A bevy of nephews & nieces, Jan, (Dora) her son:
Boris Cuffin & her two nephews (Stomach Cuffin) children:
Gwen & her son & her son - on the one side - Mrs. ...

John & his wife & her children - Chem, Vera & Skiller & Jimmy - Alfred a tall athletic boy - but silent & looking in front of superior - dull at his work but a fine character in spirit of child of being a genius.

Boris Cuffin, is a good, kind, extremely conventional,
celibate woman: Shocks of all modern views & ideas

Today 2 I had an evening in our little flat with Luke; he &

the great man as an essential negotiator mainly between various groups of Indians - ^{the} India & Alaska. The extracts taken he reports with "knee" (^{so} he says he addresses him) about affairs & policy are, I think, "imaginary conversation" - then was a curious incident as to whether they were at Bombay that or Chagras. But ^{it} is all very good fun. He is never indignant or his chronic and the tales he tells ^{if they are not all true} are vivid anticipation of what might have happened. What I find is that he is describing his jocund of himself in all these personal comings & comings among persons of all sorts & kinds so storming to his own great fault - personal vices. His appearance is just a high too small for a person of socialist opinion. He looks like "The

He does. He has much of the look of a charlatan & a snake. Luke ~~that~~ self confidence; He has ~~has~~ an acute self conclusion.

It pleases me to observe that each finds more in common with the Will

 I don't think I shall have ever seen such a really successful party as the reception of "the home party" which I left out of the

 but I don't think they were much engaged in the subject of the "home party" of the N.C. group of which I then sympathized. Very few reports to the Comtee will be sent before the end - it will certainly not be

The change of opinion about the Russian menace - it is now the menace of the Success of Communism - is reflected in an article in "The Times" January 29th, 1931, on the blue book, about Labour conditions in Russia, issued by the Foreign Office. The article quotes from another column of the same issue an interesting communication from a British timber

The change of opinion about the Russian menace - it is now the menace of the Success of Communism - is reflected in an article in "The Times" January 29th, 1931, on the blue book, about Labour conditions in Russia, issued by the Foreign Office. The article quotes from another column of the same issue an interesting communication from a British timber merchant, who has made numberless visits to Russia, and deprecates an attack on the timber imports while other products are allowed free entry into Great Britain and other countries.

....."In the opinion of a British timber authority the net result will be to create greater credits for Russia in Continental countries rather than in Britain..... "The question as I see it" he said, "is one of Communism versus Commercialism, and the civilized world must decide whether it is going to retain its commercial organizations or adopt Communism.....
"That is the danger as I see it today, and the people of Russia are being compelled or persuaded by propaganda to give the greatest output for the barest minimum of existence in order that imports of manufactures may be kept down and credits for machinery created abroad. Action against the danger by one nation alone would be merely commercial suicide. Isolated action by England would mean that we should have to pay exorbitant prices for timber and other commodities, and for this country or any other individual country to refuse to sell machinery to Russia would raise a political outcry which would be difficult to stifle. If, through the league of Nations, the civilized countries of the world would come together and say that the question is not the conditions in which the people of Russia live, but that of Communism versus commercialism, the remedy would soon be found in the refusal of the rest of the civilized world to supply the machinery that Russia needs to undercut every other country. Russia pays for her agricultural produce by merely turning a printing press, and she does not need gold. As she will have no dividends to pay on capital when her factories are in full swing, she will have no difficulty in dumping over tariffs into any market, except those in which her goods are prohibited. Meanwhile, every country that has any connexion with Russia, and every credit extended to her, including that allowed by the British Government, is helping to bring nearer the day when the products of Communism, if not the creed, will swamp the markets of the world.".....

Faint, illegible text, possibly bleed-through from the reverse side of the page.

Feb 2 started today on the first page of One Partnership. I shall not take this venture so seriously as I do my affluence.

That was a terrific labor - an agony of mind - & someday I thought I was riding to look ^{in more senses than one} of my life - which would make me forever for all time someone I came myself for becoming entangled in the self-conscious scribbles of a woman - a woman how I could get out of printing a - after being it the whole but I had been working on it.

(as I'd say once called the work of it)

The entire process is, as it would seem, but neither your inflated expenditure ^{was} ~~is~~ neither fulfilling nor justified - to look had a series of times but not in popular series - & my jealousy or the hallucination of them to your effect, deducting to cost of it reality, was a far heavier burden - certainly not a half-hour of it anterior! But I am glad I have written it & that my hand has been it.

But I am glad I have written it & that my hand has been it. As I am not interested in it with me sway I must as well measure things with One Partnership - what bothering has me about it. The chain of the end of partnership may bring me to some conclusions about the upshot of life - or rather of my life.

"THE NEW PARTY"

SIR O. MOSLEY'S APPEAL FOR SUPPORT

Sir Oswald Mosley, in a statement issued on Saturday, announced the formation of "The New Party." He seeks to mobilize at least 400 candidates to fight at the next election on a policy that challenges the position of all existing parties, and he appeals for voluntary workers in every constituency, and for finance for the work of organization. The statement declares that sufficient support in Parliament and in the country is already assured to justify the launching of a new political organization.

The following are extracts from the statement:—

To-day the fact of crisis is almost universally admitted, but no national plan or policy of any kind is produced by Government or by Parliament to meet the existing situation.

Some of us, at any rate, are not prepared to continue in the idle game into which politics have sunk without an effort to rouse the nation to action. It is necessary for a few to take the risk of providing the people with an opportunity to work and to fight for a policy of action.

The creation of a new political organization is a great and difficult adventure which few politicians are willing to undertake, however much they agree with the necessity for a new policy. I expect, therefore, to be joined in this enterprise only by such few members of Parliament as have decided that retirement from politics in the event of failure is preferable to acquiescence in the present situation. Sufficient support in Parliament, and above all in the country, however, is already assured to justify the launching of a new political organization. I and my associates appeal therefore to the nation for support in the creation of a new party of action which shall be called "The New Party."

The statement requests prospective members of the party and anyone who is prepared to stand as a candidate to write to "The New Party," 1, Great George-street, Westminster. The policy of the party has already been published in detail in the pamphlet, "A National Policy."

Summarizing the policy the statement says:—We challenge the 50-year-old system of free trade which exposes industry in the home market to the chaos of world conditions, such as price fluctuation, dumping, and the competition of sweated labour, which result in the lowering of wages and industrial decay. We challenge also the century-old system of protection which Conservatives seek to put in the place of free trade, with the result that the employer alone will be protected and entrenched at the expense of both worker and consumer. In place of both these obsolete and ineffective systems we suggest that the worker and consumer, as well as the employer, shall be protected by modern machinery which will maintain in this country a stable market and high standard of life based on high wages, which alone can provide a large home market.

SIR O. MOSLEY'S APPEAL FOR SUPPORT

Sir Oswald Mosley, in a statement issued on Saturday, announced the formation of "The New Party." He seeks to mobilize at least 400 candidates to fight at the next election on a policy that challenges the position of all existing parties, and he appeals for voluntary workers in every constituency, and for finance for the work of organization. The statement declares that sufficient support in Parliament and in the country is already assured to justify the launching of a new political organization.

The following are extracts from the statement:—

To-day the fact of crisis is almost universally admitted, but no national plan or policy of any kind is produced by Government or by Parliament to meet the existing situation.

Some of us, at any rate, are not prepared to continue in the idle game into which politics have sunk without an effort to rouse the nation to action. It is necessary for a few to take the risk of providing the people with an opportunity to work and to fight for a policy of action.

The creation of a new political organization is a great and difficult adventure which few politicians are willing to undertake, however much they agree with the necessity for a new policy. I expect, therefore, to be joined in this enterprise only by such few members of Parliament as have decided that retirement from politics in the event of failure is preferable to acquiescence in the present situation. Sufficient support in Parliament, and above all in the country, however, is already assured to justify the launching of a new political organization. I and my associates appeal therefore to the nation for support in the creation of a new party of action which shall be called "The New Party."

The statement requests prospective members of the party and anyone who is prepared to stand as a candidate to write to "The New Party," 1, Great George-street, Westminster. The policy of the party has already been published in detail in the pamphlet, "A National Policy."

Summarizing the policy the statement says:—We challenge the 50-year-old system of free trade which exposes industry in the home market to the chaos of world conditions, such as price fluctuation, dumping, and the competition of sweated labour, which result in the lowering of wages and industrial decay. We challenge also the century-old system of protection which Conservatives seek to put in the place of free trade, with the result that the employer alone will be protected and entrenched at the expense of both worker and consumer. In place of both these obsolete and ineffective systems we suggest that the worker and consumer, as well as the employer, shall be protected by modern machinery which will maintain in this country a stable market and a high standard of life based on high wages, which alone can provide a large home market.

Sir C. Trevelyan and the Labour Leadership

There were interesting passages in the speeches at to-day's Labour party meeting, when Sir Charles Trevelyan stated why he had resigned from the Government. Sir Charles said he had been an officer and would now become a private, and he went on to make it clear that he had no sympathy with the Mosleyites. But—and this was the most important part of his speech—he added that the party would never get what they actually wanted done until they had changed their leaders. Significant also, I am told, was the stony silence with which Sir Charles's remarks were received—a silence maintained throughout. Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, on the other hand, was received with cheers which lasted a full two minutes. He said there had been some resignations, and it was likely there would be more. The sooner these came the better, for it would be well to know who was for and who was against. He wanted to have a loyal team.

At a Meeting of the National Executive Committee of the Labour Party held in London on Tuesday, March 10th, the following Resolution was unanimously adopted:

"That the National Executive Committee resolves that the action taken by Sir Oswald Mosley, M.P., in seeking to create a new Party, with organisations in opposition to the Divisional and Local Labour Parties throughout the country and with Parliamentary Candidates in opposition to Labour Members and Labour Candidates in the constituencies, cannot be reconciled with Membership of the Labour Party, under whose auspices he has been elected to Parliament, whose Constitution and Standing Orders he has undertaken to accept, and whose interests he has been elected to the National Executive Committee to serve.

"In these circumstances the National Executive Committee consider that its duty is to inform the Smethwick Constituency Party that by this act of gross disloyalty its representative ceases, under the Constitution, to be a Member of the Labour Party.

"The National Executive Committee further resolves that adherence to the proposed new Party is incompatible with Membership of the Labour Party and instructs the Secretary to communicate accordingly to the affiliated organisations and to the Members of the Parliamentary Party."

ARTHUR HENDERSON,
(Honorary Secretary).

MOSLEY AND SOCIALISM.

When the Mosley Party was founded a few months ago we ventured to prophesy that it would have a "short life and a gay one."

But we didn't think that its collapse would come about as quickly as it appears to have done this week.

Within a week of its birth W. J. Brown deserted it, to be followed a few days afterwards by John McGovern.

Now the chief organiser, Mr. Allan Young, who handed over the seat to the Tories at Ashton-under-Lyne, has deserted, followed by its two pamphleteers Mr. Strachey and Mr. Joad.

In "The Sunday Chronicle" (26.7.31) Sir Oswald Mosley tells an interviewer:—

"These resignations have done us a world of good," he said. "We have purged the party of all associations with Socialism."

"Yesterday we had the greatest enrolment of men and women since the formation of the party. We should not have made this headway had the 'suspects' remained with us."

"Those who think we are gasping for our last breath will shortly have the shock of their lives. We have planned a vast oratorical campaign for the autumn."

"We are taking special steps to secure the support of the youth of the country, and we are launching a weekly paper."

When the Mosley Manifesto was issued Dr. Forgan explained that he was backing it because the Government was too slow in moving towards Socialism.

Now that the High Panjandrum has announced that the Party has been "purged of all associations with Socialism," Dr. Forgan will have some difficulty in explaining his position in West Renfrew.

Perhaps I am now
for Sunday & Sunday

which we know we will never

I intend to do is to bestir myself, continue the 19th June Whether I have taken the choice of my two servants to remain in the my week at Herts was spoiled by a domestic brawl at Passford between Mr Owen & his younger sister

 due to Mr Owen's overbearing temper & Jane's nervous temper. For the last year, I have refused let it not be possible to keep servants here with Mr Owen & to buy one - but I have put off till the end of June without Owen who, in many ways, is a good servant & a good farmer. I shall miss her for the electric light - which, working steadily & being generally responsible & unobtrusive as well as a respectable one, who is never at the public house & always ready to spot the most emergencies. Mr Owen, is far too clever & attractive for her station & life,
 she has a villainous temper & a sharp tongue & has upset every servant who has been here by coming in & out of their clods, as the proverb is.
 Now she is trying to poison my mind about the State sister, as she is about Jessie, ^{and} the two little girls who were here for two years. The Smiths are admirable servants - from the stern point of view & skill - ~~but they are~~ but they are both jealous & rather morbid - it remains to be seen whether they are absolutely trustworthy -

I have had, in my long career as a minister, before many, of many servants, from my mother of ~~and~~ two ~~for~~ ^{only three} ~~absolutely~~ trust only servants, Dick & his Thompson a father's household, & Ernie Wordley is my own. All these ^{have} earned, by their trustworthiness annuities - And they richly deserve this! Skill & industry one can buy, but perfect honesty & absence of all deception is priceless & should be rewarded long after the service is at an end. It is interesting but depressing how quite intelligent & otherwise well-conducted servants will carry on an illicit & gainful business - they seem actually to enjoy the risks of it - it is a form of gambling - they have no notion of the eventual loss of conscience as regarded on the part of the mistress - not to mention their own peace of mind! However, there is a far higher level of honor & honesty today than there was fifty years ago when I started householding
 - largely because servants & mistresses are on far more equal terms than they were ~~some days~~ - there is more freedom between them - & no decent person cheats
 for a friend! Small deceptions &

 Will you tell to others any such conduct was inexcusable — it would have been too horribly humiliating to their own self respect.

A private secretary who made a false entry of cash spent,
 who has completely lost his self respect, he would be in his own estimation, a criminal. So strong is the curious fact "the custom of li-

 hence the different standards of morality — another

HUSBAND AND WIFE'S DISCUSSIONS ON FREE LOVE

PHIBBS, N. A. v. PHIBBS, J. B.

Before MR. JUSTICE LANGTON

In this undefended suit Mrs. Norah Allison Phibbs, nee McGuinness, at present living at Londonderry, Ulster, prayed for the dissolution of her marriage with Mr. Jeffrey Basil Phibbs, an author, of Upper Mall, Hammersmith, on the ground of his adultery with a woman named. The petitioner admitted that she had herself committed adultery and asked the Court to exercise its discretion in her favour.

The marriage took place on April 15, 1925, at the Ballyarnett Presbyterian Church, Templemore, Co. Derry.

Mr. T. Bucknill appeared for the petitioner.

JUDGMENT

MR. JUSTICE LANGTON, in giving judgment, said that both parties appeared to be of artistic tastes. According to the petitioner's story, which he accepted as accurate, they discussed various opinions on free love, which appeared to have been held in an advanced form by the husband. The wife, whether as the result of that doctrine or not, so far as the evidence went, seemed to have fallen—fallen from the point of view of Christian morality, if not from the point of view which her husband held. She seemed to have been then, as now, commendably frank, and told her husband all about it. He seemed to have thought less of his own doctrine than than he had before.

Shortly afterwards, having condoned his wife's offence, he put his doctrine into most generous practice, and took first one mistress and then another. The petitioner seemed to have abandoned the doctrine, and to have come to the conclusion that it was not quite so attractive as she had at first imagined. Both were quite young people when they were married. That might be an excuse for their exceedingly foolish behaviour.

The petitioner, certainly, had recently behaved much better, and seemed to have realized that the original doctrine which her husband preached to her had disadvantages. He (his Lordship) believed that she wanted to lead a decent life in the future, and for that reason he would exercise his discretion in her favour and grant a decree nisi, with costs.

How for instance is our country ~~land~~ ^{land} ~~settling~~ ^{settling} ~~our~~ ^{our} present home: what I did not foresee was that Sidney would be a Peer retiring from Cabinet Office - at the age of 72 - & that I should be writing at 73. ~~Am~~ ^{Am} still a honey moon couple.

* Yesterday June 1930 I went to Wagner Wells ^{round} and 5 Sevier miles or more ~~but~~ but I was ~~excited~~ ~~and~~ not sleep at night.

There are three spare bedrooms, there are two cupboards; but instead of the one lounge there are ^{three} sitting rooms
- a study, 2 a guests sitting room, and a hall-dressing.
- an improvement because of Jim's privacy. And there is absolute quiet except for the birds; on Tuesday then now at 2 a.m. I listen to the nightingales in the wood nearby. An ideal country home.

There remains to be practiced the art of "elegance"
of "getting on". Ages both are apt to be querulous, to complain of their infirmities - ~~but~~ ~~there~~ ~~is~~
I mean a relation ~~with~~ insist on why the "tho are you" - to end it from the thing has to answer "Oh! I am stupid" which is not true - or "As well as any other person can be" which is quite an obvious evasion, or to start off deciding small ailments - or to introduce on the question is uninteresting - 2 assumes that a old person is, 2 must be, a sick person.

Singer & I motored over to see Philip Snow - at the request. He seems apparently in excellent spirits & capable to hold on & wants to discuss his future plans. "So far as I can see - it matters very little between you & me" said he. SW told him exactly what he had written to G.P.M. even to suggest that if he P.S. were not strong enough for S.P.S. etc, P.S. might go back, & P.S. take to C. go back with Spencer his seat in the Cabinet. This pleases neither of the Snows - Ethel ^{to me} ~~dislikes~~ it - as will P.S. to have a sincere @ J. S.W. encourage the view of the Colonel etc - Why do not Snows come up to the house with the budget in July? It ends in P.S. asking S.W. to hold on for a "month or two": he wd let him know when he has talked it over with Macdonald's new view. Incidentally they both spoke contemptuously of Thomas: he was universally despised in the City - he was a scandal to the Liberal Party: a ^{word} ~~man~~ and general of the worst kind - "Our Babylonian" I remark. "Oh! far worse than that was Ethel's return.!"

Sunday come down to see us with J. N. D.'s letter in his pocket. This morning, said I after reading it, "I have seen the look on F. S.'s face. He will resign on P. D., & ^{the thing} ~~the thing~~ Newcomer he set for; who will inherit the bulk of J. N. D.'s business. These are all important to the Capital, Personnel, Almoner & finally Money at Bradford. It is a most-desirable way out for you. As I think it will take place early in August."

So he had thought of this solution; he has been so long, in fact, so long that he had to mention it in his letter. But he came to know that he was right in his most-probable explanation of J. N. D.'s letter. And it came out that Newcomer has been in the business, but it is P. D. he is to have "either you or I must go to the H. of C." It is clear that we have to consider the ^{2nd} ~~1st~~ ^{consequence} of the letter he has done, ~~hope~~ leaving Newcomer to face the good old one. This change of ~~the~~ ^{will} ~~work~~ ^{also} ~~is~~ ^{is} some hope of reuniting the independent clients with the L. & P. before the Scarborough Corporation is taken. And we shall be able to settle down comfortably at Passford for the last few days of life together. With the threatened loss of interest in investments, it will have to be on a economical scale; otherwise we will not be able to continue to live at Passford without sharing of with some other person, which will be a nuisance in our own eyes! We do not want even the best of home money.

July 25

Before I left Buddy told I had a talk with the Hotel keeper's wife - an educated woman & concerning how things were, she & her husband always should be seen & he "read some of your books". They were not fully young yet & had no children: & he came from ^{to B.H.} because the man he had been married with T.B. & he kept up his little ^{in London} Pension business. She said the Hotel keeper had been a revelation to her - that there was no ~~sexual~~ merely left - all her little girls - in Cissy's sense she had 16 of them, had but one son - to have a good time, that meant a night out with a man, that she meant with a series of different men. At first she worried about it; but after the first of year, she relaxed but she could not keep her mouth without forming in person. They were as to that very honest & pleasant to deal with; but they were kind of tame & absorbed in their "pleasures". The same absence of shame or any code of morals she noticed in the guests: men or women & she kept them with different women, & girls with different men - then again she ~~was~~ ^{was} at first, to refuse to take in some of the ~~most~~ couples; but her husband remarked that you could not ask to see "the marriage line" before someone & couple with a woman had to know - even the chief men.

But above ~~everything~~ ^{everything}; Pauline always was long support - both of to the; & other clergy in long the end to be. 4 of course, for one went to church a chapel. "But you are come here, when my husband & I have written to the C. G. (the same) & said, "we went to church three times every Sunday & several in the week time too" "here on average." What indicates me is how on we going to get another school code?

 All codes in the hands of mothers & women here,
 & it is to be seen on religious tables of others these religious codes, there is no law of common & put - that school behavior in them is a other kind of behavior. For instance all intelligent person believe in a minimum of honesty as necessary for a decent life; this also ~~is~~ is a duty to society for another sake.
 So at life what honesty - kindness - would be a most-important character & we are required to such. But when you go to school but are not in school in fact & if so, what law of restraint of so be, there is no appeal - answer to these parents.
 All this is Hygiene: all you know of - improve

June 28th Ellen Williams & Charlotte Thomas have been with us. Ellen has been termed politically by being the loyal P.S. of Susan & is full of admiration for her chief the result. On one long walk together she asked me what I thought of her position; was it reasonable to expect a woman in public life who did not want to get married to remain a celibate, if she had a personal friend who better than have an uncongenial wife? I answered by

Are there savings for the coal consumption - or I have an iron industry as 2 or 3 million spent on production of iron & steel?

If not why not? If we use that iron & steel? and there are other energies in clearing up the mess of concentration. So that we could build on a sound foundation.

Sept 21. 5-9 m.

(a Sunday morning)

When Henderson was well under way Weaver Dero Duff rang up to ask Henderson to come to London so that he might see & advise the letter to P.M. had sent his ~~the~~ ~~request~~ Henderson. Possibly, mainly come to London: mostly report that Sunday he told him that at a Cabinet on Thursday
 the date of the f. e. - he was free to discuss details.
 Apparently the Party met on Saturday & sent the letter to P.M. The letter of P.M. is primarily a request to Henderson to persuade the P.L.P. to help the National Fed. out of its difficulty by either giving a subsidy this would then be a f. e. Henderson is quite sure that he will do nothing without the approval of the three executives at P.L.P. otherwise he will keep "an open mind". There is a very strong feeling in relation to a subsidy that Congressmen are willing to give up the enormous in major relation to the Fed. But such a subsidy is inevitable if the Standard Oil Company & other firms - and the Government.
 It is one thing not to do a political thing; it is another to go back on it even if it is with "In American in the West". However, it is to the central States of and look like the first step is the Revolution; rebellion is the first him, after to some Russian revolution, the classical way of opposing the existing Government. Henderson agreed that we had come to the end of an epoch & needed a new policy, Department of the Treasury had feared. "If you can could set down a program, what we have been saying, that's what I want" was his parting words.

Sept 23

When on the Sunday afternoon, two cabinet minutes & the Henderson was discussing the probable character of the P.M.'s program to Henderson to return to know, not one of them had to mention anything about the decision to go off to get started" only a reference to the fact that Henderson had broadcast to say of the program of the Federal Gov, the horrors
- completely of all kinds in July & August of the war - implies of "loss of power";
no such suggestion ^{of any kind} has been even noted at any Cabinet meetings - the saying to "help" of the power had been the very purpose of the report which went to U.S. & France & the same for coming to Henderson & going to the Federal Gov. At the meeting on the 7th. Henderson was

HOUSE OF LORDS

WEDNESDAY, NOV. 25 1931.

The LORD CHANCELLOR took his seat on the Woolsack at a quarter to 4 o'clock.

THE INTRODUCTION OF LORD SNOWDEN

There was a large attendance of peers when, after prayers, Viscount Snowden of Ickornshaw (formerly Mr. Philip Snowden) was introduced. The Peereses' Gallery, the Strangers' Gallery, the Galleries for the members of the House of Commons, and the Press Gallery were crowded. Among those standing on the steps of the Throne were the Prime Minister, Mr. Baldwin, Mr. Churchill, Mr. Runciman, Sir D. Maclean, and Mr. Ormsby-Gore. The Opposition benches looked strangely deserted, no Labour peer being present, nor was any Opposition member of the House of Commons visible. Viscount Snowden's sponsors were Viscount D'Abernon and Viscount Lee of Fareham. The new peer and his sponsors wore the scarlet and ermine robes of viscounts, with their black three-cornered hats.

The proceedings were carried out with the customary ceremonial, but took a little longer than usual, owing to the fact that Viscount Snowden is always compelled to walk with the aid of two sticks. The procession round the Chamber was headed by Black Rod (Sir W. P. Pulteney) and Garter King of Arms (Sir G. Wollaston). When it halted at the Woolsack the Lord Chancellor rose and shook hands with Viscount Snowden. This was a departure from custom, for the Lord Chancellor almost invariably remains seated while the new peer bows and shakes hands. Viscount Snowden took the oath in a firm, if somewhat low, voice, and, as he walked round the Chamber, smiled and nodded at Viscount Brentford and some of the other peers near whom he passed.

France's Man of 151A Destiny

by W. N. Ewer

"M. Paul Boncour now sees the Premiership in his grasp."

FRENCH politicians of the various anti-Socialistic parties have been casting envious glances at Westminster. And moved by envy and the spirit of emulation, they are now laying plans for their own elections in the Spring.

Men and Things Abroad

Why should not they as well conspire to shatter the French Socialist Party to bits? Why not a great "National" campaign, the whole bourgeois line from Right to Left—followed, of course, by a division of spoil and (in matters of policy) meek acquiescence of the Left in all the desires and schemes of the Right?

Checking the Swing

think the politicians, is the way in which the very notable Left can be checked. An of the "Radical-Socialists" and "Anti-Republicans" and the rest of the vaguely Radical parties with the Right is the only way to prevent an alliance between them and the Socialists.

It even that is not enough. An essential part of the admired tactics of the British coalition was the driving of a wedge into the Labour Party itself—the driving away of its leader, the shaking of confidence on the eve of the electoral battle.

That they intend, too, to repeat in France.

A MacDonald Needed

FOR it the help of a Socialist leader, or a few Socialist leaders, is essential. Anti-Socialist politicians in France need a MacDonald.

They believe that they have found him. And, indeed, they did not have to look far.

M. Paul Boncour is there, ready for service. Not, indeed, a MacDonald—for he has never had the wide influence of the one-time British Labour leader. But still a passable, perhaps an adequate, substitute.

"Careerism"

THERE is not, in France, anything new in a Socialist leader changing camps, turning against his old Party, rising to high office in the service of the other side.

Now he believes it has come.

That road of careerism is well worn. A Socialist past almost gives a man claim to the Premiership.

Millerand showed the way. Briand and Viviani followed. Laval is only the latest of the series.

The Cat Jumps

NOW comes Paul Boncour's turn. He has been preparing for years past to jump when his moment arrived. His Socialism has long been a vanishing quantity: his party loyalty is negligible.

Every few months the rumour of his coming resignation, of his acceptance of high office, has been current. It has always been premature. Paul Boncour has bided his time.

His moderate ambition has contented itself in the past with thoughts of the Foreign Office. Now he sees the Premiership in his grasp.

And such a Premiership! A MacDonald Premiership. Head of a National Government, flattered by all the world, except the Socialists.

Flamboyant orator at the Bar and of the Chamber, most photographed of all the famous beauties of France, what man in all the world fitter to be the splendid head of such a splendid Government!

He has all the qualities—save one. He commands no confidence at all in the Socialist ranks. His followers will be a handful.

Ready for Call

BUT for all that he is at the moment France's latest man of destiny.

He has made ready for the call by having himself transferred from the Chamber to the Senate—thus avoiding any danger of personal unseating when the fight comes.

The next step is the shaking down of the unsteady Laval Ministry: the raising of the cry of National Crisis: the patriotic "sacred union" of the parties: the chivalrous offer of the Maginots and Tardieus and Herriots to serve under a Socialist Premier.

And then—full steam ahead for the Election and War on the Socialist Party.

offer the wonderful new

IMPROVED

The old and proven tradition always comes back into its own. "Those of us," he concludes, "who have kept our heads throughout the last post-war decade, with its timid and anti-mental flight from sentiment, are being to inherit the future."

Is Mr. Raymond right? Among the best-selling novels of the moment are Mr. Galsworthy's "Main Waving" and Mrs. Virginia Woolf's "The Waves." Mr. Galsworthy's book "old-fashioned" in plot, incident and characterisation. Mrs. Woolf, on the other hand, breaks new ground with a new method in her story.

Which will inherit the future?

Mr. Francis Stevens, a retired optician, of Bradford, near Reading (Berks), left a number of bequests, to St. Dunstan's Home for Soldiers blinded in the war.

The Cates here for four days: he ^{has} a physical check for Diabetes, ~~work~~ in riding, golfing; keeping out books of the book, articles every week 2 pamphlets 2 leaflets 2 papers. The first day he walks to Miller 2 she went on another two walks. For the rest of the time, they stay in down ^{enveloped in tobacco smoke} conversations of work, writing, reading, writing. They are devoted to each other; she regulates his diet, discussing with him every scrap he eats. He is ⁱⁿ the school against the traditional conception of history because, if you please, the Communist scholars have dominated the ^{mechanistic} school of history or "materialism" and address themselves chiefly to the Hegelian ideology of the struggle for the conquest of the state. I suppose that they will get over their metaphysical dogmatism and then emphasize the study of an England like a lot of books of socialism, proletarian & internationalism here plus a dash.

I read my paper on Social Imperialism that an Eng? & he gave me valuable hints on the editorial side. He says that to your people are all Communist, but that it is largely a pose with them: they are not "living to life" and are not ready to take the problems. Like the Cubans, the Trotskyists take their life as a serious, live in clouds of tobacco smoke, & drink & smoke in the evening - but not so much. According to Trotsky, Cuba has always lived too luxuriously - & has brought on its disaster by eating too richly & too expensively. He says that the standard of Communism at the school is dominated by the little group heads of Krollin, of other individuals & apologists for perfecting capitalism - it has nothing to do with the method almost exclusively.

Michael F. Tolson & his wife are well - he tall & handsome - in a not-altogether
 pleasant way; she plain dress, pleasant ^{well mannered}
 - both during year. He has a mysterious past; scuttled & hidden - 1915; has been friendly with Lenin & Geneva, prior to war; went on to Moscow immediately after the Oct 1917 revolution; was seen by Lenin before he died in 1924(?) & has been at work in Moscow
 ever since, ^{common} working in Russia, for America & England & no doubt other papers in Europe
 - in a non-committal but friendly way.

I do not be surprised if it turns out that he was a Communist agent since a great deal of his ^{stays in London - especially at Geneva} work is ⁱⁿ more or less transparent to the new regime ^{in 1917}. He is chief in the criticism of the Soviet Gov, tho' he is ^{not} a Communist, & is certainly ^{friendly} discreet in his reports about it. Even in conversation, he wants to see how to wind things from the other side.*

He gave the ^{new} familiar account of the 5th plan. The Intellectuals ^{non-combat} had changed their attitude three times since 1917.

The first five years they were wholly hostile & believed that the revolution would be beaten with Allied help: that it was a crime of 1917 & they became more favorable, & even gave the administration thinking, but the Gov. was drifting back to Capitalism & that they had better be in ^{the} ^{end} of it.

With advent of the 5th Plan & the Russian Collectivization, they became again acutely hostile & undoubtedly did their best to sabotage, & escaped out of Russia. ^{Some killed} They were punished & a class of others realized their mistake & became submitters to the Communist régime ^{and did what they were told}.

Satisfied national among people is converting the children ^{of some of} the emigrants; & at any rate, their children to the Soviet system. Russia appears a new character ⁱⁿ in her affair on the lesson of a new culture, which is in the ascendant in the desert world. ^{the} Ministry's Consciousness & Communism & his return there, is not a sign of a sign; the young people among it do not rule down an empire any more.

If the 5th plan succeeds their enemies ^{will} vanish. The Communist regime will gradually dominate & vanish. The present the new form of Russia

Thomas Day 1931.

This Day forty year ago I was at Bob House; Father was dying & I & I were ~~at~~ at his bed side watching the flicking out of his dear life. I had been provided engaged to Susan for some months and I was awaiting the death of the dear one to tell my family that I was bound to another for the rest of my life - I both of us bound up ~~with~~ in the vocation of ~~conclusion~~ engaged into social ~~of~~ ~~in~~ ~~the~~ ~~life~~, ^{of} ~~of~~ ~~of~~ extraordinary happiness & some success. "I knew my little Bee would do well for herself" I can hear her dear father saying, ^{with his beamy smile} if he came back to see.
~~perhaps~~ For he had a ~~good~~ opinion of my business capacity & matter of fact ~~product~~ -
 - Others of his daughters had ~~great~~ personal charms & good looks - "but for sheer common sense give me my little Bee". He would say.
 Now I think he was right. "Beetle" once saw Loretta Currier & that "her prettiest capacity - she is not an intellectual - she much applies this ^{general} capacity to certain problems of the intellect." And that is exactly what I want to do about Russia. Those who think about Russia seen time to become hysteric - ^{with her} see either see red, or see my third

This queer experience of being at the center - or ostensibly center of parallel power - is now ended for today, & we can resume the

of the ^{financial} situation which gets our money, but of the governmental machinery. But they are a devil of a bunch & have lost faith in themselves & their system. Russia & her
