Saturday evening.

Dear Kelly

I hasten to tell you that I came here all right to-day at noon, and found my father much better. Our physician met me at the station to give me the good news, and you can imagine how rejoiced I was!

However, I think I must remain at home for the present, partly to be a help to mamma, and partly to review and correct proof-sheets for papa, for the new edition of his Prolegomena Dr. Geyersdorf, which is very anxious to accomplish.
He will want some one to

I found my baggage all right at L. Parsons and Mr. Johns

Mr. Hunt, whether he thinks I might go on working at Anglo-Saxon by myself and what books he recommends me to prepare, with a view to the examination. I shall enclose a £5 note in my letter to Caroline and beg her to get the books for me from Macmillan & send them with the loan. In the mean while please to give her my best love & thanks, and pray remember me kindly to all who care for me a little.

I cannot say, how sorry I am to be so far away from you all!

Good bye, Darling - I thank you and Caroline a thousand times for your kindness and trouble and am

Yours very affectionately
