Dear Mrs Lutz,

Please forgive my delay in writing. I have been unwell and my letters are in arrears. I do want to thank you for giving me news of Miss Reardon. I am not sure whether she is at the old address in Tatchbrook Street, so I venture to ask you to give her the enclosed letter when you see her, as I understand that you do at the Club?

To tell the truth, I always thought her a very formidable old lady and trembled before her, in spite of assurances from other Guildhouse-ites that she doted on me! But she was a truly faithful member and I am delighted to have news of her.

Thank you, too, very much for your kind letter and for giving Miss Reardon a sight of my book. And for your sympathy and understanding of what my marriage meant to me.

I wish I could remember the occasion of your speech at Bishop Auckland. It always gave me special pleasure when "raw school-girls" were chosen ^{to move} ~~for more than~~ votes of thanks because I saw in them the workers and orators of the future.

Yours sincerely,
