My dear sister Annie

I send thee my warm thanks for those most interesting extracts. And as thou may not have seen the actual circular sent out by the Doctors, I enclose a copy, which please return. It seems to me the most hopeful movement for Temperance we have yet known. My own feeling has long been that nothing can be accomplished by Acts or Laws, let them be ever so admirable, unless the people themselves are convinced, and to convince the people we must begin with the children. And the Educational Authorities must listen to the Doctors.

I am going to send those extracts from the Yorkshire Post to the White Ribbon for our next issue. They will be of great interest to our women. It was dear and good of thee to take so much trouble to get them for ~~the~~ me.

Yes, it was indeed cause for thankfulness that things went so pleasantly last Tuesday. On the whole I thought Lady Earlsdale behaved with great courtesy towards the Manifesto, considering how strongly she objects to it. There is something very fine about her, I feel. And I cannot help feeling we may win her to see that there is something in Christianity, if we only all of us are truly Christ liked in our attitude towards her.

Lovingly thy sister Hannah
