COUNCIL'S REPORT.

In presenting this report of the work of 1939 the Council desires first of all to thank all who have given such generous support, whether in money or personal service, in these difficult times. The appeal circulated in October for a special effort to enable the House to respond to the new and strange calls made upon it met with a most encouraging response. A substantial sum of money was raised which has made it possible for us to end the financial year with a tiny balance on the General Fund in spite of the fact that two special money-raising efforts which had been planned for November and the B.B.C. appeal due on October 1st were perforce abandoned. The support came not only in money but in service. Several old students who were temporarily unemployed owing to the crisis returned to help carry on the old and start the new work which clamoured to be done. Everyone in the House has accepted the restrictions and discomforts involved in war-time economies, and has cheerfully undertaken extra duties where necessary. The Council is deeply appreciative of all this co-operative effort.

This year has seen the completion of fifty years' work in Bethnal Green, and only the disturbed state of the world has prevented our celebrating this Jubilee with suitable rejoicings. The outlook for the future is uncertain but not more so for St. Margaret's than for other similar organisations. The need for voluntary work to supplement and secure the full benefit of modern social legislation is more than ever necessary when families are broken and separated as they are at present. When the voluntary work is done from an organisation as firmly established and as well-known in the district as is St. Margaret's, it can reach many people who would not normally think of approaching any statutory body. St. Margaret's has friendly relations with the local offices of the London County Council, the Employment Exchange, the Unemployment Assistance Board, the Public Assistance Committee, etc., and works in close co-operation with them and with other voluntary agencies in using to the best advantage all provision made for the welfare of the community. The fact that St. Margaret's has been a part of the community for so long and that so many families have been connected with the House for two and even three generations makes the work even more intimate and helpful.

The uncertainty overshadowing all life at this time only enhances the significance of friendly relations of such long standing. Our work survived the strain of 1914-1918 and successfully carried on into a changed world the old traditions of personal service done to the glory of God. Its methods were adapted to suit the new circumstances without losing its character or quality. We have confidence now that, with the help of all our good friends and supporters, we can once more meet the challenge of the Unknown. Change there must inevitably be and changes have in fact already come; but this does not involve decay if it is greeted in the spirit of adventure.

The war has made it difficult to get full meetings of the Council, but those members who are still in London have kept in close touch with the House through the past months. The fact that our Hon. Treasurer is serving (although still taking an interest in our welfare and carrying on by deputy) has made the preparation of the Balance Sheet less easy than usual and we must record our great appreciation of the help given in this respect by Miss Higgs and Miss Goulding. Their assistance has been invaluable.

We appeal once more to our subscribers and friends to continue their support, without which we are powerless. Evacuation has led to changed addresses and, in some cases, to loss of contact and those who read this report—which for obvious reasons of economy is issued in a modified form—are specially asked to pass it on to someone else instead of consigning it to the rubbish basket!

HEAD'S REPORT.

It is quite impossible to write an ordinary report about the year 1939. The eight months of crisis were busy ones during which we carried on normal work under a shadow which grew steadily darker and more and more gave a sense of unreality to all plans and programmes. Between them and the four months of war is a great gulf fixed. We seem now to have lived in a black-out always and all that went before is hazy and like a dream. Suffice it to say that we had the house full to overflowing, all our activities were working and clubs went with a swing. St. Margaret's Day gave our friends a chance to see something of their work and all who saw the children's naive dramatisation of "Every day in Green Street" and the spirited performance of their mothers must have realised that very real dramatic talent is latent in the average Bethnal Greener.

Our holiday work was greatly hampered by the political uncertainty and the sense of approaching catastrophe. Nevertheless some 750 individuals had at least a week, and the majority two weeks holiday. The Children's Country Holiday Fund helped 420, the Women's Holiday Fund, the Factory Girls' Holiday Fund and our own Holiday Fund sent away a further 167, while our Club Holiday Camp at Southsea catered for 159 with its usual complete success, both social and financial.

We are most grateful to all who helped towards this result by money, by personal service (such as cooking, washing up, and sweeping at Southsea) and by invitations. For many this will probably be the last holiday for some time to come, though we shall try to arrange some kind of club holiday in the coming summer, if it can possibly be done. Those who have spent the year in the grey and drab surroundings of war-time Bethnal Green will need a change more than ever before. How it can be done is at present an unsolved problem.

As with most other settlements the stand-by signal for Evacuation put a final stop to holidays—which, for Residents, had only just begun. Fourteen of us were detailed to go into the country and the remainder to stay here and cope with the host of problems left behind. The week of 'standing-by' was, by universal consent, the greatest trial of the year. The sultry heat, the lack of information, the complete uncertainty was a severe test. We filled sand-bags and blacked-out windows and tidied cupboards and even continued preparation for a normal Autumn programme and each task in turn seemed equally futile. Friday, September 1st, brought at least a definite call to action which, though it banished all hope of peace, provided a task which must be done here and now. From that moment, and for the next six weeks, there was hardly time to sleep or eat. A Citizens' Advice Bureau was opened at once and the Soldiers' and Sailors' and Airmen's Families Association quickly followed with a request to deal with the local emergency. As was described in the October Bulletin, the front door stood open from early morning till late at night for nearly a month and the hall was never empty of people waiting their turn for a hearing.

During that four weeks 361 cases were registered, involving 449 interviews, 68 visits and 253 letters and telephone calls. But queries which could be answered out-of-hand were so many there was no time to keep any count. Though the great rush has now fallen off we are kept busy by a steady flow of cases and our Poor Man's Lawyer has trebled his cases in consequence. We are more than ever grateful to Mr. Wildman for his help and advice to many people who would otherwise suffer severely from ignorance of the new laws designed to meet their war-time difficulties.

Formal Clubs could not be started at once because of A.R.P. restrictions, but the club leaders were kept busy visiting and being visited by members from all the adult clubs. As quickly as could be the club rooms were blacked out and a fresh programme of work begun to meet the new needs. The general demand was, and still is, for friendly talk. No one could concentrate on formal classes but informal groups began at once. The increased friendliness and genuine club spirit among all the members is one of the most marked effects of the war. The adolescents (boys and girls) clamoured loudest of all and we started a weekly dance for them as soon as a public shelter was available. The Club room is nowhere near large enough to accommodate them and, on occasion, we have even had to send for the police to clear the yard of those who were crowded out. The waiting list is as big as the club and members have now to bring their registration cards to secure admittance. After much negotiation and many disappointments we have at last secured additional room in Wolverley Street school and we are now waiting* in hope of a grant from the Standing Conference of Youth Organisations to enable us to start a supplementary club there. The Senior Clubs are not so crowded and are much more affected by the black-out, overtime and other war-time complications but they have had some very successful evenings when we have invited the soldiers billeted locally, the A.F.S., the A.R.P. and the Police to join the dance. The Mixed Club is slowly being depleted of its men as they are called up, and many others are working long hours so that attendance is very irregular but, in spite of difficulties, a goodly company turns up each Saturday and Sunday and we are even planning to resume outside Table-Tennis matches in the near future.

The unevacuated children were the last to be catered for, partly because of A.R.P. and partly the difficulties of reduced manpower. But for the last two months there has been a 'school' here every morning, twice a week for boys and three times weekly for girls. The schooling has been of necessity informal but has, at least, provided some instruction and some healthy discipline and ordered occupation for the children.

A clothing club was started almost at once. We invested £5 in warm underwear, etc., in Houndsditch before the prices began to rise; we turned out all our reserve stock and some good friends started to make and knit clothes and jerseys for us. The club has helped a number of thrifty mothers but has not been so popular as we had hoped it might have been. The problem of clothing is one of the most difficult of evacuation problems. Much might be written about the whole question but this is not the place to say more than that our experience makes us more than ever sure that there are two sides to every question however, unlikely that may seem at first sight!

Our usual Christmas parties were held in a much modified form though, through the kindness of several friends, we were able to give the Pensioners their full Christmas dinner, a Refugee Conjuror providing a fine entertainment afterwards. The Parcels had to be even more modified, largely because we received much less to put into them than usual and partly because with our depleted numbers we could not contemplate anything like our usual programme. But 130 lonely old folk in hospitals had most attractive boxes filled with a number of little treasures (lavender, sweets, cigarettes, handkerchiefs, etc.) while about 70 families known to be having a specially difficult time had parcels of clothing. We also had rabbits and a wonderful collection of knitted blankets (many of them sent by the staff of Messrs. Debenhams) which carried a warm greeting to some specially chosen people.

The evacuation of the University of London meant that Miss Eddy, Miss Smith and Miss Colver, who should have been with us this winter, had all to go to Cambridge instead. We missed them very much and still regard them as 'our' students. Three other students who had arranged to come here for club training gave up the idea but Miss Rycroft persevered and Miss Craib and Miss Logan are in their second year. The Club practice available has been, of necessity, different from normal, but the emergency conditions have been a most useful test of adaptability and initiative which has been put to good account.

Miss Richardson evacuated with Cranbrook School and did yeoman work in helping them to settle into their new life in Somerset. She was asked to remain as long as possible, and as Care Committee work in London seemed to have ceased, it was finally arranged that she should leave us. She is still in Somerset and in close touch with the school though working with the Food Control Office. Miss Hoare left us in September to go to Durham as assistant to Miss Daniels in her dramatic work for the Community Council there. She has since taken on work for the Citizens' Advice Bureau as well. On the other hand Miss Hazelhurst, an old student of St. Hugh's, who had given us several weeks' help in the Summer Play Centre, returned after the outbreak of war and is now firmly established as the mainstay of the Citizens' Advice Bureau. Miss Penley, who was due to sail on September 7th to take up a post-graduate bursary in Chicago University, returned to help us in the crisis and, after a period with the Ministry of Pensions, is now Secretary to the Islington C.A.B. Miss Selley spent the Autumn helping with evacuees at Cambridge and has now been appointed as Welfare Worker on a Land Settlement Scheme. Miss Stather Hunt was in Canada with a Sunday School Caravan all the Summer and, after an exciting voyage by convoy across the Atlantic, came here to help in November and has now been appointed to organise clubs in a Sunderland parish. Miss Plumtre, who also returned to the fold for a short time, was appointed to an industrial welfare post in December. Miss Chitty has succeeded Miss Bell as Club Leader at St. Helens House, Stratford; Mrs. Pegram has been Probation Officer at Croydon for some months and Miss Gibbons resigned her Probation work to be married during the Summer.

OUR THANKS.

For reasons of economy we are obliged to omit the long lists of those who have kept our Shop supplied with stock, given help with special cases or invitations for holidays and done all the other good deeds which help to make life pleasant. So far as is possible all these are acknowledged at the time but there are always parcels which arrive minus their wrappings and accidents will happen even in the best regulated settlements, especially in war-time, so there must be some kind folk who have not heard from us when they should. To them we offer our sincere apologies and to everyone our grateful thanks for all and everything.

We realize how many calls are made in war-time on their generosity, but we would plead again for continued support and especially for the Shop. We had to close for five weeks at Christmas for lack of stock. This has not happened in all the years since the Shop was opened! And it was a real trial to our mothers. It is one little bit of normal life which is a great comfort for that reason alone, not to mention the joy of the bargains it contains. Furthermore the income it produces is absolutely essential to our keeping "open house." So please spare us your old clothes, curtains, carpets, sheets, etc., as you have done so generously in the past.

Thank you all for:—

Your interest—your help with work of all kinds.

Your gifts of money and of goods, of flowers and fruit, of a wireless set and a piano.

Your invitations for club outings, for tired people in need of holidays, for invalids.

WELLINGTON ESTATE REPORT.

The early months of the year, when one's plans were made for times of peace, seem so remote that to refer to them in this report appears almost unnecessary. But those days have their place in the growth of the life of the estate and must be included.

This year the work has been very largely work with the Community Association. The membership of the Committee has fluctuated owing, in most cases, to unavoidable circumstances, but the nucleus have remained faithful and have given a tremendous amount of personal service to the members of the Association. This has, at times, been mistaken and one felt they were heading for disaster, but lessons learned from experience are so much more lasting that it seemed best to interfere as little as possible. The year's experience has noticeably produced a much greater realisation that better work can be done "with the government" than "agin" it. Our hopes of some adequate premises were shattered by the outbreak of war but, through the efforts of Sir Wyndham Deedes and Mrs. Norman Bentwich, we hope that Evening Institute classes will be started in a near-by school and we are financially strong enough occasionally to hire a local hall for entertainments.

Among the earlier happenings of the year was the children's outing to Chingford, organised and financed by the Community Association Committee for 140 children, between the ages of 6 and 14. It was a strenuous day, but we all survived! though the behaviour of some of our bigger boys shocked the Committee beyond words. (It would seem that they have short memories for their own youthful misdeeds). For some days "them boys" were discussed on the estate with head-shakings and bated breath and even they themselves were subdued! The wonderful afternoon spent at Cockfosters by 60 of our mothers at the kind invitation of the Townswomen's Guild will never be forgotten. It poured in torrents the whole day but none of the party even mentioned the weather! As one mother said "They were such lovely ladies, they made us all feel friendly to each other."

The children's bulb competition, organised with the help of Miss Mackinnon from the London Gardens Society, was very successful and some remarkably fine exhibits were produced. The delightful film which Miss Mackinnon and her Chairman showed us in the local school hall stimulated the desire for window boxes and, though rather late in the year, several quite creditable boxes made their appearance, the boxes themselves being made by one of the unemployed tenants.

In the lovely summer days of early September came the war with its evacuation and problems of all sorts. In the courtyard, usually full of noisy, shouting children, was one small toddler and the whole estate was strangely silent. The A.R.P. Warden reported that on his rounds at all hours of the night were to be seen silent figures standing on the balconies, listening, afraid to go to bed. One wondered how long the nerves, especially of our excitable Jewish tenants, would stand the strain. During the first few weeks, as one passed through the estate there would always be the call "Can you come up a minute, Miss?" Sometimes someone just needing re-assurance, usually some problem to be solved. As time passed and no raids occurred, the children gradually drifted back and now—alas—the courtyards are almost as noisy as ever. With no schools open it became necessary to start small groups of classes in our own Club room and one was impressed by the number of children with good brains just going to waste for lack of opportunity to use them. Now that schools are opening there is no longer the need for these classes, though with the very short sessions possible, the older children are clamouring for some occupation for their spare time.

Our old people's club still meets happily each week and also L.C.C. knitting and make-and-mend classes for the women. Our greatest need is recreation for the 14—18 group. For the energies of these youngsters our small room is quite inadequate but we are hoping that popular evening classes, such as P.T., ball-room dancing, dressmaking, etc., in the local school will meet the need. The concert recently organised by the Community Association (and—alas—appreciated by the audience!) convinces one that the standard of culture could not be much lower and here we hope the L.C.C. may help us too.

With the approach of Christmas, the Committee's thoughts inevitably turned to treats and gifts, with the result that we are left with a large hole in our funds and much discontent and jealousy among the members. Once more the Committee has learned a lesson, but it is a great misfortune that the war has brought changes in our membership, while the Committee is still only partly aware of the danger of continually bidding for popularity rather than taking a wider and more constructive view of its responsibilities. On the other hand, war has in some respects strengthened our sense of community and our appreciation of the need for common action in the face of danger and difficulty. The future of the Association is thus still in the balance.
