My dear Mrs Prodicion

I am much obliged to you for your letter and for all the information contained in it — so far as I am able to judge your decision as to the best mode of action seems to me very judicious.

Your paper was drawn up with so much ability that although I should extremely regret if it should prove not possible to reprint it separately, still it has already done immense good.

I write now to ask whether I have your permission to write, or send anything I may see on the subject, to you at Algiers during your absence from England?

And if so whether your address is merely Algiers?
But pray do not trouble yourself to write in answer while you are still en voyage; I shall not write until I hear from you, and if I do not hear shall retain anything I may have to say in the hope of seeing you where you are again in England.

yours always very truly Helen Taylor

I have just received Miss Boucheret's new Review which seems to me good and likely to be useful. I hope she will be able to continue it.
