6. CAPE OF GOOD HOPE.

Report of the Superintendent-General of Education for the Year 1891.

Presented to both Houses of Parliament by command of His Excellency the Governor.

1892.

Office of the Superintendent-General of Education,
Cape Town, 31st December, 1891.

The Honourable the Colonial Secretary, &c., &c., &c.

SIR,—The annual report on the Department of Public Education is respectfully submitted to the Government.

2. The school system generally, and the various objects for which grants are made from the Public Treasury, were so fully set forth in the last report that it is unnecessary to give any further description of them.

CHANGES IN REGULATIONS.

3. The only changes made in the Regulations during the last session of Parliament were the raising of the capitation allowances in Private Farm Schools to £3 and £2 per annum respectively, according to the status of the teacher, and the admission of teachers of these schools to the privilege of Good Service Allowance. The new rule restricting the aggregate grant for scholars and for indigent boarders to £30 per annum is likely to act prejudicially. Farmers will reduce the number of boarders within the limit of the grant.

CHANGES IN STANDARDS.

4. In the standards of attainments in elementary subjects under which the Inspectors classify scholars after examination, the requirements of the Standards V and VI as regards the Dutch language have been assimilated; and it is notified that teachers for Private Farm Schools and Circuit Schools will be accepted if they produce evidence of fitness and of their qualifications to teach the English or Dutch language, writing, and arithmetic. Of course it is desirable to employ teachers who know both languages. When schools are conducted in the Dutch language, the Inspector's examination will be conducted in that language.

OFFICIAL CHANGES.

5. The year has been marked by the death of the Secretary and Examiner, Mr. George Maconachie, who, during the seventeen years of his connection with this Department, had proved himself an efficient and zealous Officer, and won the confidence and esteem both of his colleagues and the whole body of public teachers.

6. Mr. Rowan, the Senior Inspector, owing to failing health, has been absent on leave during part of the year, and contemplates retirement from his office after a long service of usefulness and conscientious work.

Mr. J. H. Brady, M.A., entered upon his duties as Assistant Superintendent-General of Education on the 1st of September.

Mr. Charles Murray, M.A., Deputy-Inspector of Schools, has been promoted to the vacant office of Secretary.

SCHOOLS AND ENROLMENT.

7. The Institutions and Schools in receipt of Government Grants during the whole or some portion of the year numbered 1,605; 150 new schools were opened during the year; 90 were closed.

The annual enrolment of scholars was 104,056.

The highest quarterly enrolment of scholars was 80,320.

The average daily attendance was 58,721.

8. The comparative lists of schools in receipt of grants for the last three years are as follows:—

9. The State expenditure for the financial year, which ended on the 30th of June, 1891, amounted to £152,845 17s. 1d., and was distributed as under. It will be noticed that the large sum of £26,260 was specially voted and spent for School Buildings.

LOCAL EXPENDITURE.

10. The Local Expenditure, as gathered from the Returns furnished by Managers and Teachers, was £137,116 19s. 7d.

COST OF EDUCATION.

11. The approximate cost to Government, excluding expense of general administration, inspection, and the special grants for school buildings, was £1 15s. per annum for each scholar in daily attendance at all Institutions and Schools connected with the Department.

The approximate cost to Government of each scholar in daily attendance in the Udenominational Public Day-schools was £2 8s. 9d.; of each scholar in the Mission Schools, 15s. 7d.; of each scholar in Aborigines' Institutions (Trades) and Day-schools, £1 6s. 8d.

The average total cost of each scholar in daily attendance for the year was £4 1s. 8d., of which amount £2 6s. 8. was paid by local managers.

NEGLECT TO FURNISH RETURNS.

12. Owing to the neglect of many Managers and Teachers to furnish punctually the statistics of enrolment and attendance and the financial statements of their schools, the conclusions arrived at by the officers of the Department are necessarily approximate; the calculated rates are, perhaps, higher than they would be if there were no defaulters.

It is remarkable that, even after repeated calls for School Returns, the sense of obligation on the part of the recipients of public grants is so dull as to lead to no satisfactory response; the fault is put to the account of the Post Office, usually a very convenient but not a trustworthy excuse.

INSPECTIONS.

13. The results of the classification of scholars after examination by the Inspectors were as follows:—

YEAR.	No. of Schools Inspected.	No. of Scholars on the Books.	No. present at Inspection.	Infants and below Standard I.	Standard I.	Standard II.	Standard III.	Standard IV.*	Standard V.†	Standard VI (Preliminary).	Standard VI (Final).	Above Standard.
1889-90	1,270	68,696	53,972	24,536	9,126	8,598	6,668	2,938	1,492	359	58	197
1890-91	1,313	67,544	55,794	24,560	9,964	8,878	6,883	3,041	1,674	387	33	374

* Standard IV.—This is the highest Standard in which Inspectors examine scholars in Native Day schools.

† Standard V.—This is the highest Standard for Native Institutions, Private Farm Schools, Circuit Schools, and Mission Schools.

14. The 4th Standard is considered a satisfactory leaving test of scholars attending Mission Schools, and a fair one of scholars in 3rd class Undenominational Public Schools. The requirements are :—

1. Read an ordinary narrative fluently and correctly.
2. Write freely to dictation.
3. Work examples in Reduction and Vulgar Fractions, and perform easy mental exercises.
4. Show a reasonable acquaintance with the Geography of the World generally, and South Africa specially.
5. Show knowledge of the Elements of Grammar, including Parts of Speech, and composition of a sentence.

Intelligence is also tested by the object lessons.

15. It may be assumed that of every 100 scholars in attendance 20 are infants (below 7 years of age).

16. As a means of comparison, it is interesting to note that in Scotland (Report 1889-90), for every hundred of school-going age (5 to 14) who might be on the register, 81 were actually enrolled, and 62 were in daily attendance. In this Colony about 74 of every 100 white children of school-going age are on the rolls of schools, public and private, and 67 are in daily attendance.

PRIVATE FARM SCHOOLS AND CIRCUIT SCHOOLS.

17. The following table exhibits the results as ascertained by inspection :—

Private Farm Schools and Circuit Schools.			1889.	1890.	1891.
No. of Schools Inspected	269	275	307
No. of Scholars on the Roll...	2,274	2,571	3,015

Many Farm Schools are changed into Third-class Undenominational Public Schools under the ordinary conditions of aid.

Candidates are required to have passed previously before the Inspector in Standard V, and in the preliminary Standard VI, as set forth in the Education Manual.

A full report of the Examination was published in the Government Gazette.

TRUSTS.

21. The Funds held and administered by the Superintendent-General of Education, under the titles of the Civil Service Bursary Fund and the Levy Gift, amounting to £200 and £105 respectively, were lodged in the Cape of Good Hope Bank at the time of its failure. 15s. in the £ has been repaid, and the amount recovered is now lodged in the Post Office Savings Bank.

TEACHERS' CERTIFICATES.

22. The examination of candidates for Middle-Class Teachers' Certificates was held in Cape Town in June. Of 25 candidates who appeared, 14 obtained certificates of competency, and seven certificates with honours. Third-class Certificates were given to four.

23. The examination for Third-Class (or Elementary) Teachers' Certificates was held at 38 centres on the 29th of September and following days; 400 candidates were registered, 384 appeared. The following were the results :—

1	passed with honours, English and Dutch.
18	„ competency, „
1	„ honours, English.
80	„ competency, „
16	„ „ English and Kafir.
2	„ „ English and Sesuto.

52 candidates who had previously obtained the Public School Certificate or had passed the School Higher Examination, qualified themselves in the supplementary subjects for the Teachers' Examination and obtained certificates.

48 candidates obtained provisional certificates (English and Kafir or Sesuto), which hold good for two years, at the expiration of which holders are required to present themselves for a further test of their qualifications.

TEACHERS INTRODUCED FROM ABROAD.

24. Grants in aid of the passage expenses of teachers from abroad were made during the year in the following cases:—

Teacher.	School.
Beaumont, Miss J. M.,	Normal College, Cape Town.
Dods, D. A.,	Public School, Wellington.
Kiddell, Miss C.,	Girls' Public School, Mossel Bay.
Lewis, Miss A., B.A.,	Girls' Public School, Uitenhage.
Morton, Miss E.,	Good Hope Seminary, Cape Town.
Russell, W. A., M.A.,	South African Coll. School, Cape Town.
Roberts, A. E., B.A.,	Dale College, King Wm.'s Town.
Sears, Miss R.,	Girls' Public School, Wellington.

Since the close of the financial year, grants in aid of the passages of five additional teachers have been paid, viz.:—

Chapman, W.,	Training Institution, Heald Town.
Cory, G. E., B.A.,	Public School, Grahamstown.
James, Miss J.,	Girls' Public School, Wynberg.
Way, W. A., B.A.,	Public School, King Wm.'s Town.
White, Miss F.,	Girls' Public School, Uitenhage.

TRADE CLASSES.

25. There is a growing desire to open Trade Classes in connection with the Public Schools; those for boys usually provide for instruction in carpentry; in the girls' schools professional dressmaking (cutting out, &c.) is taught. 17 trade classes were in operation with 283 pupils.

This is a good basis on which a system of technical instruction can soon be built.

THE SCHOOL SYSTEM: ITS WANTS.

26. The engagement between the Education Department and the School Managers for a limited period of three years, without any provision for continuous succession, renders the position of teachers and school property somewhat insecure. The subject has been considered by the Education Commission, and will probably be reported on.

27. The re-organization of those Mission Schools which are largely attended by white children who are not adherents of any Mission congregation, but attend these schools in the absence of any other provision for their instruction, has been year after year brought to public notice, and the Regulations proposed for 4th Class Undenominational Public Schools have been put before the Commission. 10,654 white or European children attended the Mission Schools during the year.

28. The extension of the agencies for training Elementary Teachers is being carried out. A department with 15 male candidates under a method-master has been opened at Wellington, and a similar one at Robertson. Each is in connection with the Undenominational Public School of the town. The Normal College, Cape Town, and the Huguenot Seminary, Wellington, have their full complement of male and female candidates.

29. The subjects of irregular attendance and of truancy in towns will no doubt be reported on by the Commission. The draft of a proposed School Attendance Act has been communicated to the Commissioners.

THE UNIVERSITY AND ITS COLLEGES.

30. It is time to forecast the wider development of University work in South Africa, for various reasons: among others, the fairly successful working of the present system for nearly twenty years; the demand for extension, so as to keep pace with the growth in wealth and intelligence, and with the discovery of resources in the soil, which must lead to new industries requiring scientific knowledge and practical training; and further the disposition and announced intention of men of wealth to encourage in this country the necessary agencies for providing the highest modern appliances of a fully equipped University.

31. The establishment of Universities grows, as it were, naturally out of the Schools and Colleges, as their completion and cope-stone. The future students have been for years led up to and prepared for academic tests; and the national sympathy and support, thus fostered and carried on, are enlisted in crowning the edifice with national honours, endowments, and privileges.

32. When the University is thus slowly and gradually evolved out of the aspirations of students, local wants, and the national enthusiasm for progress in Literature, Science and the Arts, no words are needed to set forth its claims, to elucidate its aims and purposes, or to picture out the educational wants which its establishment is called upon to supply.

33. And what is the natural development and extension of the University of the Cape of Good Hope? A direct relation between the University and the teaching Colleges; the extension of the practical departments of Science in connection with the development of the industrial resources of South Africa; a residential College for students under the usual academical influences and restraints of discipline, common life, and social institutions, combined with direction of studies and moral and intellectual guidance.

The extension of University Lectures throughout the Colony will be an adjunct of ever widening influence.

34. There are now five colleges where students follow the ordinary courses for degrees in Literature and Science. The full development of special departments of Practical Science, either in a separate institution, or as a completion of one of the existing colleges is urgently required.

37. Whatever form the development of the University may take, it must be the desire and aim of those who are interested in the advanced education of the Colony that all the functions, which a modern University may be expected to fulfil, should belong to the University of the Cape of Good Hope, so that the fruits of the full life and varied culture of the University may be brought within the reach of the Colonial community.

38. The influences of University life, both in its intellectual and social aspects, are lasting and far-reaching; the brotherhood of heart is as strong as that of mind; the national spirit, too, is accentuated in this microcosm; and in these days, when cosmopolitan views are largely professed and carry no little popular favour, the cultivation of an enthusiastic attachment to hearths and homes is needed among those who are to guide the destinies of the embryo African nationality. The Colonists will do well to use every means to fit themselves and their sons and daughters to take wise and prudent parts in working out the great future, of which the prospect looms larger year by year.

ABORIGINES' SCHOOLS.

39. The 25,000 school-children of Kafirs, Fingoes, and others strictly classed as Aborigines, represent a very small proportion of children of school-going age among the tribes resident in the frontier districts and in the native territories beyond the Kei.

40. It has not been the practice of this Department to force on the instruction of the Aborigines, but rather to wait for the spontaneous action of the people, and to lead them to consider the establishment of Schools among them as a privilege for which they must be prepared to make some sacrifice.

41. The monetary value of school-instruction is appreciated by the Fingoes, and hence more than 100 Schools are regularly maintained among them. The Kafirs see in the School the agency that weakens and then effaces all tribal bonds and customs. The levelling tendency of popular instruction is not consistent with their traditions, and the Chiefs specially watch the growth of Schools with suspicion. But the Schools are hostages for peace, and if for that reason only £12,000 a year is given to the Schools in the Transkei, Tembuland, and Griqualand, the amount is well spent; but that is not the only reason—to lift the Aborigines gradually, as circumstances permit, to the platform of civilized and industrial life is the great object of the educational vote.

42. In a few institutions handicrafts have been taught, and general industrial habits have been created and cultivated for many years. What the Department wants is to make all the principal Day-schools places of manual industry, as well as of book-instruction. It is not expected that all the boys will become expert tradesmen; but it is something to train them to use the spade and the hoe, the plane and the saw, the mason's trowel and the plumb-line.

The instruction of the girls in needlework is systematically carried on both in the Day-schools and the Institutions.

43. As a matter of social economy and of political interest, the question of diffusing elementary* school instruction everywhere among the masses of heathen or, as they are locally termed, red Kafirs, will have to be answered. Whilst the present cautious system is pursued, no social inconvenience or practical danger can result; but if some system of obligatory school-attendance were introduced, and thousands of Kafirs were leaving school year by year with sufficient school-instruction to set them loose from tribal customs and modes of savage life, what would you do with them? What agencies could be devised to direct teeming thousands into the various channels of Colonial industries? Labour, especially agricultural, is wanted; but will the educated native leave his home and take service, especially in the Western districts? If not, the crowding together of educated natives, living without a trade or regular habits of daily employment, must tend to mischief and social disturbances.

44. The capacity to read and write is not in itself a panacea for the abominations of savageism. The influences of Christian teaching, which, among the Kafirs, are very slow in penetrating the mass, must work together with the school-instruction and the handicrafts; and, when the children leave the school and the workshop, the directive intelligence of the European clergyman is wanted to keep them in the ways of temperance and industry. Knowledge is power even to them, but it may be a power for ill.

45. Whether the festina lente policy pursued by the Department for the last thirty years in the matter of Native Education commends itself favourably to public opinion or not, it has been a safe policy, unobtrusive but slowly and steadily progressive; and it should not be lightly set aside for a showy and popular system to suit the extreme views of philanthropists, or the theories of those who proclaim universal education as the duty of Governments.

CHANGES IN ADMINISTRATION.

46. The growth of the Department has unavoidably imposed on the Head the daily consideration of a host of petty details, which, with the reception of Teachers, Managers, and others, on school business, have fully occupied the office hours.

47. The general direction and supervision of the Educational Institutions, which is the first duty of the Superintendent-General of Education had thus become subordinate to the demands of office routine.

48. This anomaly will in future be remedied by the appointment of an Assistant Superintendent-General of Education, who is constantly present at the Office to direct the detailed work of the Department and to see callers. The Superintendent-General of Education will henceforth be to some extent free to exercise that general oversight of the Schools which devolves upon him as the Chief Inspector.

* According to the Note § 13 of this Report, the Government recognizes Elementary Instruction only.

THE SCHOOL AND THE LABOUR-MARKET.

49. There is no connection between the attendance of coloured children at school and the scarcity of farm-labourers.

50. The majority of the children at school are too young to be available as farm-labourers, and the few who are likely to be useful are released from school attendance under the following regulations:—

“The Department sanctions the closing of Mission Schools for such periods as may be necessary to allow the older boys to go to field-labour. In the Western Districts the period is usually from the beginning of the oat-harvest in October to the completion of the wheat-harvest; the ploughing season varies according to the rain-fall; and the times of closing may vary according to the nature of the main industry of each district.”

51. It must be remembered that the Mission Schools, especially in Towns, are the only agencies for training the coloured children in habits of cleanliness and order; the standard of school instruction may not be high, but all the girls learn sewing as part of the course.

If the thousands who frequent these schools were cast adrift to spend their days in the streets, the criminal rolls would soon attest the mischief by a swollen record of juvenile depravity.

ATTENDANCE AT SCHOOL (CENSUS 1891).

52. In last year's report it was estimated that at least 58,000 white children ought to be at school, and that 40,000 were enrolled in the Government-aided schools, and 10,000 attended the private and unaided schools, leaving a residuum of 8,000 white children of school going age not accounted for. As the white population is now found to be 376,812, there should be at least 62,000 white children at school. The general Census Returns 1891 shew that 72,369 Europeans were reported as receiving instruction at some school or other, or at home. It is inferred that this number includes many adults, or, at all events, persons not within the limits of the ordinary school-going age.

53. From the Schools Census taken of all children actually present at school on certain days in March 1891, as arranged with this Department, it appears that, throughout the Colony, 71,562 children were present in Government-aided schools, and 10,395 in unaided or private schools. The number in daily attendance is usually about 70 per cent. of the enrolment; but it is probable that on those days special efforts were made to secure a good attendance. It may therefore be assumed that 20 per cent. would represent the proportion of absentees.

CONCLUDING REMARKS.

54. In closing these remarks, it may be appropriate to the occasion to protest against the prevalent view of the education of our sons and daughters as a mere instrument to them for the business of life. Such an end must not be overlooked; but if this is to be a great country, its greatness will have to be built up on the moral and religious training of its scions; the statesman, the merchant, the professional man—all, in fact, who aspire to be men of light and leading—must have something more than the mechanical use of their intellectual powers. Our women too in the ordering of households specially need the qualities which are not the fruit of book-instruction but of good influences.

55. Moral stability, truthfulness, obedience, reverence and sense of duty are largely wanting; if we could secure the training of youth in these things, and superadd a directive intelligence among the mental powers whether natural or acquired, the Colony might depend on the honest and prudent energies of the young people now pressing into the social ranks. Let our boys and girls learn to be brave and true; let our girls be also gentle and full of grace. The school can do much to form character; but the home influences can and ought to do more.

56. Let parents and teachers have a high and worthy conception of their duties, and, whilst they teach the bread-winner and the housewife, let them not neglect the real education of the man—who, with it, may be elevated to the dignity of his glorious heritage, or, without it, be degraded to the level of the savage.

57. It may be permitted to a public servant, about to retire from active service, to comment briefly on his own life-long work.

The system of public education, which has grown up during a whole generation gradually, and for the most part unnoticed by the critic or the journalist, is such as none would venture to paint in brilliant colours. It is better to give the ground plan a neutral tint, and to acknowledge that the structure shows neither unity of design, nor symmetry of details, and yet has been remarkable for its results. The people have adapted themselves to the requirements of the system, but the framer and administrator had to forecast, from time to time, what practical and useful additions and emendations would best fit in with the habits and views of those whose educational interests were entrusted to his care.

58. The broad features of the system are:—

1. Freedom as regards religious teaching.
2. Voluntary management of schools by the people.
3. State-aid, and consequently supervision of schools by the State.
4. Inspection, to satisfy the State of the general results, and Managers and Parents of the attainments of the scholars.

59. Among the noticeable points, strong and weak, of the Colonial character, as evidenced among the older Dutch-speaking communities, there is one overriding element, call it what you will, which has been the stirring force in every trek movement from our earliest history, the national aversion to any infringement of personal freedom. It has therefore been the policy of the Education Department to deprecate the imposition of School-rates, and the consequent election of School Managers by the ratepayers of the district. Such measures would alienate the confidence and goodwill of the farmers and of many others who are now grateful for the advice and co-operation of the Government in the education of their children.

60. The following remarks on the means of giving a practical direction to the instruction of our boys were published some years ago, and may be interesting to those who are now moving in the matter of Technical Schools. The time is ripening for action.

61. The system of apprenticeship to tradesmen appears to have died out; something like the guild, on modern co-operative principles, must take its place. A farmer may be induced to enter his son at a trade-school under approved direction, but he will never apprentice him to a blacksmith or a builder.

What we want is an industrial institution embracing a trade-school and a factory, founded on the lines of the Technical Colleges of Zurich or Stuttgart; and, in the more populous centres, such an institution ought to be conducted on so economical a basis as to offer every facility to young men to acquire a practical knowledge of at least the simpler handicrafts, at a very moderate fee.

62. To the district boarding-schools might be attached fields for general husbandry and tree culture, or model gardens, where the climate and water supply were favourable: there the first principles of agricultural chemistry could be taught experimentally. To some a workshop for carpentry and joinery, or leatherwork, &c., might be added. Some degree of aptness in the use of tools and in the production of articles for domestic purposes might be acquired by this preliminary training, to be perfected in the factory of the town.

63. The transition from the primary school at the early age of about thirteen years to the industry by which a living is to be earned is premature and abrupt; even in the best instances that can be chosen the half-educated boy, at his entrance upon manual employment, abandons intellectual training, and with it a great deal of the immature fruit of his early schooling; the dull monotony of the daily toil is unrelieved by any mental recreation or other means of self-improvement. The elementary teaching of the School is not, in such cases as these, sufficiently advanced to be permanent; the daily grind crushes out the germ of intellectual growth; and it is just when the plodding artisan has won his way by physical persistence to the higher posts of the labour-market that he feels the blank of his early education; that he has not that facility to read and write and calculate, that knowledge of geometrical drawing and of colour, as well as of the elements of natural and mechanical science, that real knowledge of things as distinguished from words, which would be of special practical value to him in his every-day life of industry.

64. For skilled workmen, or for those who aspire to be so, the factory is indispensable; because school-instruction and trade-teaching cannot be long conjoined: but when the lad has improved his elementary knowledge in the trade-school, which at the same time initiates him in the acquisition of those practical matters which have a direct bearing on manual and industrial arts, he will find time, during the winter evenings, to renew his acquaintance again and again with the subjects which bear closest affinity to his own trade.

65. It is suggested, therefore, that between the ordinary day-school and the factory the trade-school should be interposed, and that it should offer to the future tradesmen the means of acquiring, at a reasonable cost, a thorough knowledge of commercial arithmetic and practical mathematics; as well as a knowledge of common things; of the principles of mechanics and of the practical application of mechanical powers; of drawing and of colour, with a view to the building and other domestic trades; of mineralogy and metallurgy; and of the laws of health, with the subsidiary subjects, ventilation, drainage, &c. Such an institution is desirable in large towns where the industries and handicrafts are varied and numerous, and where the primary schools can furnish, year by year, a sufficient number of lads qualified to benefit by such a course of technical instruction.

66. In the rapidly advancing progress of technical knowledge of the industrial arts, it seems probable that secondary instruction of a directly practical character, bearing on the business of life, linking science with artistic manual skill, bridging over the gulf between theoretical knowledge and its application to the manufacturing arts, will be recognised by every enlightened Government as an indispensable supplement to the primary instruction now given. The educated hand of the Continental workman is beginning to be recognized in England as a formidable rival. Workmen are not only better educated in the elementary schools of the Continent of Europe, but have greater facilities for art-culture and for practical training in every department of industry. England has a profusion of raw materials, mechanical power, and physical labour, but the Germans, the Swiss, and the French have found out that their superiority is to be obtained by applying the greater skill of their artisans to the treatment of the raw material; and this triumph of artistic skill over the brute force is sure, however slow British manufacturers are to see it and to press on the State the consideration of the defective training of the British artisan. Switzerland is certainly not a wealthy State; but by its complete system of technical instruction the public works and manufacturing institutions of that country are kept supplied with young men thoroughly instructed in their respective departments. And what success they have achieved! From us, says Mr. Scott Russell, they have taken away our Coventry ribbon manufacture; from Lyons, they appropriated a large portion of the famous silk weaving; in watches and clocks they have long kept the rest of the world going; and their intelligent, educated, skilled men are prized all over Europe.

67. By developing the industrial teaching of our native population, and promoting trade-schools in our larger towns for those of our own boys who aim to be master-builders, mechanics and foremen, we may live to realize something of that self-reliance and of that productive energy which alone can lead to the material prosperity of this country.

68. The usual financial statements and other tabulated matters are forwarded with this Report.

I have the honour to be,

Sir,

Your obedient servant,

LANGHAM DALE,

Superintendent-General of Education.
