out this statement, saying that the only point of resemblance had been that before he came to S. Alban's Place, both synagogues were asleep. But the congregation at Maiden Lane, according to Mr. Friedlander, is almost entirely composed of the Jews of Covent Garden -- a class of Jew that is well-to do, and that likes to be connected with a synagogue, but that is without religion.

I found Mr. Phillips tucked away over the London Fur Stores, near the north end of the Charing Cross Rd.

③

the Jews in Soho: (Mr. Friedlander).

Mr. Friedlander lives at Wilfred House, Long Acre, occupying a little flat there with his young German wife, and the room in which I waited was full of new furniture, crude colouring and conventional comfort. Mr Friedlander proved to be a young man of perhaps 26 or so, making up in spirit and ambition what he lacked in years. He is small and dapper, wears a deep white collar, and a big white tie and holds himself very upright, like the militant little Jew he is. He is, of course, unshaven, but the beard is of baby growth. In stature, in demeanour, and in manner, both towards me, at first, and afterwards towards his own people, he was just "The Little Minister" without his dignity.

After my explanation of the help he could give, he invited me to come with him in the district, and see for myself something of what Jewish life in Soho meant. Nearly all our conversation took place during our walk.

He had taken the ministry of the Synagogue at S. Alban' Place about a year ago, against the advice of the Chief Rabbi. But the arguments advanced: that it was a broken-down place, and that the salary was only £75 a year etc. confirmed him in his intention. "I am ambitious", he said, and he is anxious it appears to win his spurs in a neglected corner of Metropolitan Jewry. He was thus somewhat critical of the Chief, and of other dignitaries of the community. Mr. Singer, he praised, but perhaps because he was "always first", ~~xxxxx~~ rather than on any other ground. The West London Synagogue "is Mr. Singer"; they just follow his lead. But the Jews of the Bayswater congregation moved his ire: Mr. H. Gollancz, their minister, is a "narrow man", and the people as a class are rich, wicked, and selfish. "It may seem strange to you to hear a Jew speaking thus of others of his faith, but it is true". I mentioned the United Synagogue, to which his own is not affiliated. "And I do not wish it to be" said he; "I wish it to be free from the red-tape and control that affiliation would involve. Every synagogue is anxious to be a member of the United, and to send up its representatives to the Central Congregation; they like to get into the presence of Lord Rothschild, who is the President. But I do not believe in it. I want freedom." The tendency is he thinks to organize Judaism too much, at the expense of local freedom and initiative and responsibility. Thus he has just been put on the Visiting Committee and been asked to take a district in the East End. But he has refused, and written saying that he has his own people, who need his time and thought. I asked if there ^{were} not many congregations so circumstanced as to make it the natural thing for their ministers to undertake work in East London, but although material needs might be often small, there were other needs ^{he said} that always existed and that he clearly thought were in danger of being neglected when men ran away and thought of Whitechapel or E. George's as the real spheres of their work.

When we get into Berwick Street, Mr. F. began to point out to me the houses of his people, and in Soho, it appears, they run to drapery. Two or three flourishing establishments that were pointed out belonged to people who a very few years ago did all their dealing on a barrow. The vast majority of the people are ^{tailors} ~~XXXX~~, however, and the three or four rooms we visited were all occupied by those belonging to this trade. The first was that of a woman, married, ^{wid} three older children and an infant a fortnight old. The husband is in weak health but at the time of our visit was out pressing. The woman was up, and had been working, a fortnight after confinement, and on the bed the tiny child was sleeping. The woman looked hot, but not very ill, and certainly not badly nourished. The case had been sent to Mr. F. by Mrs. ⁱⁿ Sclesinger, a wealthy member of the community. The family was occupying two rooms, and in that which I went there was no sign of destitution, although doubtless poverty was near at hand.

In the next house to which we went we found a woman ill with consumption, a foreigner like the first. She had been ill for six months, and looked pale and pathetic to a degree. She was lying on the bed, with loose wraps thrown over her, and the clothes of the bed thrown back, and the heat was the great thing she complained of. There was hope of getting her away to a hospital in a very few days. The neighbours were giving signs of kindness here, and were clearly doing much to look after her. Sitting on the bedside was a little English girl, a stranger who had by some means discovered the sick woman, and who was making herself chief nurse. It appeared that the night before she had not gone to her own home until between ten and eleven. She was a girl of perhaps 13 or so, and although probably not coming from a good home of her own and not a very prepossessing child, she was clearly kind to the invalid, who smiled as she drew attention to her nurse. In this case, I think the husband was at work, and ^{again} there was not, ~~as in the earlier one,~~ any particular sign of destitution. Care, and tidiness, and a quiet face would perhaps have supplied most that was needed. The woman was occupying a single room, the second floor front in Lavinia Street, and the rent was 7/6.

Before paying our next visit Mr. F. explained to me a difficulty he was in. A Mission connected with Mr. Oxford's church, had been arranging to send children, I believe in connexion with the C.H.F., to the country, and among the rest some 20 or so Jews. There was no suspicion that Miss Holland, the lady who was managing it, had any wish to proselytise, but Jewish and Christian children were going together, and there was avowedly to be no provision of proper food for the former. So Mr. F. had written to Miss Holland, asking her to return the money she had collected for the holidays, he having previously visited the parents, and obtained their promise that the children should not go. I saw Miss Holland's reply, saying that it would probably be better if another year separate arrangements were made for the Jewish children, but that this year it was too late to make any change in plans. The children were to start the next day, the labels were written, the cottages taken, and the money as good as spent. It could not be returned. Here was a quandary for the little minister, with a poor congregation, and a slender purse -- £75 a year from his own people, the proceeds of a few lessons that he gave in Maida Vale, and a flat at £65 a year rental-- and with little outside help from wealthy people. I asked if he could arrange for the children to have Kosher food sent down, but this did not seem possible; Did he hope to be able to make alternative arrangements? Yes, he hoped for this, but could not be certain. If necessary, he might perhaps go with the children himself. In any case they would not go with the Mission; of that he was determined. Then we went on to the houses of one of the parents to explain how matters stood: the money could not be returned by Miss Holland, but "I promise you faithfully that either I will see that you have the money back from somewhere, or the children shall go somewhere else" Could he be sure of sending the children somewhere? There was one little one of six, for whom the doctor said that a holiday in the country was necessary. The other ~~one~~^{could} did not need it so much, but the little one must go. And Mr. F.

 had to promise to do his better best for this little one.
 This was also a tailoring family, and the man was at home, in his shirt sleevestaking a voluntary holiday. "Lazy?" said the Little Minister, and as we left, the woman remarked on his holidays, and wished that her husband had his place! Not, as my friend said when we were leaving, "a very high ~~rank~~ class of person". In this house we had found signs of plenty and the place was very clean. The most vivid impression that I got was as to the difficulty of the task of the Minister. From this somewhat recalcitrant family we went to a

to a small "sweater's den", and I could have imagined myself, as I could have done before for that matter, in White-chapel. There were three or four men at work, and although the room was small, they did not look unhealthy or pining. They were all young or xx barely middle-aged. Here the proprietor, and his wife were both out, and the message about the children had to be given to relatives -- one of the men and two large women who appeared on the scene being especially addressed. The children were not to go; I shall be at the Mission at the time arranged for starting, and tell Mrs. Schmosky that I shall be very angry if her children are allowed to go". I looked round furtively to see if the threatened anger moved a smile, but it did not, although it hardly seemed to impress very much.

When we got outside, I asked what would happen if the children did go, and was at once assured that they would not. They dare not. And I asked what he could do, and found that all his power had to rest, as he said, on "moral persuasion"; "I should tell them of God's anger".

The fact is that Mr. F. is profoundly dissatisfied with the laxity of the Jewish community of Soho in matters of religion, and in this episode of the holidays he will try to make them realize their obligations, almost at any cost. He denies emphatically that the foreign Jew is the most orthodox. They wear their phylacteries on a week-day but they do not keep the Sabbath, ~~xxxx~~ The English Jew, according to Mr. F. is the most orthodox, because what he does he believes in: the other is a formalist, but nevertheless is a frequent breaker of the Law. For instance, there are said to be about 200 shops ^[including workshops & repair] in Soho, kept by Jews, and of these, not 5 are closed on ~~xxxxxxx~~ the Sabbath. The only days that are certain of observance are the Day of Atonement, and, less strictly, the New Year.

Although the great majority of the Jews in Soho are foreigners, there is only one Chevra. He estimates the total of the community in the district at 2000, and in three years, at the present rate, it is probable that they will number 5000. He welcomes the movement West, but wd divert the movement if he cd somewhat further East, to the neighbourhood of Long Acre and Gray's Inn Rd. where there is more house room. But the congestion ^{in London} East is so great that movement anywhere is desirable. He attached no importance to the opinion that the movement to Soho was brought about by the Strike among the English tailors, but thought that it was sufficiently explained by natural pressure East, and the attractions of a district that normally offered many chances of employment. The local settlement is mainly the outcome of the last six years.

His own congregation is increasing and now numbers 160. When he went there were 120. In his Sabbath School there are about 25 children. At the Westminster Free School there are 500 children.

Although so dissatisfied with the people committed to his ministerial care, he mentioned as good points among them their freedom from habits of intemperance, and the strength of the family tie: he only knows of one family in which father and mother are not living happily together. It follows that as a community they have nothing to do with the local vice: some disorderly houses in one of the streets to a great extent occupied by Jews he had been told were & mainly in the hands of Swiss.

Broad Street is the centre of the community, but in several streets the Jews preponderate, including Meard St.

This courageous little man feels very much alone in his work, and wants badly more help, both in person and in money. He has very few in his congregation to whom he can look for financial help, although Mr. Stuart Samuel has just become their president, and he will probably do more in the future. Miss Lily Montague seemed to be the person who was most helpful and most sympathetic, and he described her as a ray of light in a dark place. It is she who has charge of the local club for Jewesses.

Report of interview with Mr. Spindelov, Verger of S. Anne's, Licensing Constable, Coconer's Officer, rent-collector, and owner of property. (E.A.) July 6. 98.

MSA

Mr. Spindelov's name was given us by the Rector as that of a man with an extensive and peculiar knowledge of the district, and as ~~able~~ especially able to give information about housing and rental conditions. He is queer, cadaverous looking man of about 45, uneducated, self-made, unprepossessing, shrewd, and probably honest. He is married, and the day before my interview his domestic tragedy had reached a crisis, as his wife, under a signed document, had gone to live elsewhere. She is a drunkard, had been forbidden the church, and things had come to a pass that made this step necessary. His behavior is given in the 1st volume (p. 117).

In times gone by Mr. S. has had many a brush with the local sanitary officers and the spite they have shown again him he traces to the enmity of one of the staff, since dismissed, who had quarrelled with ~~xxxx~~ Mrs. Spindelov. There used to be an understanding that it was, according to the injunctions of this offended person, to be made "damned hot" for Spindelov, and this personal episode has to be taken into account in estimating the value of S's evidence on local sanitary administration. His complaints point however to corruption in the past as well as to personal spite, and he instanced this by a case when he was, as is his custom, doing work himself. He was being constantly pestered, and could do nothing right, but everything was made easy, when he paid £3.3s. for a plan of the drains to the officers. After that he could not even get them to come near him, and when the moment came for the drains to be actually passed, they still never came, and to this day they have never been properly inspected. But things have now improved; two years ago, and he wd. say that they were still "rotten", but they are more careful now. Things are made not still for a certain number of individuals, but on the whole things are admirably managed, and done fairly. The staff has been increased; it is more efficient, and he considers that the housing conditions of the n'hood have decidedly improved.

Rents are stationary, though ruling high. Most of the houses are let in floors, three rooms to a floor. The minimum for a single room, and he only knows of one so low, is 3/-; the maximum 8/-. This wd be a first-floor room 20 x 14 x 13. A second floor wd be 7/6. Of one of his houses (large) let by floors, two large rooms and one small one on each, he gave the following figures:

Ground floor -- 3 rooms -- 15/-;
 First floor -- 3 rooms -- 16/-;
 Second floor -- 3 rooms -- 15/-;
 Third floor -- 2 rooms -- 10/-.

(3)

Of a smaller house:

Ground floor, two rooms, (the occupier giving a little help in sweeping staircases etc.) 8/-;

First floor, two rooms, 10/-;

Second floor, two rooms, 10/-;

Third floor, two rooms, 8/6.

Most of the leaseholders in the parish are small people, owning the leases of one, two or of a small number of houses. He himself began as an agent for other people, and getting a local knowledge of values and of properties going, began to act on his own account. He is now only acting as agent for one or two small people, finding that he could not manage his own and other people's property at the same time successfully, and there were complaints if he collected rents by deputy.

Mr. Spindelov is full of the difficulties of the position in which the landlord who wants to have decent tenants finds himself. The activity of the local Vigilance Committee has made it very difficult for houses of bad fame to be started; a wonderful amount of activity has been shown during the last few 2 or 3 years, and the consequence is that all sorts of devices are resorted to to get hold of tenements for improper purposes. He himself lets at fair local rents, but is constantly offered either cash down or double rentals. These he can deal with and refuse but it is no so easy to keep these tenants out if, as often happens, they try to get in through some person against whom nothing is known but who really act as agents for other people, handing over the key for a consideration of perhaps £2 to £5. The difficulty of being sure of the character of tenants was illustrated by the case of the Gospel Hall in Greek St. "They got in there, on the first floor".

But if, as occasionally happens, he gets a wrong tenant, the law gives him no more protection than it does against anybody else, and, acting as a landlord, he has to get rid of the worst by the same slow process, as that by which the best tenant is protected. The landlord is the person most easily got at, and in consequence there is always an attempt being made to make him responsible in a most unfair way for the shortcomings of other people, be it their vice, their dirty habits, or their infringements of the Factory and Workshops Acts.

Mr. S. assured me that for rooms that he let for 12/- or 14/- he could always get tenants who would willingly pay him double.

A consequence of the increasing difficulty of getting tenements for improper purposes, by ordinary occupancies, is leading to the greater use of hotels and restaurants "private dining rooms" being a common subterfuge.

As to the Police Mr. S. thought that things had improved a good deal, but had many stories to tell of corrupt practices in times gone by that had come to his notice, among them one of a brothel keeper who boasted of his twelve pounds a week that it cost him to keep his place open. Things are still not quite all that they should be, "a little fishy", and sometimes the members of the Vigilance Committee think it best to watch their own cases, but they have greatly improved. So far as the pubs are concerned, the Police are pretty straight.

As licensing constable all prosecutions of disorderly houses are known to Mr. S. and he tells me that he has been offered £30 for each warning that he gives, so that prosecution may be avoided.

The general conclusion that Mr. S. has come to is that as regards Sanitary Administration, the Police, and Prostitution things have decidedly improved. At the present moment the CLUBS are indubitably the worst things in the district. There are numbers of them -- 30 or 40 -- within a few minutes walk of the church, and at the moment they are a growing evil.

As regards Poverty, there is none, practically, in S. Anne's. The R.O. has told him that 30/- a week wd cover all the out-door relief the parish needed. If there is a miserable able home, it is 100 to 1 that it is caused by drink. Good ^Scaes are always taken up and dealt with by the Rector.

At the end Mr. S. reverted to what is perhaps his pet grievance: the unfair way in which the landlord is treated, both by the law and by public opinion. He considers that the Landlord and Tenant Act requires amendment; that procedure should be simpler; and that it is absurd and unreasonable, that, no matter what kind of tenant you have got, it should take you 5 or 6 weeks to get rid of them. One result of the present state of the law is the creation of the recognized class of "rent-bilkers", who never pay any rent, except perhaps a first week or two, but systematically move about getting their free lodgings for the term that the law may be said to allow them of 6 or 8 weeks until they can be, in turn, got rid of.

Bk. 62 - Dist 4

Interview with Mrs Ruspini at the "Blue Lamp"
38 G. Pultney St. 21 Nov 1898 -

The Blue Lamp is a rescue home connected with I know not what Church organization & there is a Committee, but Mrs Ruspini is the presiding spirit & no one has had more experience in the work. She is a middle aged woman with a gentle manner & very kind face - a very lovable person I should suppose, & her claim to remain in touch with 1000, & more, of those she has had through her hands may be true - they ^{all} belong to the "Perseverance Guild" & are bound to unite at regular intervals -

The work before her time was worked as a mission - that is without a "home" but the home is necessary. In it there is room for 8 girls & I gather that the inmates are moved on as fast as possible - but some may remain for a length of time. Each case is dealt with on its merits - Mrs Ruspini trying to find some suitable future for all. I suppose most are passed on to Rescue homes or Penitentiaries connected with the association to which she is affiliated. She had nothing to say against these institutions. Some of them were rather hard she admitted.

The home has moved more than once but retains always its sign of a blue lamp - in this they followed another institution of the kind with a red lamp - but that is closed & the idea of having houses in all the parts where needed, each to be known in this way fell through.

Mrs Ruspini's method is to cultivate an acquaintance with the girls in the Street even if nothing at first comes of it. Some day they may come - they know they will be welcome, & she has her afternoon at home. She also definitely invites by passing a note into their hand & then sometimes they come.

The low social pitiful life came out very clearly - the idea of sin not at all, in anything she said. She showed great familiarity with their ways of life & thought. She spoke of the remarkable increase of refinement which the life brings - she can only suppose as a result of the intercourse & acquaintance with men of a higher rank. They look down on the habits of their original situation. This is so especially if they rise from the factory girl class in this curious form of social promotion. And as a rule the factory girls do not rise to it - or fall to it - do not seek it or envy it - not she said that they are particularly virtuous but they consort with the young men of their own rank, & not at all as prostitutes. She has a factory girls Club - self constituted. She made known she would be at home on Wednesday afternoons & at first no one came - for 8 weeks it went on so & then a few factory girls came & now it has grown into a Club & I believe she has her after noon at home for the others separately. But the two classes of girls meet on easy terms - & I did not gather there was any virtuous indignation wasted.

It is not uncommon she said for tailoresses whose work fails at certain times to go on the street then return to work when that is again profitable.

I asked whether the increase of refinement of manners & habits led to any kind of self respect - if for instance they would expect & obtain courteous treatment - Mrs. Ruspinic thought money was all they sought. Money was everything. She spoke also of their rough ways & coarse language amongst themselves so the refinement does not go for much - probably more a matter of dress than anything.

We spoke of the relations between these girls & their man or bully - She said they were often devoted to the men even if very badly treated by them. It seems to be almost a marriage - but they are afraid of them & some times will run away to seek shelter. If she sees a girl she scorns in the street the girl will perhaps say 'don't speak to me now he is here & would not like it -' the men hang about on the pavement where the girls walk. This kind live thus in pairs and it is to their home that the stranger is taken. Another class come in from outside & make themselves up for their work in the County Council Lavatories - bring up their face & wash it all off before going home

These of course do not take men home but find accommodation in the hotels & which lay themselves out for this business. There are girls of a higher class who only walk out in the afternoon being at home to receive their friends in the evening. Girls who live several together under charge of a 'mother' do not usually go out at all at night.

She spoke of the girls who had fallen generally having a first baby & of their faithfulness to the care of the child. Only one case she had known of desertion & then she knew the baby would be cared for. The keeper of the child is a great brother. The rescued girls sometimes bring in their babies to the home but there are few facilities & ^{if practicable} ~~more usually~~ the baby is left elsewhere. Mrs Muspini says, as do they all, that the baby's life is the strongest influence for good on these girls.

I asked if she discriminated against foreigners at the home & she said not but that they rarely came & were most difficult to do anything with. They refuse to be sent home & Mrs Muspini thought were more depraved than the English girls - more professional she agreed. The recent legislation she said was already having effect. The men were frightened & they & the girls were moving away.

She spoke however of the foreign girls who used to keep to the East side of Regent St now invading the other side - so up to now they have been spreading.

The English girls are mostly from service or from the same class as servants come from - but there are those of a higher as well as lower class - Governesses & ladies as well as Factory girls. Of course they don't like the life if they live easily in any other way - are well content to be kept by one man if they get the chance. There are she says a good many married women who take to the life if their husband is out of work - giving it up again when necessity no longer presses.

I did not gather that Mrs Ruspini applied any of the emotional religious methods in her dealings with those she seeks to rescue. Sympathy, kindness & good advice I believe are her only weapons. It is the young & newly fallen that she can be most hopeful of - & for these she will sometimes try to find an immediate place in service - not it seems a difficult thing. People being ready to do this for the cause & often doing it well & successfully. She refuses no one who desires to lead a better life but if complacent with a drink the older cases are very hopeless.

Marriage is the best end if it can be reached. She spoke of the frequency of marriages apart from rescue & I gather interested herself in these & also in marriages where apart from prostitution there was cohabitation.

In the home the girls live exactly the life of servants - learning household work including sewing. They do not wear uniform & retain their own clothes if they are not tawdry.

The life in the home is made as pleasant as possible & the girls besides recreation at home are taken out in twos & threes. They are never allowed out alone.

The rule against talking of their past life is strict & is obeyed.

Mrs Ruspini knew nothing of the relations of the girls to the police. Whether they paid the police or not. She thought the police could not find them in for solicitation unless the molested man prosecuted. I doubt her being right about this but that was her impression & practically the police do not interfere. She had no opinion to express as to the policy of leaving so much liccusc in the streets as is done in London -

252

 I do when I see the thought - but I think inclined to repression -
 She was decidedly in favour of prosecution of disorderly houses as weakening them although they did start again. But none of this is her business & her influence would be gone if she was supposed to be an informer.

She does not go into bad houses thinks it useless & no good. She relies on meeting the girls in the street & getting them to come to see her & seems successful in this.

Of those she gets hold of comparatively few fall back.
