Dearest Daddy and my precious children

It was so glorious to see Daddy yesterday and to hear that you are all well. Although he looked a little tired he perhaps rushing about London had done it. Auntie Lily's came to see me today. John must not reckon on my being here on Tuesday. There are 130 cases for Leisbon and we were one of the later cases and they can't get through more than ten each names of them & send them up for you to try. I think that your body might be then done for M. D. Carrere's sister is well & very bright engaged in making shirts for men who will not give her the vote. Tell her brother I like her very much indeed. It has been cold and damp too any day.

Really I have not suffered from the cold at all.

I shall be less anxious about you all when the strike is over. I like the boy of the shoes & lifted him to a dryer place. You may be proud of it.

Goodbye my darlings. Hope the little Chaps will not that have deserted him. Love to my dearest Mother & my dearest father & my dearest Teddy & little Merrie & my dear dear Frank. Still do not let the little Chaps miss me. Yours Corny
Brother
