Interview with Rev. J. P. Hayes, All Hallows, Devon Road, Broomly.

Mr. Hayes has been in the parish four years. The Church was built in 1874, and the living is in the gift of the Grocers' Company. Mr. Hayes' predecessor, who was the first rector, respected the parish greatly; he had much trouble with his children and was frequently away.

Mr. Hayes is a goodish man; rather stout, languid in manner, and ~~the~~ lethargic in temperament; a gentleman and quite a pleasant fellow but devoid of energy, enthusiasm, or spirituality. He is a type of the man who has entered the church mainly from a feeling of uneasiness for anything else. His position is probably due to interest rather than to merit. He is a man of some private means, with friends outside who also help him with funds.

Character of population

This district contains the poorest strata in

Broadly: nearly all the streets in the immediate neighbourhood of the Church are poor, and some of them very poor: the Sale St. Lane (see sketch) is the worst part: this is inhabited chiefly by Irish Roman Catholics. The bulk of the inhabitants are labourers, with a few cottars, and in the better streets to the north near the ~~road~~ railway (out of Lamphole Road) there are a good many artisans. As soon as people begin to rise out of the ranks of the very poor they nearly always leave the district.

The chief characteristic of the people is apathy. They are glad to see you, but quite indifferent to anything which is done for them, and to all efforts to raise them.

Two Curators (at present temporarily there is only one) and a Mission lady. There are no visitors; tried at one time to get visitors among the parishioners but found it a failure.

The population is about 12,000; the church holds 800. At- Matins on Sunday there are from 30 to 40; in the evening from 200 to 300, near 200 there 300. At- Daily Matins there are never any, in the evening there are sometimes 'but by no means always' as many as 6; on Wednesdays when there is a sermon there are from 30 to 40 "but they are so fond of sermons." The only time when the church is full is at the New Year Eve service, when even the poorest come; this is partly from superstition and for luck.

There may be 100 communicants altogether: on Easter Sunday between 60 and 70, and on other days about 30.

A few wives of labourers attend church, but the bulk of the congregation come from the small shopkeepers and the better class in the north of the parish.

Mother's Meeting with about 60.

Band of Hope 60 to 70.

Only Sunday Schools taught by the Curator and a few parishioners. Rogers does not teach "as he likes to be able to go round and shake hands with the teachers"

The Visiting is done almost entirely by the Curator (this is their chief duty) and the Mission lady, who divide the parish between them. The Rector likes to be free to visit anywhere, but I gather that he does not often do so.

The East London Working Society have a house and a station in the parish.

all their principles, though in cases which they will help he cooperates personally with them. But many cases he helps without applying to them, as he knows that the character of the applicant will not bear investigation; he knows that "the society is quite right, and that what he does is very wrong, but he cannot help it." Does not often help out of work cases, but has no rule on the matter. Old ladies who have attended the church long, and regularly will perhaps get 1/6 a week.

The Dissenters were in the parish before the Church and have always been <sup>active</sup> ~~strong~~ there. Archibald Brown did a good deal: among other things he bought a block of buildings opposite the church and insisted that all tenants should attend some place of worship (of any creed); this has improved the class of tenant.

"The Lighthouse" Mr Haywood; do little visiting, and give little relief.

The Roman Catholics visit their own people. Mr Rogers evidently knows little or nothing of the work of other bodies.

Thrift.

On the Public Committee during the seven winter
there was some attempt to cooperate with other religious bodies but it was rather a failure.

Not enough of them; property very insecure; many of Mr. Hozer's windows badly broken.

Mr. Hozer is astonished to see so little, though there is little active temperance work. The Houses are well conducted.

No bottles.

The people and especially the younger ones are very rough and disorderly but not vicious or criminal.

Marriage is very early; about 21 common age for both sexes. Couples who come to be married are frequently living in the same house.

Thrift weak; but have lately started Penny
Bank; about 120 depositors.

Health

Housing

June 10th.

On reading this I feel that I may have been rather unjust to Mr. Rogers. I did not realize at the time what a terribly bad spot he was situated in; - evidently one of the worst in London. Even however if he makes greater efforts than I supposed I still feel that he is not a man whose efforts are likely to meet with any great success.

Health very good; epidemics rare.

The people are pretty well packed. ~~but~~ but when they are insanitary it is due to the character of the tenement.

I tried to get from Mr. Rogers what his aim is but without any great success; the fact is that he has no particular aim; he said somewhat sheepishly that his chief desire was for his people's souls, but his interest in them is evidently not strong.

When asked how far he took a hopeful view of his work he said that on looking back over the four years he thought he saw some slight improvement, but that in view of the condition of affairs when he came there it was very uphill work.

This is evidently a parish in which religious work as far as the Church of England is concerned has never had a spark of vitality, and Mr. Rogers is not the man to put any life into it. It is a parish in which though the parson is in ~~the~~ no way vicious or evil intentions & get. probably from fleabiness and stickness, and because the Church does more harm than good.

After the interview with Mr. Rogers I walked about the poor streets of the neighbourhood. The children were still at school and men at work so only women and loafers about; a good many lads of about 10 loafing at the corners. Houses for the most part grimy; an enormous number of broken and patched windows; have seldom seen more in any slum. Children and women very dirty. Large number of women apparently Irish with shawls over the head; saw little other head covering.

Interview with Rev. A. Mason
Vicar of St. Stephen, North Bow.

Mr. Mason is a man of about 50. He has been three years in the parish. Came there from Mile End New Town. Has been in East London altogether more than 20 years.

Shortness of time in parish makes it difficult for him to give any comparisons with the past, but even in this short time movement of the better class away, mainly out-further East, and the advent of a lower class a very noticeable feature. The district has a good name, and in the past was perhaps the best district in East London. In the past therefore the movement to the parish was an intelligent one, made by a class of people who took some thought about the district in which they were going to live. His knowledge of the district and its prospects to some extent, those who come are therefore, although poorer, not simply a class who are crowded out of a more central or more congested district. It is still to some extent an intelligent class.

But still the constant ~~change~~<sup>change</sup> is a serious difficulty in carrying on the work of the parish. You can't make it permanent, or go "deep". The difficulty illustrated by the following facts:-

The Parish

(1) In Dec. 1894 the roll of the communicants of the parish was 406. In Jan. 1896 110 of these were "not on" for the following reasons

78 left neighbourhood

10 dead

15 "not-been"

5 unexplained.

(2) Out of the 20 men in the choir, about 10 have gone away during the past 2 years, six or seven on the occasion of their marriage.

In general the vicar described his parish as one of the better class; of varying character however & some parts quite poor; the population mainly working-class & lower middle-class. He only knows <sup>of</sup> three people who are living in it on their own means - one a man who has sent his money in Australia; a second who owns some house-property; and a third who is a "physician". It is almost entirely a residential district, the road mainly working class, & Church Road Station is said to have more regular passengers than any other one on the G.E.R. [? Walthamstow (St. James' St. Impeller)]. There is an enormous morning traffic to the City &c.

Draft.

Buildings.

23
Mr. Ineson says that on the average one-fourth of Communicants, Congregation & parish leave every year. Says the loss is verified by the experience of the rate collector.

The following are employed in the parish :-

2 Curates	paid
2 Mission workers (Wales)	— —
1 Nurse	— —
1 Organist - 1 Choir worker	— —
6 District visitors	not-paid.

The parish is divided into two, one curate taking special charge of each. The District visitors have special districts, but the whole parish is not covered. There is not force enough. The visiting of all curates in cases, is made as systematic as possible, but special needs are of course constantly interfering with the regular work. A parish meeting of workers every Monday.

Church - holds 1500

Church Room (200) and four class-rooms (one block adjoining church.

 St. Stephen's Large Hall - holds 500.
 Small Hall - - - 200 } one block.
 and two class rooms.

The church also owns an old chapel, bought by late Rev. as a Mission House - called the Rose-bank Mission. Now they have St. Stephen's Hall this is no longer wanted, & they are trying to sell it. It is put under a separate trust however; & will require an Act of Parliament to get rid of it; it is rather a white elephant.

The following cutting from the parish magazine gives some of the services - tried again to connect with the church:-

Asked what he considered his most fundamental aim, his major aim that is was by the medium of personal contact - to exercise an influence "for good". The church and the home are the two great centers of work. He upheld the "pastoral" idea. Regard himself as a kind of "spiritual official". He is put there by the law of the land, and "does what he can from the point of view of the national church". "I try to do two things: to lead men to love God & honor the King. If I succeed in that I don't think I can go far wrong. At the present time the canon is running the jubilee strongly. Has a crown on some of his hats and the Queen's "Yes" printed on them in large type. Is going to illuminate the church. Has put the Communion Hymns into a special cover for use on June 20, Thanksgiving Day for the "Long Reign of Victoria the Good".

Asked about the present high-church tendency, said that he anticipated a reaction. Extreme people on both sides are doing a great deal of harm, the ultra ~~Anglican~~ Protestant no less than the ultra-Anglican. As regards the latter think that in the long-run "people would stand for-forgery".

One key is old-fashioned. His traditions have been evangelical for 150 years. The patrons are evangelical. But that a great change has come over the services. They have been made "brightened". He is a Quaker, where the Quakers are in the hands of the Congregationalists, there has been a marked change. 25 years ago you could hardly find two deacons wearing white surplices. Now you rarely hardly find two black forms in the side of East London.

For broad aspects. See cutting from magazine (p. 27)

have not yet seen to be anything very special or distinctive attempted. We have returned the gift freely for the Hudson City Club but it is not a measure of this kind that he concentrates most of his attention. He says that Church Social Agencies are not so influential as in the past. How, for instance, can he compete with the Bow Bowley Institute, or the People's Palace in the way of concert settlements? He is "a case of the lion & the lamb," & the church is the lamb.

The withdrawal of people from associations of this kind with the church is some ways regrettable. It destroys many chances of making character.

The People's Palace is good, but it is too big, or too massive a scale - "like the London General Board". As an organization becomes so big, it becomes too impersonal.

The key-note of the social activities of the church are their personal bearing upon character.

Mr. Mason gave some interesting examples of the influence drawn from his own experience, especially to see a detailed list of the subsequent positions of the leaders of a Boy's club he founded in New York about 20 years ago.

Emphasized the way in which societies are often liable to decay. He really sees his young men free, scattered, all

A complete register of an sick case is kept. From Jan. 1 1877 to May 12, 1893 has been entered.

Parish Poor Fund amount to about £120 a year. About £40 a year is given by the Mel. Visiting & Relief Association; (their grant varying with the severity of the season) + £40 is given by the congregation.

Of pensions practically nothing is given directly - 1/- a week divided among 8 pensioners, 6 getting 1/- + 2 7/8. These amounts are of course supplementary. One of the provisions is a receipt of 2<sup>d</sup> a week from a grandson, a sum valued, not only as a sign of affection, but as something worth having in itself.

The Bow Fund has to meet an variable expense. In addition tickets for 4 tons of coal are got from the Bow Parochial Charities, & on his request, £5 or £6 is generally given to poor people at times by the same charities. But the money does not go through his hands.

Says there is no other real religious influence except Church. Dissent is a declining force. Brown & Howard had been the only two powers. Brown has just left. Howard's successor <sup>(Mr. Riley)</sup> has just been ordained. The result of a conversation with a well-known local Non-con. who was saying that he was glad of the step Mr. Riley had taken: "Why don't you do the same, Mr. —?" "If I were ten years younger, I would."

Goes to the C.O.S. Cl<sup>g</sup>. There is no other centre of charitable work in the district, apart from those connected with churches or chapels. A special report has been recently issued by the Charity Commissioners ~~they~~ on the Bow Charities (Lyon & Spottiswoode 1895).

Drinking.

This is one of series on the Church of Town parishes. It is very complete. Mr. Mason is inclined to think almost too complete, as it describes a very quiet and modest of his own living. The widow of a poor Vicar, valuing her husband's sermons over highly left £28 a year, so that one portion might be delivered weekly. Mr. Mason has to quote the letter of the lady, but he cannot praise the sermons in church, many of them seem to belong really to other preachers (e.g. Charles Finney) and the only way is to read a sermon every year, e.g. the visiting. If the occasion does not offer, I bracketed read one to myself in my study here.

It is "abominable". Fifty per cent increase in annual spend during last 3 years. It has gone mainly in out-door relief. See no signs of improvement.

A good deal, but not much disorder in the district. Say there is a great deal of private drinking. People are very hoarse of many of them, to keep liquor in their own houses. Mainly spirit's taken in this way. But when women do it. Has several cases among his own church-goers. Known by them if he calls etc. He has no opinion in general on the expediency of great licenses, but knew of one case where giving way to drink was directly traceable to them.

No. and crime in the parish.

Thinks there is little prostitution in parish. A good many live in Rowley, on the other side of the Bow Road.

In opposition to early marriages. Complains of conduct of the neighbouring parsons who have dropped marriage fees. Mr. Mason & the parish curate [probably also others] retain the duty authorizing a fee of 13/6. Mr. [Adams] put his at 7/6.
A neighbour [Mr. [redacted]] who losing all his marriages dropped to 7/6. The result is shown by the figures of a recent quarter.

and unpopular in dealing with people."

Area of the law fees were not accepted to facilitate marriage and to diminish the risks of irregular cohabitation in W. said he feared not, but that ~~they were~~ the drop was simply a policy accepted by men who disliked each other. He was not clearly enough that the law fees were unjustified, and that ~~the~~ their adoption led to other inequities in cases of divorce, particularly as regards divorce of those married. "They say they have lived in the parish", that he replied, is taken to appeal.

Habit of tithing growing, mainly through agency of post-Office. Has no Church agency.

The parish is one of small houses. No much out-crowding. Sanitation above average.

Sanitary condition however not very satisfactory. A good many jerry-built houses, the great many cases of typhoid.

Mitchell is married. His ~~face~~ ~~face~~ face suggests temper but perhaps no great degree of character. He is not an aggressive person, but probably does a solid amount of work on the technical lines. He will never quit his parish, but on the other hand he is not let his career cease to be a centre of considerable activity. He values
the good opinion of non-Churchmen, & believed in satisfaction more than one instance of appreciation & praise of his work by non-Churchmen of his parish. He likes to regard himself as the "father" of his parish, but he probably shepherds with a loose hand. He is probably worked out for wild preparation. He was very cordial & frank with me (I had known him slightly) & when I thanked him he said that talking over the work had been
"good" for him, forcing him to put in review what was being done, thus helping him to detect weak places.

Mr Parry has been at Bowley about four years.
He has filled up a copy of form A, which is in-

"Power artisans largely". As contrasted with some diocesan parishes (e.g. St Stephen's, Bow) it is one in which people both live & work. A large proportion are in regular work in the district, many of them in the semi-skilled workshops of the various "works" of the ~~the~~ neighbourhood. There are 30 "works" in the parish. [In the High St., very near the Rectory there are a large wheel-wright & a Copper Smith]. Only about 1/4 of the men are residence workers (as opposed to), and a minority therefore are to be described as Comm. Labourers.

There is thus no great daily business for work. Those who go are mainly home for the week.

As regards actual movement into & out of the parish, although there is a good deal, this is not a very marked feature.

General character of population.

Parson Linn

Parson Linn

A large proportion is stationary. Many parts of Cumbria now of the parish, but towards the west in New time. His corporate duties probably are performed by a committee of laymen appointed by district.

"We are in touch with quite  $\frac{2}{3}$  of the Parish" generally through our visitors. The parish organization is otherwise but a certain amount of the "visiting" by which the large proportion is "touched" consists in the delivery of the parish message by the voluntary lay visitors, or by their deputies.
But looking the year through it is probable that the Church takes as her usual communication with a very large proportion of the parishioners.

"7 Clergy; 7 laymen workers; + 3 laymen as paid."
The church work by districts, + the "lay workers" <sup>workers</sup> in the same way, under the clergy, the Rector maintaining a close touch with all.

The visiting is of a two-fold character:

- I. Of those who are in some kind of special connection, mainly looking up districts etc. "finding the lost-sheep".

A good sprinkling of young people, but those who attend

Reason that 6 on the Church Mission Society Bible class

Communicant: Sunday average 100
 Easter 1897 495 (about).

The Parry gave me the following figures re Easter Communicants of the Parish:-

1887 - 118	1893 - 110	(No Rector, Curate in charge).
8 - 140
9 - 116	1894 - 194	(Mr Parry's first year).
1890 - 110	1895 - 282
1 - 182	1896 - 400
2 - 135	1897 - 495 (about).

The Parry explained such increase, by no means to the disappointment of his predecessor, in 1896. The latter had been born in the parish.

His attitude was somewhat that of a person - a quiet. He did not change in the great change of the park, which he regarded as a hardly 5000 people in it. He only had 3 courts, & one basket ball room. - I came, quite new to the work, knowing the old as well as the new positions. My response was different, & my first object was to "reach the people".

See from across. He 3 friendly friends returned as an experience, probably Phoenix was his party and not that, and are simply hands applied to see the big order to see the open accommodation. [Naturally, is quite open & they can both be regarded as part of the park organization]

His party attempt little in the way of determination, & although as he said, he had not thought much. I think that the mission is much due to the feeling that the work of sports is only a secondary duty of the person. In his "leaves in the New Monday Institute" etc. He was his garden a fine and house in the summer shelter for the child, quality as basis for the workers. - He this is all.

David Agassiz etc.

Educational work.

The Parish Board is full in all three departments. Mr. Pavy is a member of two local committees of Managers of the London School Board. I say that on these committees there is a certain amount of feeling of a sectarian kind, one member especially being always antagonistic <sup>almost</sup> to any action ~~taken~~ by any one member. But on the whole relations are harmonious & pleasant enough. Mr. Crainer (Mr. Forster) is a Wesleyan & a good fellow. There are 7 Non-conformists & 5 Churchmen on the Committee. Mr. Pavy says that while there are no serious abuses of any kind appointed not infrequently corrupt, in the sense of being wise under a bias that always act in favour of a local candidate. In most cases, as far ~~as~~ head-teachers, when a selected list is sent down by the Board, if a local name is included, it bears a force to send down any other.

The suspicion of the Non-Cons, when it comes to Mr. Pavy, is a suspicion of the Church's ~~energy~~ <sup>activity</sup> in their hands.

Speaking of Mr. Pavy, the N.L.C. Mr. Pavy, who appreciates his work, & integrity, said that anybody could "bitter" him. Mr. P. he is cited as a "magnificent woman", "keen as a needle".

Wife: very healthy. A nurse supported by a parishioner.

Nursing.

"In all sick - also in Cooperation with C.O.F. all convalescent-Cases." Works with C.O.F. Does not attend, but Sec. often comes to see him. His one point of difference as regards policy, is in the case of the sick. When a man is sick he is down, & should be helped irrespective of his post.

He has no old age pensions, but in a certain number of Cases tries to procure them for families or individuals.

"About one fourth under the influence of various dissenting bodies." Says that this is probably an over-estimate. The only real power is that of Dr. Foster's firmness. He does it the only person who spends money, and his job however to those connected with his own organization. Nobody else spends anything at all.

The success to his W.R.V. ad the particularly influential market of the local Committee of managers, has been true a year. He gets £70 or £80 from a central organization but he can't stand the rate, or rather the absence of it, & is going. There are three Non-con ministers (apart from the man connected with Dr.

 Guinness) in the parish, & the position of the best-off of the lot is very bad. He is going & "doesn't know how they will support his successor." They are full that you can't go on preaching in "a wood-yard".

During all this gloomy description of the Non-cons of the district one felt the <sup>consciousness of the</sup> sixteen services and sermons withdraws "voicing out" of Mr Parry. It was not his object, as he said, to attack the nonconformists, but if they were to the wall!! Mr Parry is doubtless strictly Dominican as regards the conduct of the services. He said nothing rancorous or harsh, but he gave the impression of one who in his heart "chortled" at the spread of his own organization, & who did not very much mind if it at the same time
 caused others to go under.

The sporadic un-attached mission was known in his parish. He knew the type when he was in blightin.

"Not so prevalent as West-End". Knows of only one nest in the parish - Stewart's building, in back alley.

Says the work-streets are Thomas St & Franklin St. he says though very low are this rather than criminal.

[Mr. Pavy first mentioned Thomas St & James St. he on my asking about Franklin St. & whether it was not in his parish, he said yes that it was partly the work-streets. He said that I might see some work on James St. I don't know whether this indicates a real very intimate outside knowledge of the parish or not.]

Marriage more than any other crime in East-London. Spoke well of the pre-marital relations of those who come, & "really thought" that he had only one or two cases a year that came in the family way.

There is no open space. They wanted the churchyard, but

Mr Parry is a rather stout middle-aged man probably something under 50. He is married. When I was hearing he expressed the hope that "men were equally willing to answer questions", + advised that I was not finding the Church of England dead in East London. Mr Parry himself certainly feels very much alive.
He flourishes, + is perhaps somewhat over-conscious of it. Later on he may become complacent; to-day he is perhaps ~~dejected~~ - perhaps intoxicated with the ebullience of his own personal energy.

Interview with Rev. Mr. Sweetnam, St. Mark's, Victoria Park.

Mr. Sweetnam has been in this parish for 12 1/2 years. He is a man probably slightly over 50. He has a rather massive, high head with a kind of but-some face. He is plain in manner, shy, and rather melancholy; looks as if he suffered from liver.

Character of population.

The population of the parish at the last census was 13000; it must now be nearly 14000. The prevailing occupations are match making (Pogant and May and Palmer); Jam and confectionery (Clarke, Nichol, and Cook); waterproof factories (Pinkham); paper staining; chemical and colour works; also a good many boot-makers, dockers, and casual labourers. The people belong exclusively to the respectable working classes; there is little or no extreme poverty, and such as there is is mostly due

Your sincere Friend and Pastor,

And take care that your relations to God are honest. If your body kneels let your heart be humble. If you close your eyes close your fancies, If you say words let them express thoughts. If you ask let it be for what you want. If you promise, mean in tune. Let worship be worship—a beggar asking, a sinner, prostrate, a saved man thanking, a saint rejoicing.

worship is faith; God is wisdom—worship is thought; God is love—worship is affection; God is truth—worship is sincerity; God is holiness—worship is purity; God is Omnipresence—worship is everywhere; God is eternity—worship is always.

The secret of all worship now is first an affinity between the state of mind of the worshipper and the God he worships, and then sincerity. No place and no amount of ritual can make worship. The two things needed are "in spirit and in truth." I cannot read these words of Christ and not feel that the very genius and essence of the Christian religion is an exceeding simplicity. Had He deemed any externals of great importance He would have said so here. Some externals are convenient and helpful, but if Christ's words are taken in their plainest sense He does not require nor demand them. They are no part of the new dispensation and are studiously and decidedly omitted. The Jewish ritual was highly addressed to the senses, and some Christians are evidently going back to

to drink. Judging from a considerable increase in the marriages people have lately been unusually prosperous.

◀ The Vicar's Letter. ▶

ST. MARK'S VICARAGE, VICTORIA PARK,

November, 1896.

My Dear Friends,

I want to write this month on the character of Christian service and worship. Under the Old Testament dispensation there was a great deal of attention given to the place and other externals. This we learn from the old ceremonial law, and we are reminded of it by the words of the Woman of Samaria "Our fathers worshipped in this mountain, and ye say that in Jerusalem is the place where men ought to worship." That enquiry led Christ to explain the real character of Christian worship and to unfold the nature of the new dispensation. "God is a Spirit, and they that worship Him must worship Him in Spirit and in truth." It was no longer a geographical question of place and circumstance. The distinctions between Gerizim and Jerusalem were going to be absorbed; all material types were giving way to the Great Antitype; and the whole earth was to be the temple. The secret of all worship now is first an affinity between the state of mind of the worshipper and the God he worships, and then sincerity. No place and no amount of ritual can make worship. The two things needed are "in spirit and in truth." I cannot read these words of Christ and not feel that the very genius and essence of the Christian religion is an exceeding simplicity. Had He deemed any externals of great importance He would have said so here. Some externals are convenient and helpful, but if Christ's words are taken in their plainest sense He does not require nor demand them. They are no part of the new dispensation and are studiously and decidedly omitted. The Jewish ritual was highly addressed to the senses, and some Christians are evidently going back to Judaism if not heathenism in cathedrals and churches and chapels where worship is becoming quite sensuous. Such things are passed away. All that is laid down as essential to worship is that it be spiritual and true. So that not the most we can compass, but the least that will suffice, of visible things, to keep the mind earnest and devout, is the rule by which we are to go. Before Christ came the place, form, colour, manner, sound, spectacle were always prominent. Now the original is here and we do not need pictures. Light is come and the shadows are gone.

In your conceptions of God, have no images of the fancy. Stop any attempt to give a kind of embodiment to the Father. God being Spirit has nothing tangible, or visible, or intelligible to us now. All we can have before us is attributes. God is wisdom, power, greatness, holiness, love. We speak to Him as a Being, and so He is, and yet He is far above all sense.

In your approaches to God the frame of mind is everything. God is mystery—worship is faith; God is wisdom—worship is thought; God is love—worship is affection; God is truth—worship is sincerity; God is holiness—worship is purity; God is Omnipresence—worship is everywhere; God is eternity—worship is always.

And take care that your relations to God are honest. If your body kneels let your heart be humble. If you close your eyes close your fancies. If you say words let them express thoughts. If you ask let it be for what you want. If you promise, mean it. If you praise, hush your soul if it is not in tune. Let worship be worship—a beggar asking, a sinner, prostrate, a saved man thanking, a saint rejoicing.

Your sincere Friend and Pastor,

M. SWEETNAM.

The Medical Missionary and the Doctor
are sent by the Midway Mission, but work entirely under Mr S's control.

Of his three "excellent workers" Mr Hewitt
has started a Men's Senior on Sunday evening,
a branch of the Children's Scripture Union, and a Bible Class for young men; he superintends
a Sunday School, takes the Boys' Band of Hope,
and the Senior Band of Hope, and is very active at Outdoor Seniors. Mr Will has practically charge of the Mission Church and district.
Mr Hapton has a Sunday class of young people in the church, and the girls' Band of Hope.

Two Churches; four Mission Hall; Nat.
Board School on Sundays. No Club buildings.

See Parish Magazine.

On Sunday morning there will be in the two Churches about 700 people, and in the Mission Church perhaps 50. On Sunday evening there will

These figures include adults only.
About 200 altogether may attend week day
services.

Of Outdoor services there are two on Sunday
and two in the week: they are well attended.

Only the well dressed and respectable come to the Churches, but few except the very poor attend the Mission Halls. It is one of the great duties of the Strangers to try and get them in.

I asked Mr S. as to the motives of church going. Though some he said come because it is respectable, and some of the young for courting,
the majority certainly come from a genuine desire to worship. The services are of the plainest, there are no attractions, and any attempt to induce them by alms giving is surely discontinued.
Mr S. evidently feels very strongly on this latter point, and being a thoroughly honest man with a sensitive conscience is not quite comfortable
in his mind about the methods of his medical

Missionary, who he fears is inclined to make his ministrations dependent on attendance at Mission services.

I suggested that the poor who attended Mission services, if they did not do so with any ulterior objects, could only do so from the best motives. He "no", he said "I don't think their motives are any better than those of the church poor: their coming is the effect of a constant juggling away: they feel they must come".

There are about 300 regular communicants; the average number at the two churches is about 100, and on Easter Sunday there were about 200.

One of the curates has a class for rough lads ~~and~~ one or two a week; the instruction is partly religious, partly secular.

Mr. S. spoke in the highest terms of the Board Schools and says he would willingly see all education handed over to them. He certainly sees no necessity of for Church schools.

The clergy all visit a great deal, but the systematic visiting is done by the Deacons and the Scripture Reader who cover the parish about once in six weeks.

Mr. S. spoke with regret of the great difficulty in ever getting the men.

I don't know what we should do without them." They may sometimes give a little <sup>help</sup> ~~which~~ the case comes before the C.O.S. committee. "We do all we can to teach thrift. I feel that is very important." The Penny Bank takes about £20 a week.

There is a great deal of ill-administered charity about. Cross Hurdell did an infinity of harm. The clergy are not so bad as the Dissenters.

The Primitive Methodists are a failure. "The Wesleyans are doing something; their influence is felt"; but on the whole Dissent is impotent. Two out of the four Mission halls ~~now~~ are belong to the Dissenters.

Mr S. compares the present condition of his parish with what it was when he came.

Aim and Object.

Then there was only one Church, no curate; the vicar being the only workman of any sort: 300 children in the Sunday school; 45 members of the Band of Hope; one Mothers' Meeting with membership of 45. He has raised over £5000 for buildings, and £2400 for endowments.

"Our great aim is to win souls to Christ. We do not strive after great numbers, or an increase in collections: we seek the personal salvation of the individual soul. Now we feel that our work being spiritual, we must pursue it by spiritual means. We provide no amusements, make no sensational appeals in the papers, and do not give social questions the foremost place. We give ourselves to prayer and the ministry of the word." "A parish Prayer Meeting is held every Saturday night" and he prays for the parish and for the work that is going on in it. "We never set out on any undertaking, whether large or small, without first of all praying about it at the meeting." I gathered that then had had very remarkable answers to their prayers.

In conclusion Mr Sweetman seems to me an excellent type of the earnest, genuine, unselfish, unloved, sincere, conscientious man; a hard worker, and with plenty of common sense; but with little personal attraction except his spiritual fervour. He is essentially a man who is not likely to appeal to or attract the average individual. His influence, I imagine would not be strong except over those who naturally have a ~~heart towards a~~ religious and serious bent in their nature.

Interview with Rev. W. H. Carroll, St. Fide's

St. Fide's is the Mission District of Christ Church Oxford.

Mr. Carroll has been the Curate-in-Charge for 4 1/2 years, succeeding the well-known J. S. Addy, who has since founded a community at Plaxton.

Mr. Carroll is a young man of 33: tall well made, with fair curly hair and pleasant ~~to~~ blue eyes. He is an admirable specimen of the best type of young Oxford parson, of those who take orders not merely as a profession, but from a genuine devotion to the work.

The people are mainly Dockworkers, engineers (Peters Iron Works etc.) and labourers. Though few of the streets are very poor the people generally seem always to be close to the edge of poverty: though the majority of them earn good wages they are improvident - and there is always

Much distress if work is slack.

The people generally are not migratory. Mr. Canole can point to three old people at least who are living in the house they were born in.

Mr. Canole notices a great simplicity: "they are more like village people". They are inclined too to look on a Poplar man as a lord of the manors.

Paid: - Two curates: both Oxford men (New and Lincoln) but has great difficulty in finding Christ Church men: few take orders: but can always get the best type of Oxford man as curate.

Mission Women

None.

Unpaid: - Five Clerical sisters: the chief of them Sister Constance is evidently a person of great importance in the work.

One Christ Church man, Harley Rodger, lives here and devotes his evenings to Profr. Club. Another, Spender, comes down once a week.

Undergraduates often come down for a week.

The population is about 7000; the Church holds 700; the average attendance in morning is 300 and in evening 600. On week days at Mother's usually 3 and in evening about 20 except on Wednesday, (German) when there are 100; "they do come so for German even if they are utter rot."

The very poor come to church in considerable numbers; but even the most vulgar drop out if their best clothes are in pawn. There are more women than men, but many of them are the wives of sailors. There are a good many counting young men. The service has always been more on very high lines, and Mr C. has kept up the tradition. (though I fancy he is only a moderate High Churchman) "the people understand it more easily and like it better". Mr C. is very careful not to induce people to come by Kirby's; Ackerly went on the other line; he lavished money and pattered round him "a lot of old rumpus" and they have now shed all these. Now who come now come to worship.

Summer as far as possible, but has had to reduce the number lately as he finds his curate cannot talk without a P.M. Sometimes has services outside public house just upon opening
time: the people listen patiently and reverently,
and he has often marked down names as subsequently coming to Church. Such services are useful as keeping up the religious tone
in a parish; they convince people that the Church is doing something.

For figures see print. The total number on roll is 500: of them 150 are between 15 and 22. On Easter Sunday there were three more men than women. Many of the poorest communicate.

Men's Club with about 140 members.
Rodney's Boys Club: 120 members: a very great success: Rodney, almost the only man who can keep the lowest without driving away the better class.

A Club for smaller boys: "rather a pious lot" owing to a former curate who ran it on good-goddy lines; after his departure they for a time - as the Fairchild Family would say - "broke into open sin" and now they are "wicked and more satisfactory". This club has about 30 members.

Girls' Club: limited to 100: run by Sisters: so in much for dumb-bells, drill etc. Mothers' meetings: very easy to manage: "they can always talk scandal". Cricket and Football Clubs: very vigorous and successful.

Gymnasium in Club room.

Temperance Society: not vigorous: much injured by curate who bribed: Carole has "stopped all that nonsense".

Numerous lectures and entertainments: entertainments rather overdone: they are getting rather bored by theatricals. They enjoy their own concerts here: finds no difficulty in buying songs decent.

safe to leave them alone, "an apt to teach the Arian ~~heresy~~ heresy". Rodney has Sunday class of 13 boys: refuses to teach them anything beyond the Catechism: he proposes to have a very poor opinion of the Church and clergy.

The sisters and lady visitors visit my home about once a month.

One nurse, trained at Guy's. During sisters of St. John come if asked.

Give about £200 a year in relief. Work on C.O.S. lines "as far as dictates of charity will permit". Sister Constance has the alms fund in her hands: she is of the strictest school of the C.O.S., and often refuses to help when Mr. C. would like to. Alderly did all he could to pauperise the people: he was moved first and almost solely by pity: often gave his own clothes to help people.

Sometimes when the Docks have been closed, hard winters have had to give relief largely as people were dying of starvation.

During the great strike Alderly raised £700 from West-end friends.

Then an after P. C.'s in the worst straits: they are left almost entirely to themselves: they don't

Tried at first to cooperate with Labour Party: was a pupil of Scott Hoken and came here from a West End parish "a tearing socialist" but has completely gone round; with few exceptions the Labour men are "more selfish
than the most old-fashioned Tory."

("Scott Hoken is a theorist only: he does not know the working man a bit").

This is essentially one of the active

115 parishes both spiritually and socially: a great deal doing and all worked on through Smith lines. Though inclined to be cynical at times Mr C. is a first-rate fellow, very cheerful, pleasant and genial, a man sure
to be immensely popular both with women, men,
and young people. Both he and his predecessor,
in spite of their social activities "have always made for the Church business first". "Anything is subsidiary to the Church". He reports that the clergy "should have to do so much which is really laymen's work, and which is done
badly by the clergy, just because they are parsons
and have not-time to do it properly".

Interview with Rev. H. Wentworth Bennett,
St. Gabriel's, Poplar: - (Bromley)

The nominal vicar of St. Gabriel's is Mr. Kinton, who became effete and was retired 10 years ago. He was succeeded by the Rev. R. W.
Crosby (a famous prosecuted viticulturist) a most excellent man, but quite above the heads of the people: a square peg in a round hole.
Mr. Bennett was for four years Mr. Crosby's curate: he then left the parish for two years and came back 18 months ago as curate in charge.

Mr. Bennett is a man between 30 and 40: mean and undistinguished in appearance,
with an excellent face for a low comedian.
In character in no way remarkable, but quite a good fellow: a fair average specimen of the average man.

Mr. B. describes his people as very poor,

says objects to the word 'casual', and would call them laborers without qualification. There are a good many dockers; a number of cotters owing to the neighborhood of Christy St. Spratt's Dock; recruits to and the Far Farm Lake to ~~the~~ employ some; and there are a good many of Royal and May's and Pold's match mills. Dock and shipping employment probably accounts for the large number.

The people on the whole are not migratory,
though the latter class tend to ~~be~~ more so.

The Church holds about 600. On Sunday morning about 30 adults (30 females, 20 males) sometimes less: this includes teachers, workers etc; also about 12 old women pensioners into whom notices for coming it would not be wise to enquire too closely. There are also nearly 300 children. In the evening about 150 including all those who come in morning: there may be rather more at Lent and Christmas time.

Communicants: - on Easter Sunday 111: cannot give number on other Sundays or weeks, but it is small. The majority are females of all ages, and a good many ladies, among whom there is a serious leakage as they grow older.

Those who go to church are with few exceptions the fairly well-to-do, with a few old women. With the exception of the old pensioners, who are legions, all who come do so without any person being brought to bear: "I've set my face against anything that savours of bribery: nothing can more dishonour the Gospel."

Social Agencies

Many congregations are only due to hypocrisy: "I always suspect - sisters and their methods"

Young Men's Club, 40 members, most of whom were in a Boys' Club which Mr. P. started when here as Curate. Meet four nights a week. Entirely social; no religious test; but most of them take an interest in the Church, even though they do not attend services.

Boys' Club about 30 members; only founded six months; chiefly for choir boys.
Women's Help Society with (1) Mothers' Branch (2) Young Women's Branch (3) Little Sisters' Branch. This is a metropolitan (a national) Society which founds branches in parishes. Each member has a card of which Mr. P. should see one: they promise to attend Church, Communion, pray etc. The promises are of rather a stringent character, and by no means universally kept.

Temperance League for Adults.

Senior Girls' Band of Hope.

Junior Band of Hope.

Wickets.

Mothers' Meeting.

Mr B. could not give me numbers of these various organisations.

Guild of Good Shepherd with four wards:-
adults 20; young men 10; young women 10;
children 30. This is for commitment and others who care to come.

Cricket and Football Clubs; two teams
in each.

The Societies give entertainments; entirely local talent.

Mr B. puts up dances occasionally and encourages the young men to bring their young women. Has had a teacher down once or twice.
The dances are very orderly.

Day School for girls and Infants for which the London Diocesan Board of Education is now responsible as far as funds are concerned.
150 girls infants and 120 girls in average attendance.

Sunday Schools: Boys 100; girls 120.

Infants 200. The teachers all belong to the nursing class. They are kept as much as possible to question and answer: they don't teach well, but won't come to teachers' class.

The Mission Lady takes half the parish:
the other streets are visited as far as possible
by the three whistling ladies; but they can do little more than visit the sick. The Parish Paper is distributed to every house but there is no
house to house visiting: there is not the staff for it. Mr. D. does not think of house to house visiting, brings the people to church, but looks upon it as a duty the clergy should aim at: the people like to be visited.

Letters of St. John come if wanted.

Relief is given to the sick to the extent of about £90 per year.

In the winter breakfasts are given to about 60 school children a day.

Other religious influences.

General influence of Church

151
There are 12 pensioners with if a week
little or no help is ~~given~~ given to out-of-work cases.

Mr P. goes to C.O.S. meetings and often cooperates with them: but they don't go in for
and fail to understand "theological charity": it is impossible to be so strict as they desire: few of the people he helps would bear strict investigation as to character. Still the C.O.S.
have done a great work in educating the Church
to be stricter in their methods.

One little Primitive Methodist Chapel: they are unorthodox and do good work. (see Poplar) (see)

A good many Irish R.C.'s, few of whom go to worship.

A good many people attend Archibald Brown,
or St Edmund's Church, or the Men's Club at the Row and Dromby Institute.

The influence of the Church on the whole
is very slight: "We are not so successful

and not getting such a grip as some try to make out; he is only just scratching the surface."

Mr. D. took me into his school. I was surprised at the remarkably healthy appearance of the children, especially the younger ~~ones~~ ones. With few exceptions they were clean, fat, and rosy. A quite a number of them were exceedingly pretty little things. Both among infants and girls a very fair Saxon appearance was largely in the majority. Among the girls there were more signs of poverty than among the infants.

"My great aim is to get people to lead the Church life; but they don't take readily to it; and I admit that the ideal is a high one; but it would be fatal for the Church to lower her standard."

This is a parish in which the men and

The work may I think be best described by the epithet "unimpressive". Mr D. Innes looks and works hard and conscientiously according to his lights.
But he has little ability, no original ideas and no power of attraction. A number of organisations are kept going because it is the proper thing
to have them, but there is not the enthusiasm
at their back which can carry them to success.

Interview with the Rev. W. Adamson
Vicar of Old Ford Parish Church.
at The Vicarage, St. Stephen's Road.

Population 11,000.

Mr Adamson has been in the parish 25 years. On personal stinted see end of interview, also p. 43. of this book + report of interview with Mr. Evelyn. Up to the present we have had a considerable number of strong opinions expressed about Mr. A. None of them have been favourable, but it must be remembered that is nearly every relationship with the local clergy, with the C. of S. etc.
etc. his attitude seems to be that of criticism + antagonism -

Mr Adamson had prepared notes for the interview, these are incorporated in the following report -

"The poor. A dead-end of working-class population [with their enumerates by different occupations that are repeated]. A drifting population now. A few old families still living. Drags now

25 years ago. But it is very poor, & not to be compared, for instance, with the neighboring parishes of St. Stephen (St. Marys)
& of the water parish (St. Marys). (The exceptional difficulty & poverty of his parish was a recurring note through the whole of Mr. Haunson's conversation).

"Two per cent. Churches & chapels practically empty on Sundays. Unchristianized missions: Salvation Army &c. a

For use in A. report - to his Report. (p. 5.) & for this & for many other matters, this remarkable production should be studied.

V. Report, pp. 5 + 8. It is to be noted that the cover of the Report is dated 1892; but it is called the "Monthly Magazine"; that that is no month named. It seems to be a compilation drawn up for begging purposes.

Among the agents retained are two women beggar-women. viz a woman of 250 + 120. These, I found, are connected with the water meetings, & seem to be clubs paid in to by the women who they had any considerable purchase in view e.g. furniture. W. Adams acts as the intermediary "between the reader & the wholesale firm".

This is a better day than Easter, when the whole Holiday takes so many away. Trinity Sunday is the day on which the greatest number come.

Also says that there is a considerable migration to the coast. People do not apply as they like to go to China looking for work. They get up, they don't like to be recognized, + it might injure their future chance of getting assistance.

At the Sunday School there is an average attendance of about 400, in 500 on the register.

or doubtful cases. For any cooperation with them I have never had any indication. Most certainly refuse to see them if any help I give to genuine cases, and "God forbid" that I should send any of these to the hospital.

In the report already alluded to in Adams' article (p. 10) a "Co-founder of the New C. O. F." he the above is the way in which he now regards them. He considers that they have "utterly failed" to prevent over-lapping, which ought to be simply a defective agency. [Mr Adams' criticisms & predictions are inconsistent, but his real attitude is probably a personal one:
quarrelling with an the local clergy and making cooperation with the Committee impossible].

It is considered necessary for the Victoria Park Hospital &

Says the drinking got on worse in pubs. But a good deal of beer-drinking at home. First seen in the courts quite near the church late at night: drinking got on after closing hours. On Sunday too lots of breaks start from the parish; some from the church door; one, two, three or more according to the weather & the attention given to music. He works run by any one: the potters, a local green-grocer etc. In the body of the break they have their "gray-beard" full of beer, & sometimes begin drinking when before they start-off.

There used to be two drinking-dubs in parish; now only one.

Lots of "clummy" people but no clumps. All landless or small & struggling, or are building fronts. All houses are room-rented. No landless class to keep into subscription to parish work.

Said a good deal about the godlessness of the parish. If you "thence" people they generally go in 3, 6, 9, or 12 months. He is an very upright man therefore. Has the worst opinion of everybody almost - everything everybody. Belongs a special case of infidelity in Politically the parish is "Radical; Socialistic".

Physically there is a low standard, due to (a) over-crowding;

Early marriages are not frequent. He sets his marriage fee low because his parish is a poor one. It is the lowest in the district. A uniform fee for the whole neighbourhood would be "ridiculous". How can you compare his people with those of his home or his state!

At this point in a. ascended again on the special difficulty presented by his parish. They are graded over the hi-Sweetnam's side although poor, has a church on the confines of Victoria Park, S.
Hamsey church being all high-church, the cathedral there find it a pleasant thing to walk across the park to hi-Sweetnam's

Asked about the religious influence, he said that unde-nominational missions were active but did not do much. Dissent is dying, not the decay of the middle class. In fact, it was cold

Religious Influence.

we believe it - "anything that has to do with religion is languid in this parish".

Mr Adams is an extreme Protestant, a very low churchman. Asked about the present high church movement he said that he would never have dreamed that it would have made such progress. The church of England of 1500 was not the church of his early childhood; he did not know it. Now it is to be brought - as he says - to spread. High church was a "going" thing; the laity are honeycombed. He is the kind of man who is a system of teaching by object - lessons applied to the church, & people like it. He is a practical but it goes down. He anticipates no reaction. "The end is to be the world" Mr A. "Incomprehensible". There is no other way. The division of the affected sections will follow.

son and three daughters also work". He is probably about 55 years of age; is tall; rather a striking figure, with a long well-groomed beard, that gives him rather a paternal look. As you look to him you are in doubt - as to whether he is a saint or a fraud, & you ~~will~~ incline to the former. But the latter would seem to be never the outside judgment. He is in any case, difficult to inquire but the low-browed quite-faced divine is the questionable person he seems to be. He has probably always been a vain & obstinate man; his isolation & frequently have probably made him the chronically catatonic person he is now regarded as being. His method of begging are sentimental to a degree; & there is, one feels, a certain hypocrisy in the fact - that he has collected $3000 in all, & is now trying to raise $3000 for a new mission; & that he has no one else working with him. He is a rather inconspicuous person & I feel that I may be unfair in writing that he is probably a humbug.

Interview with Rev. Dr Nelson, St. Michael's, South Brooklyn.

Dr Nelson has been here for three years:
previously he was in Westminster Bridge Road for four years, and before that in the country.

He is an Irishman with a slight brogue:
& a large bullet-head, blue eyes, light-colored hair, clean shaven, and spectacles. His face is of a type much more common in the R.C. than in the English Church.

A large majority work in the docks, or are casual labourers, with a certain number of small shopkeepers. Throughout the parish they are poor and in the small streets running out to the west of St. Lawrence's Road, very poor, these streets being real slums, and here there are a number of families living in one room.

There is a great deal of migration: nearly all

many more on the border into Essex. If anything
the district has deteriorated in the last three years.
Drinking is very bad "we can make nothing of temperance" there are seven public houses in sight of the vicarage gate "I could only count
from" "all doing a good trade"; but apart
from drink the people are a very decent lot,
singularly free from vicious habits

Services.

Candidates were from our own parish, four being from St. Gabriel's, and one from All Hallows. The service was very impressive. One of our candidates, who is an invalid, was confirmed in her Bath chair. The Bishop gave two addresses, one to the congregation in general and the other to the candidates in particular. The hymns were 348, 157, 271, and 542 A and M. At the conclusion of the service the Bishop said he was much impressed with the heartiness of the singing. Nearly all the candidates received their first communion on the following Sunday, May 16th, at 8 a.m. We have not the least doubt but that they will prove faithful and true servants of Jesus Christ, and devoted members of St. Michael's.

ST. MICHAEL'S CHOIR.

Four additional incandescient lights have been put in the chancel at the cost of the choir. They are most satisfactory, and the effect from an artistic point of view is very fine. The lights as they now stand cost the choir £5. It may not be generally known that the money collected in church on Sundays in the chancel is not given to Church Expenses, but forms a Choir Fund for the purchase of music. This fund has not only paid for the chancel lights, but it also provided the congregation with copies of the words of the Story of the Cross, at a cost of 5s. Moreover, by means of an Entertainment at the Town Hall, the choir defrayed the cost of tuning the organ, a matter of £2. We congratulate the choir upon these good works, and we thank them very sincerely.

The accommodation is 1500. On Sunday morning average 250; in evening 600 to 700. Nearly all those who come in morning come in evening too. The very poor do not come, but a few of them go to the Mission Hall on Sunday evening. The service is bright, but not ritualistic; no vestments or incense; but make a point of having a good choir.

Church, Parish Room, Mission Hall.
Use of three Board Schools on Sunday.

Dr. R. could not give me number of communicants but promised to send it.

Guild for Communicants: 150 adult members. Have a social meeting once a month. Twelve men are elected, one for each month in the year, to act as superintendents; each one is given a subject, and has to get someone to speak on it, or to speak himself. As a rule the subjects are secular, but two or three times a year, religious. The lecture for May was on "The best means of Indoor and Outdoor Recreations". At this meeting 41 were present.

Ladies' Club: about 100 members aged from 15 to 21. Run by clergy and one layman, an insurance agent. Nearly all are communicants. There are cricket and football clubs attached; also a dramatic society.

In the winter there are entertainments weekly; and a dancing class for the young people.

Temperance: - Adult-branch of C.S.T.S. about 40 or 50 members. This is far from successful. It seems almost impossible to drift from the Bands of Hope into adult societies; they are not bright and cheery enough for the young people. Band of Hope, 700 or 800 children.

The Mothers' Meetings.

Sunday Schools: - Boys, about 350; Girls about 700; Infants about 500 or 600

Relief.

177
With less or a week for Young Women,
Factory girls, Young Men, and Men and Women.
None of them are very largely attended.

Then is house to house visiting, and each house is visited about twice a year, the regular members of the church a good deal oftener. Both clergy and Mission Workers visit. In so large a parish (17500 population) casual visiting is very little good: there is no time to follow it up,
and the indifferent and the apathetic can only
be influenced by constant sollicitation.

Harving districts of St. John the Divine always come when wanted: they cover so large a district
that there is sometimes delay.

About £70 is given, chiefly in cases of sickness, but out-of-work cases are helped. Work with C.O.S. to some extent, but not largely.
Have a local committee meeting once a month.

Attitude to Church.

The Man.

Great friendliness to church, but for the most part complete indifference to religion;
this is not due to viciousness; the people are generally quite good, decent and respectable, but oppressed by the hard conditions of their life.

I rather hesitate to give a definite opinion as to Dr Nelson. Though quite friendly and pleasant, I found great difficulty in getting anything from him beyond the bare facts, and he gave me the impression of not knowing his district very thoroughly. He has none of the vivacity or eloquence of his race, and though he looks a man of strength and ability his conversation rather tends to minimize this impression.
He is a D.C.L. and L.L.D. and has more the appearance of a student than a man of affairs.
He is I should think a good-natured and kind hearted man, but not likely to exercise a wide influence among any class of his parishioners.
The parish may obviously be classed among those that are not particularly active either spiritually or socially, but Dr Nelson complains of the great difficulty of getting both hooks and jaws.

Interview with Mr. Alfred Webb, Christ-Church Mission, Old Ford Road.

When Mr Webb was written to I did not mention that the Christ Church Mission is one of Mr Sweetnam's Mission Churches, and that all the details as to numbers etc are included in Mr S.'s interview.

Mr. Webb however tells me that though nominally under Mr S. he is really left entirely to himself, and that beyond preaching once or twice a year Mr. S. takes no part in the work of his district.

Mr Webb is a short man with a thin, pale, rather worn face, but with a bright expression and a pleasant smile. He is rather over 40 I imagine; ~~he~~ he is rather bald, and bearded.

He has been here only for 18 months, having previously been in Wigan and Staffordshire.

The mission district, which is the corner between Fairfield Road and Old Ford Road, is the poorest part of St. Mark's parish, with the exception of a few shopkeepers and publicans, all are poor. Mr. W. knows no one who keeps a servant.

The great vice of the neighborhood is drink: nearly all the poverty is due to this. Mr. W. is especially struck by the excessive drinking among women: he sees women going into public houses who both in behavior and the Black Country would be shunned by their neighbors as dishonorable if they did so. The general standard on the drink question is here very low. [Mr. W. is a total abstinence but recognizes that temperance work is terribly hampered by the uncompromising attitude of temperance advocates generally: they will continue to lose ground till they recognize that brewers and publicans are no worse than their neighbors, and consent to some reasonable plan of compensation.]

Apart from drink the outward moral character

is good. Mr. W. has baptized over 100 children since he came here and none illegitimate; this is a great contrast to Wigan. Mr. W. is at a loss to account for this, as the factory girls are very rough; he believes that preventives are largely used among them, and that this is not so in the north.

happy, and though Christ is risen from the dead and become the firstfruits of them that slept. The Master Himself the firstfruits; His people at His coming will be the glorious harvest.

Let us endeavour to live more in the light of the love of the risen Jesus, looking forward in faith and trust to the time when we shall indeed "See Him as He is," and be with Him for ever.

Our Easter was somewhat saddened by the thought of our loss as a congregation, in the death of our friend Mrs. Cross. She has now entered upon the glorious realities, and has looked upon the Saviour she loved so well. We shall miss her much. The kind and willing manner in which she did so much for the Mission we shall not soon forget. I am sure that we all have given our sympathy to those left behind, and our prayers have gone up to God on their behalf.

We all trust that Mr. Cross and his sister and daughter may be comforted and strengthened in their trial, and may be able to believe that our Father does all things well.

For ourselves there remains the one lesson, "be ye also ready." I trust that the lesson by God's blessing may be fully learned.

During this month of May we shall keep the feast of Ascensiontide—In the "Notes" you will find the time of services—I trust that a goodly number will come together on this day to remember our Lord's return to glory and by God's blessing we shall "In heart and mind thither ascend." I especially invite all who can to come to the Holy Communion on that day.

these matters.

I desire to express my hearty thanks to the Sidesmen for their kind help during the year past, and to all the kind friends who have helped us so well.

The Open Air Services were commenced on Easter Day Evening, a good meeting being held in Maverton Road.

They will be continued each Sunday evening (if weather permits). I ask your prayers and your help in this work. It is a work that God has greatly blessed and so I would urge all Christians to have a part in it. I have been cheered latterly by manifest signs of God's blessing and the ingathering in our congregations of some fresh faces, and I would ask you all to do your very best to induce your friends to come to hear God's word. I know there are difficulties in the way of working for God even in a humble sphere, but with earnest prayer, joined to faithful service we may look for God's specially guidance and blessing.

May our Heavenly Father give many tokens to us in our Mission district, that He is with us, and winning souls; and that His own people by the power and indwelling of the Eternal Spirit, may become more and more like their Lord and Saviour, growing in grace, loving and serving with full and trustful hearts, looking forward, and trusting unto the glorious day of Christ's return.

I am, yours faithfully,

ALFRED WEBB.

It is not easy to get workers: people prefer generally to work for the parish church or for some other church in the neighbourhood.

At Morning service there are very few, and the evening service very greatly, but probably average 150; nearly always a poor attendance in the summer.

Mr Wells is thoroughly evangelical in opinion, but would much prefer to make the services brighter in character: he came here however on an ~~an~~ understanding with his trustees that the ritual should be exactly similar to that in the parish church. Mr W. would like to ~~character~~ <sup>carry</sup> out the directions of the Prayer Book; the service should be "either said or sung": he objects to the rather barbarous performance to which he is obliged to adhere.

The congregation is distinctly poorer than at the parish church, but even here it is difficult to get the poorest in. The women are in a considerable majority.

There are about <sup>60</sup>~~50~~ communicants on the roll, and the average attendance is about 40; on Easter Sunday there were over 50. There are none under 16, and the majority are over 30. Mr Webb objects strongly to the confirmation of the very young, as they cannot possibly realize the serious nature of the step they are taking. The argument that you must get them in young or not at all is dishonouring to Whipple.

Mothers' Meeting.

Band of Hope: about 20.
Has tried to form Boys' Club, but finds great difficulty in getting hold of them. I suggested that possibly the vein was kept too tight from a Whipple point of view, but Mr Webb was clearly of opinion that it would not be right to make too much concession to the flesh.

House in the district two or three times a year.

Only such help as can be given by the Church Home nurse. But the district is very healthy: there is little serious illness.

Give about £25 a year, of which £20 is from Mut. Visiting and Relief Assoc. Give mostly to sick, but also to any case that is destitute; "The clergy must give when they find a case of starvation". Make much use of the C.O.S. which does excellent work in the district: could not touch many cases without their assistance.

Though less melancholy, and <sup>more</sup> genial the work is of the same type as his Vicar. Personally he is certainly a more attractive man, and I should say that his influence over the vicarious is wider than Mr. Watson's. It is to them, especially, and to the non church goers that he feels his mission is.

His church is a Mission Church and he feels that his work should be essentially of a missionary character.

Population of parish 7000. The parish seems more than an average size - i.e., it is not one of the very poorest. But the appearance of the streets are often misleading. Two-thirds of the houses in the main road are occupied by Jews. The great bulk of the population is composed of artisans, mechanics, & dress-makers.

There is a great deal of employment found in the immediate neighbourhood, & an increasing amount in the parish itself. Tailoring is increasing to the last extent in the parish. At Bishop Road, there are now a considerable number of workshops. These of course are occupied by Jews. In the better houses in the parish the Jews are coming more & more; in the poorer the tendency is for them to be occupied by a poorer class than formerly & to be smaller.

As a district it is becoming increasingly ungodly. Does not think that there are more than 3 or 4 residences in the parish <sup>except</sup> in houses, except one or two people, whose

[It is important that the parish visit, & perhaps the organization generally is very effective. It has frequently used the word "is supposed to" in dealing with the duties of various people here. The Rectory is perhaps rather easy-going, but not in the least complacent. He talked about his parish business as an outside observer might have done,
with an easy freedom, perhaps not doing much business, but leaving you with no impression that he thought he did, or wished you to think so.
He is a complete, & in some respects, very pleasing contrast - to his neighboring Rectory of Bradley.]

Her sole source of disposal of parish. With present - Poor Law system enough.

It is no difficulty that providing maintenance as done - £40 is available for the purpose through a special gift, annual, for the purpose.

It is only 6 or 8 subscribers, but an give fairly large amount. That ~~fund~~ Poor fund £60 or £80. (See below Visiting Relief Com. generally give about £15). It is enough in ordinary years.

Charities administered:-

Bell's Charity (Good). about £90. Grants to various clergy, others of district. Keep a certain amount to say (£10) to give on request of Vestrymen & Guardians. That that amount is quite distributed widely & very fairly well.

Bread Charity: ~~at~~ Based on 2nd Sunday is worth to 40 applicants "who come regularly to church". Sufficiently often to find 40 or more applicants.

On the general question as to who were touched by the church in the parish, Mr Hare said that "every cross was touched, he went to a large extent & not satisfactorily, certainly." He says they have been always handicapped by the small size of the church.

Wesleyans were in Old Ford.

Congregationalists took the airway from the neighbourhood to Hales Green Chapel.

Hunt was an important influence, but quite indiscriminate in his charity. Hales Green Chapel took the poor when Hunt was left. He was quite frank in his methods of giving, & said that "he did not care how the poor came, so long as they did come", and, as Mr Hare said, "there is a good deal to be said for it."

Railway Mission carried on by a "Society of Plymouth People".

Salvation Army "lives in vain"
Baptists: Small congregation, but large ~~and~~ Sunday school.

Roman Catholics: Father Thacker, an excellent man. The R.C.s are example to all for the regularity of their attendance &c. They work hard, & honestly, & the State does not think they proselytise. He maintains very friendly relations with them.

Methodists: a few. Does not think they do much, & very scarce & little or no influence.

The Factory Girls Union (Kinnaird's people) work in connection with Boyal & Mays: Tapermel &c. A committee of ladies. My wife was a member. Been working about 5 years. A lot of improvement. Taught them to wear under-garments. My wife has told me that they are used to. Very important; used to be very much.

Poor Law:

Dr Guinness: friendly, but no cooperation.

Too much burden Relief, especially in New Rowley. Not enough inquiry. Relief Officer Ad. The moderate number only attend. Have to get perhaps the only two who do. But no great discrepancy in policy of inquiry felt.

Poor Law Administration generally too extravagant in the Poplar Union, but general approval expressed, and "thanks to Lambury, many reasonable complaints removed" to minutes.

Police:

Speaks well of them. Relations friendly. But they refuse to stop the soliciting in the streets (Dor Road). This very bad, although carried on quite quietly for the most part.

Girls:

Decidedly improving. The influence of the Bands of Hope seen in many young men who remain out of mischief, + who attend in labour or other organizations.

Too many streets, but not an unmissed one.

Very good. Health rate about the lowest for the whole of London. See the Medical Officer (Dr. Talbot's) Report.

Fairly good, except the slums (not from Church (Baker's Alley, Walker Court, etc). Only one known in the parish.

The people generally well-behaved, excepting in the slum spots. He has never seen any stone squatter in any other part of London.

Four Common Lodging Houses:

Two are very airy. Are for late uses, & probably used for immoral purposes.

the best of health; complains of want of sleep for has just been away for a little time, the doctor is going to <sup>the hospital</sup> ~~London~~. So he has not been interviewed at a time when his mind is really concentrated on his work. He is a moderate Quaker, probably of moderate opinions. His cities change him into the trying to be more. There is probably to his credit that he is the only clergyman of the district who continues to take part in public work. He is not a great force, but there is no undeniability of complacency about him.

Interview with Rev. C. Ven. Parley; 87
Road. Brooklyn: -

Mr. Parley is one of Mr. Pary's curates and is in charge of the mission church and district X<sub>1</sub> on the School Board map in this district. Mr. P. tells me that he has entire control. I was anxious to see Mr. P. not only because he is something more than a curate but because he has been very highly spoken of by more than one of those seen.

Mr. P. has only been here for 18 months but during that time he has evidently got a thorough grasp of his district.

He is a man between 30 and 40: rather short and ungainly in appearance, and with a face at first sight not attractive but which grows on one as one talks. His ~~cheeks~~ cheeks are rosy and rather puffy; he has an enormous high and prominent forehead, indeed when he is not clearly a man of considerable ability, one would almost think that he was hydrocephalus.

Though he has colonized nearly all the streets in the district. Dark blue hair. I think that they are not generally the very poorest. Donald H. is the word of the lot, and here there are a good many thieves and prostitutes. The poorest inhabitants are generally dockers, but there are a great many fairly well-to-do railwaymen, engine drivers, signalmen, porters, carriers, clerks etc. Many girls work at Bryant and May and Bell's.

Such unemployment as there is in the district is the result always of illness or of sheer laziness. There are many loafers among the men who will not work. Many of them are betting men, act as touts for bookmakers and so on. Many of the coffee shops are little better than gambling dens. How ~~fast~~ <sup>fast</sup> vice gambling is one can judge from the rush for the evening papers as they come down from Fleet St. How poor these people are they always have money to spend on the evening paper and on beer.

As to drink - Mr D. is an enthusiastic teetotaler, and looks upon drink as the greatest curse of such a district as this. The harm is done not so much by open drunkenness as by "quiet-salting". The actual amount consumed is probably less than in Rotherham (where Mr D. was for eight years) but the effect is just as bad. The Yorkshireman has better physique and can stand more.

Mr D. gets some assistance from the parish church on Sunday; he has also a Mission woman who devotes herself to the district.

Including school teachers there are about 30 voluntary workers.

One of the churchwardens is a man who earns 24/ a week; his wife earns a few shillings by mangleing. Being religious people ~~that~~ they are not content that their children should all pipe

Church, and that room rented for six winter months.

The Church accommodates 400. At the morning from 20 to 30, all men and children, as the women cannot get out on Sunday morning in the evening from 80 to 180, with more women than men.

Among 20. The figures for various Sundays were 72, 8, 10, 43, 18, 20, 11, 21, 63 etc. On Easter Sunday there were 80. The roll was 100 but Mr. P. ~~the~~ struck off 20 as not fit to come.

Those who attend are excluding the poor of the surrounding streets; they are almost entirely heads of families. Three years ago I saw went.

"When I came to London I said when are the men?" but the men are now increasing.

Mr. D. has a theory that the men who attend church in London are about without exception countrymen born and bred; it is certainly so
in his district; in some cases they are men who have always kept up the church going habits of their youth, but much more frequently they are men who have lapsed and been won back. The social habits of the born Londoners are all against church going. Mr. D. is very anxious that he should begin into this point.

Those who come to church do so without any purpose or having; "the well-disposed will always come if they can understand" i.e.
if the service and especially the sermon is not "muddled" on above their heads. It is quite essential to speak to them in simple direct language; no man can get a congregation
among the poor without this.

Social Affairs.

237
Club for men and young men during the winter: only adult churchmen, and have from 20 to 40 in attendance; give the word churchmen as elastic interpretation, but cannot follow out Japan's plan at Oxford House, and admit anybody, would at once be swamped; it is an excellent thing to do if possible, but requires a lot of money, and few of the clergy can afford it, they are therefore forced generally to confine their clubs to churchmen.

"A Club is a tremendous civilizing influence".
Mr. D. has now three members of his club reading "Past and Present" with him, and one reading "A Death in the Desert". In the winter usually he reads and comments on Dickens etc to them, and even makes them enjoy Shakespeare. There are all seeming poor looking men. But civilizing though a club is, nothing is so civilizing as religious convictions. Nothing is more wonderful than to see the gradual change in a lad who has really been brought under the religious influence: the first effect is on his clothes. without any suggestion he leans off load tie like trousers etc, and gradually his whole moral nature alters.

Temperance Benefit Society: worked by a layman: total abstainers only, no moderate drinkers. As reforming agencies moderate drinking societies are "the nearest monasteries": there are lots of moderate drinkers among the working classes, but the drunkard can never be turned into a moderate drinker; the only hope for him is total abstinence.

Boys' Brigade: about 30 members: a very great success: the boys are tremendously keen about it. "If people tell you that these things fizzle out soon after the start, tell them
they don't know how to manage them; you must always keep something dangling before their eyes."
The boys are emerald boys, ran boys and railway boys,
some next door to ragged. "We begin with prayer
but don't end with it, as it does not ~~do~~ do to force too much religion on them". Nearly all the boys come to church and Sunday school.

Education.

241
Mothers' Meeting: - about 60 attend; conducted by ladies, but Parry always looks in, and talks to the mothers on microbes, vaccination, ventilation, sanitation etc. Gets ladies to talk to them about the promiscuous sleeping arrangements of their children; has indeed a good way to separate the sexes by at least a curtain.

Trips, teas, and entertainments: - "These people have no moral backbone; a Yorkshireman if he comes under the influence of religion will defy the Devil himself; these people have to be constantly prodded."

About 360 in Sunday School, but 300 in average attendance. All the teachers from the neighbourhood, engineers, labourers, small clerks, waitresses etc. Not always efficient, but it is wonderful the way they give themselves to the work after their hard weekly labours: "the self-sacrifice of these people when they are touched by the Christian Spirit is extraordinary."

Visiting

Nursing

Charitable Relief.

Mr Parly visits my house. "I never feel I am proper terms with them if they take me into their bed-room and dust a chair; you should be able to walk into the kitchen and sit down on a wash tub." If the man is in he usually returns to the back yard when a person enters; "then I always follow him". Visiting was to much talk: "he should not care to be looked up at all hours."

There is often great difficulty in seeing more than one family in a house. The upstairs people are usually the tenants of the downstairs people, who often do not like you to see their tenants.

There is one name for the district: The poor don't so much want nursing as telling what to do.

Give no money. The donors give a few tickets for newspapers for the sick.
The Jubile donors are intolerable nuisances.

Influence of Church.

Aim

Other influences.

245
"You can't measure the influence of the Church by those in actual touch with her; it permeates in numberless unseen ways."

"My great aim is to form character. When you do that the rest will follow under direction."

"To influence these people you must live among them; mix with them without any clerical starch; and it is desirable that you should be able to knock a man down on occasion."

Benjamin Hall is on the whole a "benignant influence." They rather corrupt the people by doing for doctors etc. but they succeed in getting doctors in the neighborhood to preach at their open air sermons: this requires tremendous moral courage.
